

NEWS OF THE STAGE AND SCREEN

Elmore Theater
A young manish business woman who is an adept at everything except dress and the art of winning the attentions of men, an aged grandmother flapper who undertakes to teach her how to make herself attractive, and a young inventor of an egg beater, are three of the principal characters in Leatrice Joy's new star picture, "The Clinging Vine," which will be on view at the Elmore theater for two days, January 18, 19, 20 and 21. Tom Moore and Robert Edeson are featured in this enchanting comedy.

"Such a story as is developed in 'The Clinging Vine,'" recently said Miss Joy, "could only have happened in this country. The heroine is a successful business girl, the private secretary of the president of a paint manufacturer. She is so busy exploiting her products, that she forgets about looks, or clothes or men, except as business associates."

"When she gets out of her office and tailored suits, she is like a fish out of water, and men run away from her. She suffers, but like a true American, she does not despair. Being a regular girl, she determines to win masculine admiration. She puts herself in the hands of an old flapper, who coaches her in the art of attracting men."

"This granddama of 'The Clinging Vine,' is distinctly American. She is modern, witty, active and perennially young. Her hair is cut in the latest French bob, and her gowns are the last word in smartness. She is old-fashioned only in her belief that a man, though he may admire self-reliance in a woman, yet gives his worship to the 'clinging vine.'"

"With the American gambler's spirit of trying anything once, the heroine takes Granddama's advice. The plot moves along merrily and snappily to a splendid climax. I regard this picture as one of the best in which I have appeared, and it afforded me much pleasure to play the stellar role. I'm sure the public will like it immensely."

Oregon Theater
Decidedly scoring a bullseye, the Metropolitan picture, "Meet the Prince," a high grade comedy drama in which laughs and sighs are happily blended, will create a profound impression showing at the Oregon theater for four days, January 18, 19, 20 and 21. Every role of this charming production is interpreted by a thorough screen artist, the list of featured players including Joseph Schildkraut, Marguerite De La Motte, Vera Steadman, Julia Faye and David Butler. Their combined efforts provide more than one hour's delightful entertainment. The story is great, the settings superb, the characterizations artistic and the climaxes thrilling to a degree. It was directed by Joseph Henabery with splendid results. It's well worth seeing.

pared by Senator Davis. One of the most important bills fathered by Senator Davis would authorize the irrigation and drainage securities commission to enter into agreements on behalf of the state of Oregon with the secretary of the interior, for the cooperation by the state of Oregon with the United States in securing and selecting settlers and promoting the development of the irrigation projects.

This bill applies only to such irrigation districts as are constructed by the federal government under the provisions of the United States reclamation act. It was provided in the bill that no contract shall be entered into obligation has been made by the legislature.

A bill introduced by Senator Elliott provides that the fiscal year for the registration of motor vehicles shall begin December 1 and end November 30, and that any registration made on or after June 1 of any year but one-half of the annual fee shall be paid. For any registration made on or after September 1 of any year but one-fourth of the annual fee shall be required.

The salary of the county treasurer of Malheur county would be increased from $1200 to $1500 a year under a bill introduced by Senator Davis. In event a bill introduced by Senator Banks becomes a law the expense of employing election boards in precincts where voting machines are used would be reduced from $80 to $21. The saving would be approximately $59. In precincts using voting machines one election board comprising three members would serve instead of two boards with five members as under the present statutes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 17.—(AP) — Counsel representing Charles Spencer Chaplin, motion picture comedian, today filed an application in the state supreme court asking that the recently appointed receivers of Chaplin's property in Los Angeles be enjoined from proceeding further, but the petition was denied "without prejudice."

The petition was the usual brief plea filed in such actions, holding that Superior Judge Walton J. Wood of Los Angeles "exceeded his jurisdiction" in appointing the receiver and that the appellants "had no plain, speedy or orderly remedy in the ordinary course of the law" and that the extraordinary appeal to the highest court was therefore necessary.

Carl Sandburg Entertains Audience With His Poems

Poet Appears Under Auspices of Salem Dramatic League; Dwells With Sympathy on Intimate History of Abraham Lincoln

By AUDRED BUNCH
A prophet, in the person of Carl Sandburg, poet of America, received recognition in his own land last night at Waller Hall when he entertained practically a full, and certainly an enthusiastic audience, under the auspices of the Salem Dramatic League.

Sandburg, author of seven books, is one of the acknowledged literary figures of the age.

A diverse and delightful program began with the introduction of the poet, Charles Alexander of Albany, author and editor, worded it.

The poet, dressed in unobtrusive iron gray, and wearing black spats, read and spoke in a resonant voice, now soft, now deep. The first of his books, entitled "Chicago Poems," was written 11 years ago. The second, "Cornhuskers," which followed, is a panoramic portrayal of the region which lies between the Allegheny and the Rocky Mountains. The third book, "Smoke and Steel," was followed by "Slabs of the Sunburst West."

The three Rutebaga books are filled with philosophy and significant overtones for the mature and sophisticated reader and with rhythms, repetitions, and whimsies for the child, the naive in the audience. This double appeal, says Mr. Sandburg, is the true index to the perfect child story.

Mr. Sandburg dwelt with affection and sympathy on the intimate history of Abraham Lincoln, whose biography he has become. He made the note that 2700 books have been written since his death. Mr. Sandburg's biography of Lincoln proved to be much more extensive than he anticipated: first, because the material concerning him was so abundant, and second "because I found Lincoln the most companionable character I have ever had the pleasure of meeting."

Mr. Sandburg described the break of the modern poet from the traditions, how at last the poet came to discover that in the language there are certain musical syllables that can be used to advantage.

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAR UP UGLY, BROKEN OUT SKIN

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Menthosulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.

Menthosulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Rowles Menthosulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream.

rhythm in lieu of regular meter. A number of those given may be listed as follows: "Broken-faced Gargoyles," "Cahoots," "Jonah's Tomb," "Drum Fantasia," "Night Stuff."

Mr. Sandburg left his audience uproarious when he granted a "Rutebaga Story" as an encore. The closing group on his program consisted of songs with guitar accompaniment.

These were the numbers: "Cotton Belt," "Potato Famine," "The Doughnut Man," "Illinois Song," "Arrangement of Negro Spirituals." During Mr. Sandburg's stay in Salem he is being entertained as the house-guest of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Richard Wetjen. Mr. Sandburg's Salem engagement was his first in Oregon. A large delegation came from Portland to hear him. Tonight he will go to Corvallis to speak.
