

ALABAMA PUNTING ASTONISHES FANS

Rest Players Chief Occupation of Tide With "Skull Practice"

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Oval leather objects, believed by observers to be footballs, which all morning spiraled beautifully high above the rim of Rose Bowl, brought gasps of astonishment from sports writers gathered outside the locked gates of the arroyo gridiron here where the Crimson Tide from Alabama lashed the turf in practice for the east-west clash with Stanford New Year's Day.

"We don't know what they do when they've got the leather on the ground but those guys from Dixie sure can boot that ball," chorused the would-be practice critics.

Coch Wallace Wade, who pilots the tide, is taking no chances on his pet plays becoming public property. Big policemen systematically clean out the bleachers and brush off the knothole fans from the fence on the south end before Wade and his outfit flows onto the green.

Gordon "Sherlock" Holmes was seen on the crest of the tide during the morning when the bowl was turned over to the Alabamians. Holmes' appendix apparently had subsided completely after an outburst at El Paso, Texas, on the way west, and there were many smiles of confidence when he came out in his football suit. Holmes is rated as one of the country's best pivot men and is counted on to hold down the plunging oaks from Stanford.

Wade has decreed that no more sightseeing or social events shall be indulged in by the tide until after the big game. Rest, he says, will be their chief occupation with a generous amount of "skull practice" while they are resting.

"Pop" Warner, veteran pilot of the Palo Alto champions, changed the hue of the picture in the afternoon with a flock of red shirted gridiron warriors. So far Stanford has had no scrimmage, confining practice to signal drills, setting-up exercises and kicking goals from various angles.

GUARD TEAM STRONG

LOCAL ELEVEN BOLSTERED BY TWO BACKFIELD STARS

The stock of Company B went up several notches yesterday in advance comparisons for the New Year's game with Company M of Corvallis, to be played on Sweetland field, when two strong backfield men were added to the squad. They are Noske, former Salem high school halfback, who last year played for the Oregon freshmen eleven, and Howard Post, Willamette university fullback of two years ago, who arrived in Salem yesterday.

The two additions give the local men a powerful backfield combination, composed entirely of former high school and university stars who can run the ends, cut through the line, or throw passes equally well.

The starting backfield will now consist of Don Kelly, quarterback; Ringle and Noske, halfbacks, and Post, fullback. Ringle, Kelly and Noske are all former Salem high school men.

The team will work out on the Willamette field this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

GRID TITLE PROBLEM

HI SCHOOL ATHLETIC MEETING SCHEDULED TODAY

PORTLAND, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The problem of devising some plan whereby the high school football championship of Oregon may be determined will be discussed at the annual meeting of the Oregon high school athletic association at Lincoln high school tomorrow.

The meeting will be held in connection with the annual session of the Oregon state teachers' association. It is the hope of the state association that some arrangement can be made so that by a program of elimination a state champion can be decided upon. Just what proposals the state principals will offer is not known, but according to J. O. McLaughlin, association secretary, several plans have been drawn up.

Besides the championship issue, the association will discuss other athletic questions, including plans for the annual state basketball tournament. As practically every high school in the state is represented at the teachers' association meeting, a record attendance is expected.

As S. P. Kent was cranking up his car, parked against the curb last night, with the rear wheels jacked up, the axle fell off he jack as the wheels started spinning. It went through the windshield of a car driven by a man named Patzer, who was driving by, and landed on the front seat. Patzer wonders who will pay for his broken windshield.
