REMITTING OF BAIL MONEY QUESTIONED

Recob Furnished $2,000 Bond; Amount Forfeited While in East

Governor Pierce yesterday signed an order remitting to Frank Recob of Tillamook county $2,000 bail money which he posted pending appeal of a criminal case to the state supreme court.

Evidence placed before Governor Pierce showed that upon Recob's conviction of a prohibition violation he posted $2,000 bail pending appeal to the supreme court. He later went to Illinois, and before his return to Oregon found that his attorney had died and that his appeal had not been perfected. The bail later was forfeited by the courts.

Recob based his plea for return of the bail money on the grounds that he was not notified of his attorney's death, and had no knowledge that the bail had been forfeited until he returned to Oregon from the east.

Attorneys said that inasmuch as the bail money had been turned over to the county treasurer there was a legal question as to whether it could be remitted under the executive order.

job, which will enable the members of the legislature and the employes thereof to secure lunches during the session.

Additional supplies will be provided by the secretary of state's office, upon request, with the exception of printed letterheads and envelopes, which can be ordered through the chief clerk of house or senate.

News Bureaus Ready

The "most important" part of the thirty-fourth legislative assembly. News-gathering organizations will have old-timers in every case back covering the actions of the senate and house.

Special writers for Portland papers are already here in the person of regular correspondents. The regular political writers of Portland are moving their camp from the lobby of the Imperial hotel to the lobby of the state house. They will arrive here Sunday afternoon following the republican caucus in Portland Sunday morning.

The Oregonian will be represented by John Kelly, Clark Williams, and Wayne Pettit. Kelly is political editor, Williams is assistant city editor and Sunday editor, and Pettit is correspondent of Salem.

The Oregon Journal will have Ralph Watson, political editor; Lou Havermale, Portland city hall man, Al Linbeck, regular Salem correspondent.

For the Portland Telegram Harry Hansen, political editor, will be in charge, and will be assisted by Harold Say, marine editor, and Steve Stone, regular Salem correspondent.

name & telephone company will have branch offices in the lobby. Three Portland newspapers, The Oregonian, Oregon Journal and The Telegram, will have special leased wires.

Miss Frances Bowman and Miss Ruth Thomas, experienced long distance operators, will have charge of the branch exchange in the lobby. Service will be maintained from 8 a. m. through the state house operators and outside of those hours through the main office.

Earl Morarity of Spokane is here to assist the Western Union during the session. The Western Union branch office in the lobby will be open between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m.

Fred Zimmerman, Associated Press operator, will handle The Oregonian's leased wire. Jim Preble, Corvallis, will be operator for the Oregon Journal's day-time leased wire, and Bob Corey, Portland commercial operator, will work The Telegram lease.

C. H. Corson, wire chief for the telephone company has been in charge of the installation of telegraphed leased wires and extra telephone equipment. Though the circuit used for these services are only used every two years, the telephone company has run permanent, expensive lead cables into the building.

"The tangle of wires of all kinds behind these solid-looking white panels is amazing," Mr. Corson said.

The fascist council also approved the drawing up of a "charter of labor," designed to render more efficient the productive life of the nation by arranging class cooperation under direct control of the state. This document, which is hailed as the "magna charta of labor," is based on the elimination of class war and the coordination of laws controlling all labor matters.

By decision of the council there will be no further admission for the present of adults into fascist party, whose membership is placed at 940,000.
