January 21, 1927
 O grave, where is thy victory? O death, where is thy sting? The sting of death is sin; and the power of sin is the law; but thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. 1 Cor. 15:55, 57.

HELPING THE STATE TREASURY

The insurance department of the state of Oregon collected last year for that department proper $702,789.32, and for the fire marshal department $42,709.17. Total, $745,498.49—And at a total expense of $32,904.49, or 4.41 per cent.

As a result of the audit of insurance accounts, $22,618 of the total was collected, and $6,152 is in process of collection. That looks like a very good showing for that department. It is helping substantially in providing the general expenses of the state government. There is a bill before the legislature now that will, if enacted, substantially increase the revenues of that department. It is senate bill 30, introduced by Senator Carsner.

The indications are that this department will soon be producing over a million dollars a year net for general state expenses.

It is helping to balance the budget. And it behooves the legislature at the present session to devise other ways to help in this respect.

LAGGING BEHIND

The sugar acreage in England increased from 54,000 acres in 1925 to 125,800 acres last year. Three more beet sugar factories are to be built in England. The first factory in Scotland, at Cupar, Fifeshire, was formally opened the first week of this month, by Lady Gilmour, wife of the secretary of state for Scotland. Another factory is planned for Scotland—

Though in England and Scotland the per acre tonnage is only a little above eight. It should be over 15 here in the Salem district.

The first beet sugar factory for Turkey, at Uschak, in the hinterland of Smyrna, went into operation the middle of December. The second factory for that country, located in Thrace, has since started operations. Built by a German firm.

The U. S. department of agriculture has been provided with a fund to develop special strains of Jerusalem artichokes for making levulose sugar.

A number of new beet sugar factories are projected in the Rocky mountain states—

And so it goes. The world is going to be short a million tons this year in its needed cane and beet sugar supplies, to keep pace with the normal increase of consumption.

And the Willamette valley, capable of producing twice two millions of tons of beet sugar, without missing the land devoted to sugar beet growing, lies fallow—

Capable of producing this tonnage and at the same time increasing vastly the production of other crops, on account of the benefits of this clean, rotation crop, and the added benefits of its by-products in live stock feeding.

Salem should have several beet sugar factories, and every city and town in the valley ought to have one or more—

But let's get the first one, and be about it now, and not lose another year.

Away back in the latter eighties or early nineties, the live wires of Salem put up the money and started a cannery. Result, eight canneries in Salem now, and many other packing institutions. These canneries packed last year over a million cases of fruits and vegetables. Perhaps over 1,100,000 cases. Who knows what results may come from our proposed Prun-Port factory, and a number of others that we are getting started, in due course of time?

Bits For Breakfast

Fair, brisk north winds—

That's the weather man's hunch, and that means cold. But the south wind and spring are just around the corner.

Mrs. Nero has done a great work for Salem, with her Salem Artist Series entertainments. She has worked very hard, partly for the love of the work and her old home town folks. The fourth event, and the greatest, is by Reinald Werrenrath, America's most popular baritone, at the Elsinore on Tuesday next. The house should be filled; every seat taken, and standing room at a premium. Salem owes this to Mrs. Nero, in order to prevent a possible loss to her on account of her ambitious undertaking for their good, and their city's.

Just a few years ago, the first ten rows or so of celery were planted in the Lake Labish district—looking to a commercial celery industry. It grew. Has grown every year. Is now well on the way to a million dollar annual crop, and with a world wide reputation. It goes on its quality. And its possibilities are only in their beginning. The Slogan pages of next Thursday will tell more about the industry.

There are ambitious plans for an annual increase in the flax industry at the penitentiary. It will provide its own revenues, if it can be properly backed. And go very far in making the penitentiary self supporting.

Talking about corn, the Slogan subject of yesterday's Statesman, paper may be made from corn stalks. There is a proposition to build a factory at Ames, Iowa, for making paper from corn. The congressmen from that district, Cole and Dickinson, are asking congress to help with an appropriation of $50,000. The scheme is sponsored by the Iowa State college. One of these fine days, we may have a paper mill in Salem using corn stalks as its raw material. Experiments in Iowa show that two grades of paper may be made from this material, one of them good enough for book and high class writing paper. Any thing that grows and will stand up has some cellulose in it. That is what paper is made of.

Eugene people who are in Salem include F. E. Sumner, E. L. Hollenbom, M. A. Dobbin, C. A. Lee and E. S. Barnett.

Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Wicker are visiting in Salem from their home at Medford.

LINEN INDUSTRY GROWING RAPIDLY

R. O. Snelling of Oregon Mills Tells Realtors of Flax Prospects

Now that the Oregon Linen Mills, Inc., plant is in operation, the prospects for an even greater flax and linen industry in Salem are brighter than before. R. O. Snelling, manager of the new mill, told the members of the Marion-Polk County Realty board and of the Salem All club at their combined luncheon Thursday noon.

Except for a few minor details, the mill is now completed, and is working with complete efficiency, Snelling reported.

Chief among the features which make this the most modern linen plant in the world, is the system of applying power with direct current, permitting gradual starting and stopping and variation of the speed, the elimination of belt drive for the looms. This was done by installing a series of clutches so that when one machine is shut down, the others can continue to run, and the time ordinarily wasted when a belt is thrown off, is eliminated. This saves 15 per cent of operating time.

Another unusual feature is the heating system, with large radiators along the walls and fans behind them so as to distribute the heat evenly throughout the building.

Although the plant has been in operation only a few weeks, inquiries are coming in from all parts of the world as to when Salem linen goods will be placed on the market. Snelling reported. The linen mill manager's topic was thrifty; and in this connection he said that it would be constructed

J. P. Mattoon of Tillamook was a visitor in Salem Wednesday. V. C. Anderson of Falls City is making a brief visit in Salem. John Cutsforth of Gervais was a Salem visitor Thursday.
