 plications for entrance. It is also probable that Salem high school will be entered in the ensemble groups this year.

Carl Sandburg Will Be in Salem Tomorrow Night

The greatest literary figure who will appear in Salem this year is no doubt the great American writer, Carl Sandburg, who will speak from the platform at Waller Hall at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening.

Mr. Sandburg will read from his own numerous published books.
 Mr. Sandburg is probably best known for his Chicago poems and as a biographer of Abraham Lincoln.

Harry Hansen says this of Sandburg, the poet: "To me there is something thoroughly wholesome about the fact that Carl Sandburg has been so highly valued. For he came, about ten years ago, with rough, horny hands, into the temple of the muses. Sandburg sings always of the familiar, things of what he knows best; that is why his verse is always so pictorial. He has always been a part of the life around him, an active participant in the work of his generation."

Sandburg will appear in Salem tomorrow under the auspices of the Salem Dramatic League.

Faculty Women's Club Will Meet

Miss Frances M. Richards, assisted by "Miss Edith" Denise and Miss Alida G. Currey, will entertain members of the Faculty Women's club on Thursday afternoon at Lausanne Hall.

Newly Organized Bridge Club
Meets at Probert Home

A delightful afternoon was spent on Thursday by the group of young matrons who make up the personnel of a newly organized bridge club when Mrs. S. H.
 Probert was hostess.

A basket of spirea was lovely on the tea table on which delicately tinted candles burned.

The high score of the afternoon was won by Mrs. Willard Wirtz.
 The prize will be awarded at the end of the season.

At the refreshment hour Mrs.
 James McClellan and Mrs. Charles Stricklin assisted the hostess.

In two weeks Mrs. R. H. Bal-dock will entertain.

The members of the club are:
 Mrs. R. H. Baldock, Mrs. Reed Chambers, Mrs. C. N. Laughridge, Mrs. James McClellan, Mrs. Harry
