PLAN CENTENNIAL OF DIFFERENT TYPE

Anniversary of Chicago 1923 to Be Observed With Useful Works

Capturing the heart of a great city and forever preserving it an imperishable record through useful works dedicated to the permanent service of mankind, is the goal and forward-looking plan back of the biggest and most varied different birthday party the world has ever seen.

The celebration will take place in 1933 when Chicago commemorates its hundredth anniversary and rise from a wilderness trading post to rank as the earth's third largest metropolis.

Under guidance of Mr. Edward N. Hurley, Sr., chairman of the organization committee, the coming Centennial has as one of its principal objects the construction of an immense 4,000 bed active-patient hospital.

This will be the largest institution of its kind in the world. It will rise an international temple of public health and medicine and serve as a clearing house for all the scientific knowledge and research findings of every land.

The cost of such an institution will be upwards of $25,000,000. It will be composed of a dozen or more buildings or pavilions surrounding a central administration unit and all connected by underground passageways.

Location will be on a health island especially constructed for the purpose on Chicago's Lake front directly opposite the Mall site which now houses the Field Museum and later on will contain the Shedd Aquarium for which $3,000,000 has been appropriated.

Besides filling an active need in Chicago's under-hospitalized condition where at present there are only some five beds per thousand of population as compared with 10 beds per thousand in Philadelphia, the new hospital will contain facilities for the full range of clinical services, including social, mental, educational, convalescent and research.

Control and management will be under the direction of the University of Chicago, Northwestern university, the University of Illinois and Loyola university. A board of directors, including the governor of the state, the mayor of the city and the president of the county board, will regulate its administration.

In addition to these governing bodies there will also be an honorary board of regents composed of nationally known medical men from all over the world.

The hospital will operate in conjunction with special convalescent homes to be constructed in the forest preserves which surround Chicago.

No patient will be turned away for lack of funds and the best that modern medical science can bring to bear will be placed at the disposal of every sufferer regardless of his position or means.

Every department of specialization in medicine, surgery and dentistry will be represented and provisions made for study and research in efficient hospital management for which there is a crying need.

Scholarships and honoraria will be provided for foreign medical students and distinguished medical leaders of other lands. This practice will help cement international good will, create a bond of scientific knowledge and link Chicago as the world's greatest medical center with all the sources of scientific achievement.

That each nation may feel that

It is a direct part of the institution and an integral factor in its operation, certain weeks are to be set aside for the leading physicians, dentists and medical students during which each nationally will lecture, operate and demonstrate the particular work assigned the country in question.

These weeks will be known as the British clinic, the German clinic, the American clinic or whatever clinic is being conducted.

The location of the super hospital in Chicago's midst will result in a constant flow of medical knowledge and an interchange of scientific data aimed at prolonging the life span of the ordinary human.

According to Mr. Hurley, who conceived the plan for the hospital as a practical gift from Chicago to the entire world, the prolongation of human life is the most useful benefit which any city could hope to confer as an expression of its generosity and happiness.

Statistics bear out that millions of lives which through preventive means could be saved are being lost every year. The Centennial hospital through its educational and co-operative work will do much to improve conditions by the dissemination of what has already been learned.

It is further planned to help spread the gospel of health through the aid of the radio and motion pictures. Will H. Hays, will be asked to portray outstanding facts concerning life and health in films enacted by the best characters of the screen and presided over by David W. Griffith and other producers.

This will be a sentimental hook-up for visual education and will result in reaching millions of laymen and provide them with an intelligent and comprehensive basis for their medical reasoning.

Other plans in mind call for a scientific group trained in microphotography to work out a program of human physiology in the hope of reaching millions who could not be touched through any other medium.

Besides the medical and hospitalization buildings, the Centennial will also house permanent units devoted to administrations, agriculture and stock raising, transportation, architecture, engineering, radio, moving pictures, aviation, machinery and mechanics, religion, fine arts, electricity, manufacturing, mineralogy, music, sports and amusements.

Each building or unit, however, as Mr. Hurley points out will be permanent, attractive in architectural design and constructed for actual service.

Concerning the Centennial he says:

"We must capture and present in material form a vision of the future, and of what it holds for the world, and I should like to see the Centennial promote international friendship. Our coming celebration will lack the vital spark, however, if, in addition to material things, it fails to develop something of concrete and lasting value to humanity."

Thus in this concept a new order of thought has come into being. The fleeting undercurrent of sympathy and friendship which exists beneath the great city's impersonal cloak is to be tapped and caught for all the world to see.

The tinkling symbols and brass which yesterday expressed themselves in the pomp of achievement and gaudy buildings which were torn down as soon as the celebration ended will not be part of Chicago's coming Centennial. In its joy and prosperity Chicago is to share with the world some of the good things that have come to it and construct a lasting testimonial of its gratefulness.

This it will accomplish through service and permanency in a forward step that will demonstrate the depth of its great heart and leave behind a monument for posterity to pattern after.

"May I ask the cause of this excitement?" said the stranger in the little village.

"Certainly," replied the country man. "We're celebrating the birthday of the oldest inhabitant. She's one hundred and one today."

"Indeed! And may I ask who is that little man with the dreadfully sad face walking by the old lady's side?"

"Oh, that's her son-in-law. He's been keeping up the payments on her life insurance for the last 30 years."
