made in the house by Representative Eaton, republican, New Jersey, who asked his colleagues whether they proposed to stand "for the president of the United States or the president of Mexico."

Declaring the "real danger," in Mexico, was bolshevism, Mr. Eaton said the United States "cannot and will not stand idly by." He protested against "the attempt now being made by certain politicians, in and out of the house, to create a partisan issue out of the present situation."

Rep. Huddleston, democrat, Alabama, in reply read an editorial describing Secretary Kellogg's bolshevistic statement as "an indecent intellectual exposure."

Renewing the discussion later, Representative Gilbert, democrat, Kentucky, accused President Coolidge of listening to the "call of the dollars," and asked when the United States had become a "bill collector," for Europe.

The Nicaraguan minister in his statement asserted that Adolfo Diaz had been elected president in the manner prescribed by the constitution and should serve out the full term.

He denied statements by Senator Borah that Diaz participated in the coup d'etat of General Chamorro preceding the retirement of President Solorzano.

Referring to President Coolidge's statement to congress last Monday that Sacasa delegates to the Corinto conference last October had said that to accept any other government than the one presided over by Juan B. Sacasa "would be a breach of faith with their allies." The minister said this statement of the Sacasa followers could be found in the minutes of the Corinto conference.

support of a large number of legislators.

It was said that an effort might be made to repeal the certificate of title law at the present session of the legislature as well as amend the light law which has caused considerable dissatisfaction.

The bill providing for a separate motor vehicle department independent of the secretary of the secretary of state, public service commission and state highway division, probably will be completed early next week. This measure probably will provide among other things the employment of a motor vehicular commissioner at a salary of $4500 a year. Sam A. Koser, secretary of state, has been mentioned in connection with this office.

Under the present laws there are four separate motor vehicle divisions. The secretary of state has charge of the issuance of licenses, certificates of title and polling the highways, while the public service commission administers the law relating to the operation of trucks and buses. The state highway department has general supervision of all state roads. The state traffic division, while affiliated with the state department, is operated under the direction of an official known as the chief inspector for the motor vehicle department.

Persons interested in this bill said the consolidation program would eliminate expense and confusion, and increase the efficiency in enforcing the traffic regulations. This bill has the indorsement of a large number of motor vehicle organizations.

Legislators here yesterday said there was a tendency in all sections of the state to relieve rather than add to the burdens of the motor vehicle owners.

500 STUDENTS MEET

MANY HIGH SCHOOL EDITORS ASSEMBLE AT EUGENE

EUGENE, Jan. 14.—(AP)—From every nook and corner of the state the leaders of Oregon's 28,000 high school students poured into Eugene today and plunked eagerly into an intensive two day conference on problems of high school student administration, publication of newspapers and magazines and similar topics.

With a few stragglers arriving throughout the day the registration stood well toward the 500 mark tonight, a total not surpassed at any of the previous six conferences held at the University of Oregon.

Tomorrow the chief item of business facing the delegates is election of officers. The girls' league association elected its officers at the afternoon session today. They are Ethel Elliott of Medford, president, and Harriet Klumt of Franklin high school, Portland, secretary.

a year ago when he transmitted the human voice over a beam of ordinary light for the first time, an achievement that Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, attempted half a century earlier without success.

Hundreds today heard a human voice, coming through the ether as part of a radio broadcast sent over a beam of ultra-violet light. When a person's hand, or any other object was thrust into the path of the light beam, the sound ceased. When the obstruction was withdrawn the loud speaker once more transmitted the voice, now in jazzy popular song, again in ordinary talk, with power and fidelity.

Speaking of the value of ultra-violet rays to health, Dr. Stockbarger asserted that it was possible to say that he day was in prospect when these rays no longer would be shut off by windowpanes. Laboratory work, he said, would make the health-giving rays available to persons indoors.

Aged and obliterated documents now may be read by means of the ultra-violet rays. Checks that have been changed by erasing with chemicals or with rubber and then raised to a higher figure, may be detected. Examples of this work were shown on a screen.

Study of the chemical action of the rays, he said, was beginning to enable the public to benefit economically through the longer life of rubber and paint that defied the effects of the sun. Rubber exposed to the sun, he said, is injured by the invisible rays and should be covered or painted.

be additional joint agreements with county officials, and probably some surveying in the field. But it should be possible to eliminate piecemeal boundary changes.

"I urge that all bills covering county boundaries be prepared with the idea that each county boundary be completely described in one section. It is no more difficult to handle the matter this way than in the old way."

Carl Sandburg Will Speak in Salem on Monday Evening

The great Carl Sandburg, biographer of Abraham Lincoln, will be a guest in Salem on Monday evening, January 17, at Waller Hall. The author and poet will speak concerning, and read from, his own works.

"Carl Sandburg is often compared to Whitman, and has frequently been called the successor of Whitman. He uses unrhymed lines that have a pleasant cadence; he catalogues objects; he surveys wild plains, great spaces, towns, as Whitman did; he likes the homely words of his native land.

"Carl Sandburg comes on the scene from the labor stratum, from among people who had always worked hard."

"Sandburg's truth is seeing things plain, free from false glamour, insincere valuation; his intensity, his fearlessness in theme and his freedom in the use of words is part of this honest attitude."

Sandburg will appear in Salem under the auspices of the Salem Dramatic league, sponsors of the Moroni Olsen Players.

Moroni Olsen Players Will Follow Up "Dear Brutus" in "Outward Bound"

It may have been from the line in the second act of "Dear Brutus"—"Wouldn't it be awful to wake up in the morning, daddy, and find one wasn't alive?"—that Moroni Olsen got the inspiration to follow up that play with "Outward Bound."

At any rate, that is exactly what all the characters in "Outward Bound" do. And it is "awful" too, for them, although most amusing for the audience. That is, at first; later on—but that's a different story.

The Moroni Olsen Players in "Outward Bound," by Sutton Vane are coming to the Elsinore theater on January 27.

Theatergoers everywhere are accustomed to associating the SRO sign with the Moroni Olsen Players, since in 75 per cent of the 60 towns on their last tour "Standing room only" was all that could be obtained on the night of their performance. And advance reports on "Outward Bound" indicate that this percentage is steadily increasing. "The reason must be a reason!" Reprinted from the Independent Magazine, April 26, 1924: "What is a good play? Many pages of analysis could be written on the subject, but the easiest and shortest answer is "Outward Bound." As pure theater—that alluringly esthetically dangerous compound cality of approach. We are prepared to find the wastrel well looked after when he finally reaches "the other side" since he is generous and lovable, as well as weak, but the scene of his final "assignment" to his mother, the forlorn little charwoman, is a completely touching moment.

"Although there is imaginative novelty in his theory that the suicide's punishment is a return to life, Mr. Vane has presented no new moral problems, he has not written arresting poetry nor profound philosophy; but because he is human, tolerant, and above all a canny and ready man of the theater, he has made us travel quite breathlessly with his bewildered shipload of souls."
