GASOLINE TAX LAWS OCCUPY ATTENTION

Committee to Return Proposed Bill With Several Suggested Amendments

"To be or not to be" is the question the committee on automobiles and roads had to solve on the additional gas tax question last night. In an attempt to have the persons who used the highways for the purpose of making a living pay more for them than other persons, this committee last year passed what is called the peddlers law. It requires the additional 50 per cent license fee to be paid by carriers. The law has now served its purpose and it was not the intention of the makers of it that it should cause the commercial traveling man to pay this, but that it should be imposed principally on the peddler who goes from town to town and from door to door selling merchandise.

A small delegation from Multnomah county attended the conference of the automobile and road committee, and members spoke very emphatically against the bills that are proposed at this session. Senate bill No. 15, and house bill No. 8, both identical, have caused considerable comment, and would make all carrier cars operating five miles outside of any city limit in the state pay an additional 50 per cent carrier fee. Mr. Bailey of Portland spoke against the passage of the bill, saying that it interfered with natural economic progress, and that if a peddler's license was paid it should be paid into the treasury of the city wherein the peddler sold his wares, and thus only the person the bill aimed to reach would be taxed, and commercial salesmen or the farmer, who stopped to take his neighbor's eggs or produce of any kind to town, would not be imposed upon by any unjust tax.

Mr. Paulus, of the Oregon Automotive association, spoke unfavorably of the practicability of the bill. He suggested that the only purely usage measure of the highway was the gasoline used on it, and that to tax justly in proportion to the user of the highway was to tax him for the gas he purchased. "The larger and heavier the load and the longer the trip," Mr. Paulus said, "the more gas the carrier is going to use." This bill, Mr. Paulus believes, is a start to disrupt the whole highway program in Oregon. He said that it did not seem to him that the lawmakers of Oregon could discriminate one man from another in the degree he used the highways to make his living.

Senator Dunne of Portland said that he felt that the peddlers bill was the most dangerous piece of legislation ever imposed, to his knowledge. "It is no more or less than a holdup," Mr. Dunne said, "and the bill was passed last session in a most contemptible manner."

It was suggested to the committee that before any bills governing peddlers could properly be introduced, first they must definitely define a peddler; those conducting a legal, undesirable commercial trade, then impose a peddlers tax.

The committee will return the bill this morning with recommendations that it pass with amendments so that the bill will only impose the tax on peddlers, which the amendments will definitely define. They will recommend that senate bill No. 15 do not pass, as it is identical with No. 8, which will be properly taken care of by amendments.

Bramwell Will Appeal Judge Skipworth Edict

Appeal from the decision of Judge G. F. Skipworth of Eugene, ordering Frank Bramwell, state superintendent of banks, to return his office and records from Portland to the state capitol at Salem, will be taken to the supreme court according to Sidney J. Graham, Bramwell's counsel, who was in the city recently.

It is reported that the state bankers' association has passed a resolution endorsing an amendment to the banking law which will permit Bramwell to maintain his office in Portland.

Committee to Consider All Barber Bills Monday

At a meeting of the labor and industries committee held Thursday, it was decided to consider all barber bills at a meeting to be held probably Monday night. It was further agreed to recommend H. B. No. 107 to the house for passage after the words "or place where machinery is used" have been inserted on page 2, line 12. This bill has to do with the labor commission, and if passed will make its work more efficient. It further takes the enforcement of the law out of the district attorney's hands and places it in the hands of the attorney general. This change, it is said, will further the collection of penalties that are not collected now by the district attorneys.

having two additions put on. Quite a serious accident occurred at the Harold Roop corner last week. Mr. and Mrs. Satty and Mr. Burnett were on their way home from town when a large truck loaded with iron crashed into the rear of their car when the truck driver lost control of his car on the slippery pavement. The Satty car was completely wrecked and the truck put into the ditch where it remained for two days. Mr. Satty had two ribs broken and Mrs. Satty was badly bruised and cut, and both eyes were blackened. She was taken to Silverton to the home of friends where medical attention was given her. This is a very dangerous corner where it is said by neighbors that as many as seven cars have been off the road in one day, but this is the first time that any-
