Antoinette Allen, secretary to T. M. Bancroft, president of a paint company, is actual head of the organization because she dominates Bancroft wholly. Known as "A. B.," she buys an option on a deposit of "emeraldite," a mineral which has been previously imported, and while the board of directors is discussing the matter, she tells them that she has already secured the option. A mild panic ensues as deposited in "The Clinging Vine."

Jimmy Manning, Bancroft's grandson, gets a letter from "A. B.," informing him that he is fired. He hopes to get rich by selling a patent egg beater he has invented. Although he has never seen her, he hides "A. B." because he thinks her mannish sort of woman he despises. Old Bancroft gets the egg beater and sends for "A. B." to come to his Connecticut home. She meets Grandma, who is a great flapper. She takes "A. B." under her wing and induces her to wear French heels, fluffy frocks instead of business gowns, and to use cosmetics. Grandma insists "A. B." stop nicknamed Ann, be a bonehead, flutter her eyelids and flatter the men, by doing which she'll be a knockout. Ann, who has heard herself criticized as a terrible frump, accedes to Grandma's plans.

Jimmy and Ann instantly fall in love with each other. B. Harvey Phillips, a villain, seeks to monopolize Ann. He pretends to have bought an option on "emeraldite," and induces several persons to invest various sums. Ann forces Bancroft to invest $15,000 in Jimmy's egg beater, and later Phillips induces Jimmy to invest the entire sum in "emeraldite," he taking the money.

It is up to Ann to save Jimmy's money so that they may be married. She takes a rose Jimmy has brought from his wornout farm, and sowing a flower pot with emeraldite, she plants the hose there.

Capitol

The "Red Kimono" will have its first local showing today at the Bligh Capitol theater.

White slaying is not an easy subject to discuss from any standpoint and yet the shameful traffic in girlhood is one of the most serious evils society has to contend with.

In presenting the "Red Kimono" to the public Mrs. Wallace Reid has placed the blame where it most frequently belongs—on the ignorance and trust of the innocent victim rather than at the door of youthful delinquency—and makes her picture a lesson perhaps, a warning certainly, but never a preachment unless her picture of a certain class of publicity hungry idle rich could be considered in the light of a sermon against insincerity.

The "Red Kimono" was lifted almost in its entirety from the records of the Los Angeles superior court and the story of Gabrielle, "Gabrielle" of the "Red Kimono" is a masterpiece, both from the standpoint of a thrilling, never to be forgotten drama, and as a daring humane and tender plea for "another chance" for those who have found the current of life too strong for them.

This picture will be shown for three days starting today at Bligh's Capitol theater.

Oregon Theater

Proving itself to be one of the most delightful comedy dramas ever shown in this city, the Metropolitan picture, "Meet the Prince" featuring Joseph Schildkraut, Marguerite De La Motte, Vera Steadman, Julia Faye and David Butler, was shown with great success at the Oregon theater yesterday and will be shown there three days January 19-20-21.

This is an exceptionally attractive picture, the story dealing with a Russian prince and his sister who are forced to flee from Russia during the revolution and seek asylum in America. The prince hides his identity and becomes a butler in the household of an oil man of great wealth, while the princess finds employment at coaching the oil millionaire in good manners so that he may marry the American girl whom her brother secretly loves but of whose attachment the princess has no knowledge. This brings about humorous and dramatic complications, but the climax ends happily for all concerned.

Mr. Schildkraut as the prince and Marguerite De La Motte as the "girl," acquitted themselves in a highly artistic manner. Julia Faye as the princess who finally wins the oil man portrayed by David Butler, was unusually attractive and engaging, while Vera Steadman as a beautiful society girl and Helen Dunbar, as the mother, rendered effective portrayals. "Meet the Prince" is a great picture and quite worth one's while. Don't miss it.

"Courts ought to be and are very reluctant to interfere with the will of the people as expressed at an election, but cannot validate an election of this character wherein there has been a total failure to follow the plain and explicit mandate of the statute as specifically pointed out by this court in Briggs vs Stevens, under date of July 30, 1926."

as members of the group. The expenses of the investigation are to be appropriated out of the 34th assembly funds and to be declared a part of its expense.

The resolution gives the committee the right "to call upon the public service commission or any other officer, board or commisemploy counsel and such other technical and other assistance as may be deemed necessary and expedient to accomplish the purposes of the act." The committee also has the right to file any complaints and carry out proceedings before any organizations or bodies, which may appear to be justified.

The commission is "authorized and directed to make or cause to be made a complete and thorough investigation into the rates, service, practices and valuations of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company in the state of Oregon and the incorporate relations in this state and elsewhere between the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company, the American Telephone & Telegraph company, the Western Electric company and other associated corporations, and to all matters whatsoever having relation to rates."

The committee is to file a report and findings of facts at the next session of the legislature in two years.

Ex-Governor Pierce recommended in his farewell address that this investigation be made. For some time past numerous complaints have been heard regarding the rates, etc. of the telephone company, and the sponsors of the resolution consider it only fair to the public in general that a complete investigation be made. In the event the company is not conducting any illegal practices, it is also considered fair to them that the facts be shown.
