

ALL DAY MEETING HELD AT KEIZER

Community Club Sponsors Light Lunches at School Each Day Now

By Ninth Grade Pupils of Keizer School

An all day community gathering was held at the school on New Year's Day. Before dinner the young folks played games while the older ones visited. At noon a bountiful basket dinner was enjoyed by all, after which a splendid program was given in the assembly room. Seven boys from Chemawa sang. There were other musical features and recitations.

The East Keizer Darning club met at the home of Mrs. C. W. DeCroft this week. Mrs. Poole was a visitor. The club meets semi-monthly.

J. A. Gardner who recently purchased the Unruh place, has started a fox farm. He received six pairs of silver foxes from Portland about a week ago.

We are now having hot lunches at school. The work is being sponsored by the community club. Two women come each day and prepare the lunch.

Mrs. F. W. Fox who has been away nursing, returned home Thursday evening.

The Haystack District Sunday school convention was held at Clear Lake last Sunday. Keizer Sunday school carried off two banners for attendance.

Mrs. C. A. Elliott and family, formerly of Salem are new-comers in the Keizer community. They have purchased the Arthur Richie farm and are improving it for the raising of poultry.

Mr. Pearline and Willard Savage are grading the road west of the schoolhouse.

Mrs. J. E. Bartruff and youngest daughter, Muriel are visiting relatives and friends in southern Illinois and St. Louis.

Mrs. McAllister, the principal of the school, with her daughters Janet and Ruth, has moved to town.

We have two new pupils in our room, Willis Oldenbury and Donald Elliott.

Anna Mae Alsmen, who had moved about six miles out on the Wallace road is now residing in Salem.

Raymond Curry is leaving for Portland Sunday where he will live with his parents. He has been staying with his grandmother.

The next meeting of the community club will be held at the school next Friday evening, Jan. 14. A chicken pie supper will be served, the proceeds of which are to be used for the school hot lunches.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Rose have been spending the holidays with Mrs. Rose's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gardner. Mr. Rose returned to Hood River Monday, but is expected back in two or three weeks.

Only the best! Our patrons will bear this out. We serve only the best in meats and poultry. Hunt & Shaller Market, 265 N. Commercial.

Pantages Indoor Circus Coming to Capitol Theatre

Color and flash of the circus will be the portion of patrons at the Pantages Vaudeville indoor circus Monday and Tuesday. The theater will be transformed from a playhouse to a circus tent with the opening of the first indoor circus to appear in Salem. Manager Bligh of the Capitol theater had a very difficult time trying to find a place large enough to house this circus while playing his theater. All the livery barns were afraid the elephants would break the floors down, but as the last resort Mr. Clearwater is giving up his huge garage and livery barn to the elephants, horses, ponies, dogs, and monkeys.

Miles was hostess in the Green Gate room at The Spa.

Five hundred was the diversion of the evening, with Miss Bobbie Hendrickson winning the high score.

Week-End in Portland
Mrs. Frank Snedecor and Mrs. Henry W. Meyers are spending the week-end in Portland.

CAPTAIN OF PORT OF MISSING MEN OF MISSING MEN

Woman Without Son; Men on Many Seas Call Her "Mother"; Admire Her

NEW YORK.—The Captain of the Port of Missing Men is a woman—a woman without a single son, but with men afloat on seven seas who call her "mother."

She is Mrs. Jane Lord Roper, a house mother at the Seamen's Church Institute, New York City.

She has heard more versions of "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" than any other person still in active service.

And in the last five years, 3000 wanderers have piped up "Here" when she has called their names.

That's her job—finding missing men. But is not the limit of her interests, as thousands of sailors have attested whom she has helped through illness, poverty, joblessness and friendliness.

A tall, spare woman of New England, with eyes wise with tolerance, the house mother at the establishment now boasting 12 story quarters at the tip of Manhattan island, began her work of being a friend to wanderers when she was 16 years old. She distributed religious tracts in the Deepwater Sailor Rooming houses in Boston.

"When I saw men drinking and gambling," she said, "some feeling of consideration made me think that the arrival of a woman, especially a missionary, might be embarrassing. So I always herded my visits with an obvious cough, and it was amusing to see their sheepish faces as the men scooped up the cards and hid them."

"Times have changed now," she added. "Now I don't suppose that anyone feels even a missionary can be shocked."

"This work teaches tolerance, though. When I was 20 years old I could tell a man just what his duty was. Now it isn't so easy. One can learn something now and then from the boys themselves, and the talk of some of my radical and agnostic friends would make your hair curl."

"But there is one fundamental that never has changed: love for one's fellowman is the same today as it was 2000 years ago. These sailors cling to that."

Love, indeed, is what makes the Port of Missing Men a churned-up place. Somebody—a mother, father, sister, brother, or sweetheart—has lost track of a wandering boy.

And Mrs. Roper, with requests from all over the world, gets her lines out and drags him in.

For her services, but more usually for her friendship, many sailors have named her "next to kin," and one such "son," dying in a hospital, was a colored boy.

Mrs. Roper, the widow of a clergyman who joined her in her work among sailors, has been with the local church Institute since it took over its present headquarters 12 years ago. Before then the Institute was a floating barge.

Trained to meet any emergency, the house mother has encountered odd sides of her multitudinous wards. Recently a seaman handed her $18 with a request that a notice be posted for one Pat Breen.

"I stuck a gun in his ribs a week ago and took his roll," explained the seaman. "But I don't enjoy the kale. See that he gets it back, will you?"

And Mrs. Roper did. Vibbert & Todd Electric store, High at Ferry SAs. Agents for the Easy Washer. Good service and low prices are bringing an increasing trade to this store. (*)

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Tennessee has in its library an "autographed" photograph of Sitting Bull, Sioux Indian Chief, whose band massacred General Custer and his force.

D. P. Wrenne of Nashville, furnished the photograph to the state. It was sent to Mr. Wrenne by Edwin A. Coles, Dakota Indian trader, together with a letter to his Nashville friend, dated Fort Yates, Dakota, 1886, explaining how the "autograph" of the dangerous chief was obtained.

Sitting Bull refused to autograph his likeness and after much persuasion Mr. Coles wagered the Indian that he could not even sign his own name. At this the Chief took resentment, and did write his name, "Sitting Bull," in lead pencil on a strip of brown paper. Mr. Coles later pasted the strip bearing the signature on the picture. "He after much persuasion wrote this for us this evening," wrote Mr. Coles. "The old cuss has been sitting in my chair in the office all day, and I don't dare ask him to give it up. He says white man waits on Sioux."

hard shell will solve the difficulty and save the plug.

Sea birds, such as shags, often light in range and play havoc with the smelt and smaller fry. These are easy marks as they generally don't mind being shot at and will set around till a bullet catches them.

If the sportsman is a habitual fisherman and is willing to stand the discomfort of fishing in salt spray and a good gale, with the waves smashing into the rocks at his feet and licks plenty of action with fish that are a fair match for his tackle at any time but here are given the advantage of shifting currents and hidden rocks, the sea bass on the Oregon coast will certainly meet the requirements.

Duke of York Not Strong for Style of Clothing

LONDON.—It is no secret that the Prince of Wales dresses with more taste than his brother, the Duke of York. The Duke of York often shocks his tailor by ordering as many as six suits of identical pattern at one time, thus sacrificing the convenience the chances of a change in masculine fashion.
