OLD BIBLE WRITTEN BY CHURCH LEADER

Appears in Greek of Common People Says Dr. Sander of Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(AP)—An ancient scholar, probably the leader of a church, was writer or copyist of the earliest fragment of the text of the Bible known to exist, believes Henry A. Sanders of the classical language department of the University of Michigan.

Dr. Sanders has spent two years working over the bit of brown papyrus, the most cherished item of the large papyri collection of the University of Michigan. It is written in the Greek of the common people, says Dr. Sanders, thus distinguishing it from the "deluxe city editions" of the complete Bibles of Antioch, Alexandria and Cessera, in which the penmanship of the clerk or copyist was the observed characteristic. It has at the end of each phrase a little mark above the line. This Dr. Sanders construes to have been for the direction of the readers in the church to show the phrasing. It is the only punctuation observed.

The date of writing of the fragment is placed in the third century of the century preceding that in which the city editions were copied. The text is a part of Matthew, telling of the last supper and the betrayal of Jesus Christ. It came into the possession of the university two years ago through the activities of its Near East Research organization.

The first writing of the Bible was in the Greek of the common people, Dr. Sanders declares, as it was among the common people speaking and writing Greek that the faith had its first followers. It was written from 50 to 90 A. D. and he places the time of collection at before 155 A. D. Later the faith appealed to the educated Greeks and the copyings of the men of education is in a better hand writing and with corrections in the language. The late third or fourth century witnessed the copying of the Bible for show purposes, in what Dr. Sanders calls the "deluxe city editions" in towns like Antioch and Alexandria. It is from these copies that the King James and other editions of the Bible have been made up, he says.

"In general," says Dr. Sanders, "the earliest known fragment of the Bible establishes the correctness of the earliest translations into the old Latin and the old Syrian languages as this earliest bit of scholastic Greek differs less in meaning with them than with the fourth century copyings into Greek."

The life of movie performers has its disagreeable features. One of them is the long waits they sometimes must endure before they are called into action. Some read magazines, but most of the cast either talk in groups or sit idly by while waiting their turn in the scenes that are being shot. One noted star had three days of it, waiting to be momentarily called.

PARIS ABLAZE WITH GORGEOUS COLORING

Each Individual To Express Himself in a Special Shade

PARIS — The hunter's moon hangs low over the Place Vendôme, and in the gardens of the Tuilleries the fallen leaves rustle underfoot. Autumn is in the air, and the Automobile Salon is on. All Paris is color mad! At the Grand Palais, where the motor car creations of the great manufacturers stand in rows like the king's guard upon parade, there are glints of burnt orange, and the dull rich warmth of maroon; taking their place in the color harmonies of the whole and giving forth a note like the muffled sound of a convict bell.

Never before such a spectacle. No longer the dead harmony of sombre hues. Here is beauty, and life and soothing satisfaction for the eye, studied from nature herself and deliciously reproduced in endless and ever changing subtleties. The motor car is expressive ing at last the aesthetic ideals of its owner.

Town cars of jade. Roadsters of café-au-lait and crimson. Sedans of orchid and sable. The colors of the lagoons in Venice at mid-day. The myriad golden browns and copper-reds and brown-yellows of the autumn leaves. Greens of the spring brookside and rich scarlets that vision poppies and sunsets.

Outside along the Champs Elysees the changing kaleidoscope thrills with its never-ending stream of harmonies. The haute monde and the demi monde in whirling squadrons of satisfying color rolling past upon the smooth pavements like a flashing mountain torrent at the end of a rainbow. And here and there soft punctuations of wine color and black—the Paris taxicabs, for wine color and black is proper in a Paris taxi.

One night I attended a great function at the opera. The Pageant of Transportation! Here the brilliant hues worn by the crowd were like a gorgeous Spanish shawl as I gazed down upon it from one of the little balconies overlooking the grand staircase. Gone are the gloomy simplicities of the past. All was life and color. The opera lovers, never so full of all the ravishments of sheer beauty as now, were sufficient for the artist even without the opera itself.

The president's guard was there at attention, with their drawn sabres and gilded helmets gleaming. Inside, along the horseshoe, the boxes looked like veritable baskets of flowers hung along the walls. So filled were they with beautiful women, their gowns of orchid, peach, Rose de Versailles, Saint Germaine green, glacier or cloth-of-gold, being accented by the dark notes of the evening clothes worn by their escorts.

Yes, the age of Color is indeed here! Now, whatever our nationality, our estate or time of life; we can dare to express our color individuality, each in his own way; in our homes, our furniture, our automobiles and ourselves.

MOVIE SIDELIGHTS

(By The Associated Press) "Now look jealous!" commanded a director of a young actor he was testing in a close-up. The young actor tried his best; he looked pained, disgusted, angry, but the facial expression of jealousy eluded him. "I guess you can't do it," grumbled the director. He called another actor.

The discomfited youth sank into a chair and watched his rival step in front of the camera. After a moment the director turned to the youth in the chair. "That's it!" he cried. "Hold that expression!" And he grabbed the youth and forced him in front of the lens.

Some read magazines, but most of the cast either talk in groups or sit idly by while waiting their turn in the scenes that are being shot. One noted star had three days of it, waiting to be momentarily called.

Persons in waiters' attire being served by waitresses was an odd sight at lunch time in the Paramount cafe at the Long Island studio during the filming of a recent picture. Some of the cast had the role of waiters in the play.

In the secret rooms of a Limehouse dive set planned ingeniously for many successive lighting and camera angles, long "shots," semi-closeup and closeups were made of six different characters without stopping the camera, which is believed to be a record. By means of special equipment and camera the finished "shots" of 230 feet is unbroken. If made by the ordinary methods, it would have been cut in from eleven to thirty parts.

When fires occurred recently in the studios of Gloria Swanson and Charlie Chaplin, camera men made "shots" of the blazes for possible use in future productions.
