Writers' Club Meets at Library for No-Host Meeting on Tuesday

A dozen members of the writers' section of the Salem Arts league met on Tuesday evening for a no-host meeting in the education room at the city library.

Charles J. Lisle, leader of the section, presided. As his own contribution he gave a Santa Claus story, illustrating in an excellent manner the juvenile point of view. Mrs. Blanche Jones read a sonnet, "It Is No Longer Summer," written by Elizabeth Hyde of Portland, a former Willamette university student. Mrs. Ruth Fargo called the attention of the group to Anthony Euwer's letter, published in the Capital Journal, on the Elsinore theater.

Perry Reigelman read a story entitled "The Lie," which he wrote more than a dozen years ago. Mrs. Ora F. McIntyre read the words of a beautiful poem-prayer, "Oh, Lord, Forgive," which her daughter has recently had made into an art-panel.

Miss Maude Covington announced the coming of Carl Sandburg to Salem on Jan. 17, under the auspices of the Salem Dramatic league, and read significant poems from his most recent collection.

Gertrude Robison Ross, who is the romanticist of the group, read the next to the final chapter in her novel, "Nigh to Harvesting."

The group included Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Paylus, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Lisle, Mrs. Ruth Fargo, Mrs. D. F. McIntyre, Mrs. Gertrude Robison Ross, Miss Blanche Jones, Miss Ruth Lawrence, Miss Maude Covington, Otto K. Paulus and Perry Reigelman.

Art Classes Will Meet on Thursday

The University of Oregon art extension courses will continue to meet on Thursdays at the high school instead of on Tuesdays, as was tentatively planned.
