majority party program. After brief but spirited debate between Representative Garrett, the democratic leader and Representative Mills, republican, New York, who is to succeed Gerard B. Winston as under-secretary of the treasury, as to the merits of immediate reduction, Garrett circulated a petition which with 218 signatures would bring the democratic plan before the house. The minority bill drawn by Representative Garner, of Texas, who has estimated it would effect a $35,000,000 reduction in taxes, now rests in a ways and means committee pigeon hole where the republican majority placed it a month ago.

OREGON MERCHANTS PLAN CONVENTION

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Jan. 24.—The Oregon Retail Merchants association will hold its twenty-third convention in Corvallis, February 13 to 17. More than 3000 retail dealers of the state are members of the organization. Research will be the keynote of the convention. The first address to the delegates will be given by Marshall N. Dana, assistant editor of the Oregon Journal, on the opening night of the conference. Mr. Dana, who is active in all civic affairs of the state, will have a constructive message for both delegates and students who attend his lecture.

Visitors are invited to inspect the entire campus during the four days of the convention. Registration headquarters and the general meeting place for all delegates will be in the new Women's building.

Investigation preparatory for convention reports is now being conducted by six trade division committees, which branch into every specialized line of merchandizing represented in the association.

FIRST MEETING HELD TAXATION COMMITTEE REPORTS ONE BILL FAVORABLY

At its first meeting of the session, the committee on assessment and taxation reported one bill favorably and tabled six others for further consideration. The bill reported favorably was house bill number 67 by Potter, and changes the rate charged by newspapers for publication of delinquent property taxes from 10 cents per description to 65 cents per folio.

The six bills held up in committee are numbers 72, 75, 92, 74, 73, and 80. The reason for the delay is to give the authors and others interested a chance to express their views. After this is done the committee will take action. Bill number 73 changes the effective date for the assessment of real and personal property from March 1 until January 1 and was recommended by the special tax investigation committee appointed at the last session.

Five More Days Allowed for Submitting Measures

Only five days more of grace remain for the members of the legislature to get their bills in the hopper. Speaker Carkin drew the house's attention to house rule number 44, which says that no bills can be accepted in the house after the 20th day except by special consent of the legislation and rules committee.

The time is up next Sunday, and it is not expected that many tardy bills will get past the above committee. The ways and means bills, however, are expected from this rule.

Carkin also called attention to house rule 43 which states that bills shall be considered by the committees in the order in which they are received as nearly as possible, and must be reported back to the house within seven days.

MEDFORD COUNTY SEAT Bill Permits Change Voted by Electorate of Jackson

The county seat of Jackson county will be moved from Jacksonville to Medford, in accordance with the bill passed in the house yesterday.

Representative William M. Briggs said that the bill was simply to enable the will of the people in Jackson county to be carried out.

At an election held there in November, 1926, an initiative measure providing for the change of the county seat was submitted to the electors of Jackson county, which measure was approved by a majority of over 1800 votes. The supreme court, however, held the election void due to the failure to issue voters pamphlet in connection with the election.

Grants Pass building record for 1926 was $237,506.

ACTOR-PONY FLEES IN SALEM STREETS Capitol Theater Performer Decides on Late-Night Vacation Here

Actors and actresses—a whole vaudeville troupe, augmented by a few stage hands and civilians, wildly chasing a Shetland pony through the streets, in a spectacle which Salem people might have witnessed late Saturday night, had there been many people abroad to see it.

The pony, used in a vaudeville act at the Capitol theatre that night, billed as Dorothy's comedy animal circus, wandered out of the space back stage, and got out onto State street before he was missed. His trainer and others of the vaudeville troupe gave chase, and the pony led them a few blocks down State, then doubled over to Trade.

Like Mary's lamb, the tiny horse next decided he would like a little higher learning, and appeared especially interested in education, for he wandered first into the lawn at Lausanne hall, on the Willamette university campus.

After playing tag with his pursuers on the campus for a while, the pony evidently became tired of the game, for he allowed himself to be caught after traveling as far as the S. P. passenger station. The trainer managed to get him back to the theater in time for the second appearance of the trained animals, but in the excitement, a dangerous monkey that was one of the performers somehow loosened his tether. This animal did not get clear loose until the show was over, but he caused some panic among the theater folk until he was captured.
