MINISTER REMOVED BY PRESBYTERIANS

Militant Fundamentalist Plans to Carry Fight to General Assembly

LEAD, S. D., Dec. 16—(AP)—Unrocked by the Black Hills Presbytery, A. H. Crombie, militant fundamentalist Presbyterian, plans to carry his fight for vindication to the general assembly of the church as well as to the general public.

Found guilty of insubordination and conduct unbecoming a minister, Mr. Crombie was removed from the ministry by unanimous vote of the Presbytery. Decision of the ecclesiastical court was announced today after a session which started yesterday and lasted until early morning.

Mr. Crombie has been a storm center in the Presbyterian church in South Dakota since last spring, when he was removed as pastor of the First Presbyterian church here after a controversy with his board of elders and congregation. The elders padlocked the church when Mr. Crombie resisted efforts to remove him from his pastorate.

Subsequently he started the Old Faith church here "to preach the Bible as it stands, miracles and all." The state synod suspended him and his trial followed.

MUSSOLINI CITES EXPANSION NEEDS

Asiatic Peril Caused by Mental Barriers Between East and West

(By P. W. Winner.)

ROME, Italy, Dec. 16—(AP)—A Franco-Italian agreement is one of the fundamental necessities of European evolution, Premier Mussolini told a correspondent of the Associated Press, in a lengthy and cordial interview, in which he explained to the American public for the first time the cardinal principles inspiring his foreign policy.

The duce's guiding idea, he declared to the correspondent, is the necessity for providing for Italy's crying need for moral, spiritual and physical expansion by means of a pacific, but not pacifist policy. The fulfillment of these needs Italy's master maintained far from being incompatible with friendship and cooperation with other nations, really requires cooperation and mutual understanding with them, notably with France and England.

Mussolini declared himself to be a firm believer in the restoration of the European balance of power, expressing the conviction that such equilibrium constitutes the formula best adapted for the maintenance of peace.

Referring to the so-called Asiatic peril, he urged the necessity of abandoning the tendency to regard Asiatics as barbarians, giving as his opinion that all perils from the Orient will have ceased to exist when the mental barriers between the eastern and western peoples are broken down.

The leader of fascism received the Associated Press correspondent in his spacious office in Chigi palace.

His face, beaming with health and vigor despite the fact that the reception came after a six hour long constant stream of interviews with cabinet ministers and officials, which would have exhausted any ordinary human being, Mussolini installed himself behind his huge desk as if prepared to withstand a siege, and urged the correspondent to be seated opposite him.

"I am entirely in favor of the restoration of balance and equilibrium of forces in a formula most adapted for maintaining peace," the premier declared. "I believe that if we place two identical weights on the two sides of an ideal weighing balance, equilibrium, in theory, should be maintained indefinitely. But if we place in them a living organism in perpetual growth, the index of the scales will be changed with the velocity equal to that of the difference between the development of the two organisms. The organism which is developing itself with the greater rapidity will soon surpass the weight of the other and will cause the scales to tip in its favor.

"Equilibrium between peoples, which are the most living of all organisms, must therefore be continually re-established.

"In what I have said you will find the answer to the question so often asked of our colonial aspirations and desires. One must not describe Italy as though she were lying in hiding behind a hedge, ready to jump at the throat of the first passing nation, to tear a colony from her hands. This Italian attitude, created in bad faith by the fantasy of certain of our adversaries, is absolutely non-existent.

"We do not believe that it is as yet possible in the present phase of world evolution to abolish war absolutely, and we are therefore trying to be ready to defend ourselves at any moment and against anybody. But I know that the Italian people needs first of all and above all to work.

"Therefore, although our policy is not 'pacifist' in the 'utopian sense' of the word it is, however, essentially 'pacific.'

"Moreover, I have demonstrated this by the numerous pacts I have concluded at every time and in every place possible, and I shall continue firmly along this road.

"I have firm faith that the urgent problem of Italian expansion can be solved by these methods. This faith is based upon recognition of the fact that our greatest problem has been understood throughout the world. The newspapers of all countries, from Scandinavia to America, publish articles explaining and discussing Italian needs and proposing a means of satisfying them.

"I can almost say it has become an international problem. It is international in fact because it is to the interest of everybody that Italians do not suffocate every hour more surely in their narrow borders."

Turning to levantine and Oriental affairs, the duce pointed out that Italy was maintaining friendly relations with Russia and Turkey.

Taking up finally Italy's attitude towards events in the Far East, the duce remarked:

"In regard to eventual future yellow peril I think it depends also a bit upon the accident, to know how to avoid it."

"It is said that the ancient sages of the Orient succeeded by means of analogical methods and by pure force of intuition several billion-years ago in learning the profound varieties, which our occidental scientists with analytical methods are only now finding out—such as for example, that of the unity of matter and energy. It is certain that Asia is the most ancient source of all philosophies and cradles of human thought.

"It is necessary therefore to cease considering Asiatics as barbarians; it is necessary to break down the barriers which separates us from those hundreds and hundreds of millions of men, who do not demand anything more

Rail Semaphores Doomed by Industrial Progress

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The railroad semaphore, whose familiar lines have stood out so long against the sky in metropolises and tank town, is giving way to the march of industrial progress.

Reports to the American Railway association show that electric lights are being substituted for semaphore arms on most of the roads of the country. The electric signals are regarded as more economical, as well as more effective.

Three principal types of lighting have found favor. One involves the use of white lights only, so arranged as to reproduce the lines of the semaphore. Another type employs red, yellow and green lights in semaphore outline, and the third uses the colors individually, like street traffic lights in cities.
