

COOKING SCHOOL OFFERS VARIETY

Many Novelties to Be Introduced at Statesman-Rex Institute

"I am looking forward to coming to Salem," writes Miss Jeanette Beyer, who is to conduct a four day Statesman-Rex cooking school which opens December 14 in the Grand theater.

Miss Beyer has just recently returned from Boston, where she has been attending Miss Farmer's famous cooking school. She will come to Salem with four brand new programs which are so full of instructions for good things to eat that Salem families are looking forward in anticipation of the weeks following the cooking school, when "mother" can try her hand.

The first day's program—the school starts on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock—will have to do with the making of cakes and French pastries. True puff paste will be transformed by Miss Beyer into "patty" cases, cream horns, apple boats and a large variety of French pastries. She promises to make a flaky pie crust in only a short time, and to make those little spongy things called lady fingers, and perhaps "best ever" doughnuts and an orange cake or pound cake. She writes that she hasn't fully decided about all these things, but will let her audience choose what they will have.

Wednesday the program will be the making of salads and salad accompaniments.

Thursday's program on Sunday night supper and luncheon dishes, includes macaroni mousses and a vegetable souffle and several sandwiches which are full meals in themselves. Then there are Irish bread and "pigs in blankets," which mysteries Miss Beyer refuses to solve. She says there will be a real dessert on this program, and names it "red hot apple dumplings."

Whether it be for just the family or company, Miss Beyer will give suggestions and recipes for "dinners for all occasions" on Friday, the last day of the cooking school. She writes casually of such things as French rusks, pinked steak, and says she is going to tell how a dinner should be planned and served.

Miss Beyer expects to arrive in Salem early next week and will then take personal charge of installing the model kitchen in the Grand theater. The equipment is all to be furnished by Salem merchants and will afford women attending the school an opportunity to see demonstrated all the latest wrinkles of a modern kitchen.

Cherrian Annual Dance Tonight Best of Season

"The biggest and best public dance of the season" is what Phil A. Elker, chairman of the dance committee, says of tonight's annual Cherrian dance to be given in the Crystal Gardens. The dance is free to the whole city at the price of $1 per couple.

The floor committee of 10 men, headed by P. E. Fullerton, will see that there are no "wallflowers." Everyone will be made to dance all the dances. The decorations will be unusually handsome, according to the King Bing of the Cherrians.

Between 200 and 300 couples are expected. The Cherrians will all appear in uniform.

POSTURE CHECKING SHOW 665 AT FAULT

Larger Number This Year Attributed to Transfers and Beginners

The first posture check for the school year has just been completed by Grace S. Walkamott and submitted to the school authorities. The report shows that there are more students in need of posture training now than in June, but this is attributed partially to the result of new students just coming to Salem schools for the first time this fall.

Four posture tests were given last year, the first being at a time corresponding with the present month and the others following in February, April and June. The first test showed 27 per cent of the pupils in the first six lower grades in need of training. At the June test it was found that only 7.3 per cent needed attention.

The test this fall shows 30.2 per cent need posture correction, total headed by P. E. Fullerton, will see that there are no "wallflowers." Everyone will be made to dance all the dances. The decorations will be unusually handsome, according to the King Bing of the Cherrians.

Of the 2198 pupils in these grades, 1081 are girls and 1117 are boys. 276 are beginners in the first primary class and 404 of the entire six grades are new here, being transfers and beginners.

GENTLE DESCRIBES NEEDS OF NORMAL

Two New Buildings Necessary at Monmouth, Professor Says in Talk

Reasons why the Oregon Normal school at Monmouth needs more money for two new buildings were set forth by Thomas H. Gentle of the normal school faculty in an address before the Marion Polk county reformatory here yesterday. Mr. Gentle stated:

The school is overcrowded badly, with nearly 1000 students, he said, so it wants money for a new classroom building and a new women's gymnasium. Overcrowding is so bad that girls must stand to read reference books in the library, Mr. Gentle stated.

Nearly 50 per cent of the school children in Oregon are being retarded in their work, Mr. Gentle said in discussing the state's educational program. A school can rise little above the level of its teachers, and all Oregon's best teachers are drawn to California, Washington and other states by more attractive salaries.

Elsinore Theater Has Double Bill Today

Marie Prevost and Monte Blue are co-starring in "Other Women's Husbands," the Warner picture which is at the Elsinore theater today only with five acts of Association vaudeville.

The story concerns a man who coveted his friend's wife, introduced the husband to a gay playmate of his, and set about disrupting a happy household. The wife was resentful of her husband's neglect, the husband was making up for the wild oats he had never sown, and the friend was adding another divorce case to his successful legal career when things began to happen not according to schedule, and took an unexpected and entertaining turn.

ROBERT RYAN DIES AFTER OPERATION

Well Known Resident of Salem Was 80 Years Old and Civil War Vet

Robert R. Ryan, 80, Civil war veteran and old time Salem resident, died at the veterans' hospital in Portland late Wednesday night, according to word received here yesterday. Mr. Ryan had been in the hospital for 10 days following two operations, from the effects of which death is said to have resulted.

Burial will be Saturday morning at the IOOF cemetery, with Rev. Fred C. Taylor of the First Methodist church officiating. Preliminary services will be at the Terwilliger funeral home at 10:30 o'clock.

Mr. Ryan served in the 61st Illinois infantry during the Civil war and came to Salem in 1891. He was a member of the Grange, GAR, and of the First Methodist church. He was the man who erected the building now used by the Marion county Grange as a public market. He was the author of the veterans' pension bill to be introduced into the next session of congress.

Mr. Ryan is survived by his widow, Clara Ayers Ryan, whom he married last September. His first wife died in 1922. Other survivors include a sister, Mrs. Belle Stroud, and two sons, John M. and William A. Ryan, both of Salem.
