Center: Mrs. Thomas Atchensons and two little daughters, Helen Jane, aged five, and Mary Elizabeth, aged two. Mrs. Atchensons is the wife of Rev. Mr. Atchensons, pastor of the Jason Lee Memorial church. Lower left: Mrs. John Crandall Watson (Beverly Roberts) whose marriage was an event of last night at St. Paul's Episcopal church. The wedding is probably the loveliest which has ever been seen in Salem. Lower right: Mrs. Charles Stricklin and her little daughter, Nancy Jean, who will celebrate her fifth birthday in March.

THE WIFE

By Theodosia Garrison

The little Dreams of Maidenhood—
I put them all away
As tenderly as mother would
The toys of yesterday.
When little children grow to men
Too over-wise for play.

The little dreams I put aside—
I loved them every one,
And yet since moon-blown buds must hide
Before the noon-day sun,
I close them wistfully away
And give the key to none.

O little Dreams of Maidenhood—
Lie quietly, nor care
If some day in an idle mood
I, searching unaware
Through some closed corner of my heart,
Should laugh to find you there.

Beverly Helen Roberts Becomes Bride Last Night at St. Paul's Church

At the altar of St. Paul's Episcopal church, softly lighted with many cathedral candles, Miss Beverly Helen Roberts, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Roberts, became the bride of Mr. John Crandall Watson at eight-fifteen o'clock last night. Reverend H. Duncan Chambers, rector of St. Paul's, officiated, using the single ring service.

Professor T. S. Roberts, at the organ, played a prelude of wedding music preceding the ceremony, the numbers including "Intermezzo," by Rogers, "Memories," by St. Clair, and Frysinger's "Benediction Nuptial." Professor Roberts played the processional from "Lohengrin" as the bridal party, approached the sanctuary.

A decorative plan of orchid and silver was used throughout in the adornment of the church and in the costumes of the bridesmaids and flower girl. Lighted candles gleamed among the flowers and foliage. Heather, many palms, and lavender chrysanthemums were used profusely in the chancel. The nave, leading to the altar, was outlined with white tulle ribbon, with only white carnations in the altar.

Little Miss Mary Patricia Livesley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Livesley, as ring bearer, in a white frock as ruffled as a feather plume, led the procession. A white silk veil fell from her flaxen hair. She carried the ring on a white satin pillow.

The maid of honor and the six bridesmaids, following the ring bearer in stately single file, were all gowned alike in picturesque costumes of silk velvet in a deep shade of orchid. Each costume, made with tight bodice, sleeveless, and with hems short in front and long in back, was worn with a filmy orchid half-length veil, falling from bands of orchid and silver ribbon. Each bridesmaid carried a gorgeous arm bouquet of butterfly roses and pink, white, and lavender sweet peas tied with a bow of lavender ribbon. The silver and brocade pumps of the attendants, some with jeweled heels, were all worn with rhinestone buckles, the gifts of the bride to her maids.

Miss Darrell Torrey of Portland followed the ring bearer. After her, in turn, were Miss Janet Plimpton of Seattle, Miss Nancy Thielsen, Miss Charlotte Zieher, Miss Dorothy Livesley, and Miss Mildred Roberts, sister of the bride.

Miss Virginia Coke of Portland, as maid of honor, came next in the procession. Her frock, distinguished from that of the maids, was fashioned with a high, tilted Elizabethan collar faced with silver. Her arm bouquet was of butterfly roses, freesias, and sweet peas tied with pink ribbon.

The flower girl, Miss Ann Reed Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Burns, was distinctive in orchid, ruffled net with a single ornament of rhinestones. She carried a basket of rose petals which she scattered in the path of the bride.

The beautiful bride, on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage, followed immediately after the flower girl. The bride, who is vivid and petite in her loveliness, was as comely a bride as Salem has ever honored. The wedding gown, made on simple lines, was exquisite in its detail. A full Elizabethan collar followed the same plan Mrs. A. B. Kelsey used in the designing of the dress for the maid of honor, Mrs. Kelsey having full charge of all costumes but the bridal gown. The wedding gown, in contrast, was heavily quilted in silver to a depth of 18 inches. An uneven hemline and the quaint, tight bodice were features of the white frock. The bride's veil of beautiful handmade lace fell in train length from a lace cap. This head-dress, of real lace, was worn with fresh gardenias.

Miss Lucille De Witte adjusted the bride's veil at the entrance. The bride's shower bouquet was a lovely arrangement of lilies of the valley, orchids, and roses, with white satin streamers. Her only ornament was a very long strand of pearls.

Mr. Carl Gabrielson attended the groom as best man. The ushers included Ted Young of Albany, James Rice of Pendleton, Willard Marshall, Charles Coffey, Walter Fuhrer, and Malcolm Smith.

The entire company of 250 guests stood as the impressive ritual was read. Professor Roberts played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the recessional.

A formal reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents on State street.

The living and dining rooms, decorated by Breithaupt who had complete charge of the flowers at the church as well as all bouquets, were in rose, pink, and white.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Roberts were assisted in the reception rooms by Mrs. W. E. Burns, Mrs. T. C. Smith Jr., Mrs. William Plimpton of Seattle, Mrs. O. C. Locke, Mrs. William Walton, Mrs. Curtis Cross, Mrs. A. Stronz, and Mrs. R. W. Hans Seltz.

Refreshments were served in both the dining room and in the downstairs billiard room. Great baskets of red carnations centered the tables. At the first table Mrs. Fritz Slade and Mrs. Asahel Bush presided at the urns, while at the second table Mrs. T. A. Livesley and Mrs. Percy Young of Albany presided.

Included in a group of the younger matrons and maids who assisted in the serving were Mrs. Donald Young, Mrs. Harry Hawkins, Mrs. Dan J. Fry, Jr., Mrs. Clifton Irwin, Miss Mary Lou Aiken, Miss Lou Thompson, Mrs. Paul Hendricks, and Mrs. John H. Carson.

Mrs. John J. Roberts, mother of the bride, was exceedingly charming in an imported decolette gown of white silk with all-over embellishment of medallions of rhinestones and crystal beads. She wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

Mrs. Watson, who has been honored with all the delights that Salem society could devise, is a graduate of St. Helen's Hall in Portland. Mr. Watson, the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Watson of Portland is a graduate of St. Mary's in Oakland. He has won much recognition in athletic circles, in fact the name of "Red" Watson is a familiar one all along the coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Watson left after the reception for a short wedding trip. The bride's going away costume was a becoming frock of blue tuck silk. Her coat was of ponyskin, with beaver trim, and her hat a close fitting model in gold and brown. Her accessories were in alligator.

After the first of February, Mr. and Mrs. Watson will be at home in San Francisco.

North Salem W. C. T. U.
Mrs. Charles Oglesby was hostess on Thursday afternoon for members of the North Salem W. C. T. U. at her home on the corner of Highland and Hazel avenues. The subjects of "Anti-Narcotics" was discussed. Plans were made for work for the Children's Farm Home near Corvallis.

At the business meeting two new members were introduced. Refreshments were served. At the meeting of the group next month Mrs. Pendleton will be hostess at her home on Maple avenue. Mrs. O. E. Hogue will assist.
