MacDowell Club Chorus Announces Distinctive Program for Tonight

When the Salem MacDowell club chorus assembles on the platform at Waller Hall this evening Salem will have the opportunity of hearing a delightful program which they have long waited for.

Assisting the chorus will be the eminent tenor, Arthur Johnson, who will have as his accompanist May Van Dyke.

Miss Dorothy Pearce will accompany the chorus.
Prof. W. H. Boyer has directed the group for many weeks preparatory to the triumph which tonight will undoubtedly bring. A special feature will be the Christmas songs which will close the program, which is announced as follows:

- (a) Nymphs and Fauns
- (b) Bemburg-Matthews
- (c) Incidental solo, Mrs. Fitzgerald
- (d) The Walnut Tree...Schumann
- (e) Serenade...Strauss-Harris
- (a) Have You Seen But a White Lily Grow... (Time of James I)
- (b) To Anthea, Who May Command Him Anything...Hutton
- (c) Onaway, Awake Beloved... (Hiawatha's Wedding Feast)
- (d) Samuel Taylor-Coleridge
- (e) Mr. Johnson
- (a) Sing, O Sing...Dunn
- (b) Two familiar songs
- (c) Almond Blossom...Drake
- (d) Thou Art My Sunshine...Trinkaus
- (a) Vision Aria, Act II, "A Witch of Salem"....Cadman
- (b) Slender Your Hands...Alexander MacFayden
- (c) The Hills of Home...Fox
- (d) In an Old, Old Garden...Gaul
- (e) Call Me No More...Cadman
- (a) Silent Night, Holy Night...Mr. Johnson
- (b) Gesu Bambino...Yon
- (c) Mrs. Rosecrans and chorus
- (d) The Sailor's Christmas...Chaminade
- (e) Incidental solo, Mr. Johnson

The Oregon Journal of Portland reported interestingly concerning Mr. Johnson, the soloist, as follows:
Following his appearance in Spokane, under the direction of the Musical Art society, the Spokesman-Review said of Arthur Johnson, Portland tenor: "The young tenor possesses a lyric voice of appealing quality, blended with a highly developed sense of the artistic. Mr. Johnson sings with ease a great deal of sympathy and musically understanding. Moreover, his diction is splendid. Also over, his diction is even in all registers and never forced, bringing to his interpretations a marked finish and style not often found among the younger artists." This same reviewer also wrote: "May Van Dyke played the accompaniments from memory. She was at all times in complete sympathy with him, and her clear-cut touch and mastery style added much to the charm and enjoyment of the concert." Mr. Johnson and Miss Van Dyke have been engaged to appear in Seattle, Tacoma, Salem and Tillamook in the near future.

A signal distinction is that gained by Arthur Johnson, tenor of Portland, in the November issue of "Singing," wherein Carl Fischer, Inc., music publishers of New York, advertise to the extent of a quarter page Mr. Johnson's use of several songs published by that house. These songs, in which Mr. Johnson has been heard locally, include Hageman's "Christ Went Up Into the Hills," Kreisler's "The Old Refrain," Oscar Fox's "The Hills of Home," and Trucio's "Reve Blanc" and "Reve Noir." It is said that Mr. Johnson is the only Pacific coast singer to appear in the series of advertisements of which this is one. Other singers who have been similarly featured are Reinold Werreath, Tita Schipa and John McCormick.

First Methodist Church Compiles Interesting History

An extremely interesting history in booklet form which is just off the press is "The History of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Salem, Oregon," edited by Mrs. C. F. Breithaupt, and published in attractive form by Murray Wade.

The valuable pages are enclosed in symbolic, hand-tinted covers. While Oregon City had the first church edifice, Salem has the distinction of having had the first church organization. The First Methodist church, says the opening title, was formally organized June or July, 1841, with 13 members. The present church was built in 1872, after the old church had stood for a quarter of a century.

The booklet is profusely illustrated with photographic reproductions and original sketches. A complete list of all pastors who have served in the First Methodist church is also included. These histories are on sale by the Ladies' Aid society of the local church.

Willing Workers' Bazaar

The bazaar which the Willing Workers' class of the First Methodist church will sponsor tomorrow will be given at the Bligh building store, next to the Food Shop, instead of in one of the rooms on State street, as formerly announced. The new address is 114 South High street.

Pre-Christmas Reception Is Enjoyed at Canse Home

Dr. John M. Canse, president of Kimball School of Theology, and Mrs. Canse entertained faculty members and students yesterday afternoon with a pre-Christmas reception at their home, featured by the singing of old-time carols. Copies of famous pictures of madonnas and similar subjects were on exhibition, and the decorations were suggestive of the Christmas season. Light refreshments were served.

Mrs. Hartley Entertains Round-Up Club

A delightful Christmas meeting of the Round-Up club was held last Monday afternoon when Mrs. Edgar Hartley was hostess for the group and a number of invited guests at bridge and tea. Guests of honor at the meeting were the sisters of the hostess—Mrs. Taylor of Albany and Mrs. R. E. Downing.
