ized industry. It is like celery and head lettuce growing in this respect. Any gardener, on almost any kind of land found here, can grow some celery or lettuce, and he can grow some spinach—

But this does not mean celery or lettuce or spinach that will sell on quality above the market prices for such vegetables grown elsewhere. This specialization has been brought to success here in the case of celery and head lettuce—and it can be brought to success, the writer believes, in the case of spinach.

It is no longer necessary to say to the majority of the readers of The Statesman that the eating of spinach freely is a very important requisite for health. Every kitchen or home garden should have some spinach, and two crops should be raised, and some of it should be canned at home, or the commercially canned or dehydrated article should be used when it cannot be had in the fresh form.

Spinach is nearly as important in the dietary as milk, and every up-to-date man and woman now knows that a virile race cannot be sustained without milk, nor healthy children raised, nor old people kept in proper condition.

One of the greatest arguments in favor of spinach growing commercially in the Salem district is the fact that the spring crop will furnish a cash return early in the season when money is needed for the cultivation of other crops. And, in the same way, it adds materially to the net returns from any given number of acres of land under cultivation.

But we have got to learn to grow quality spinach, and a lot of it to the acre; and this will take special locations and specialized treatment and specialized fertilization of the soil. All this is worth while, because spinach will persist and its use will grow—

And moreover it is a prospective valuable crop for greenhouse cultivation, for our home markets, and for shipping fresh to the cities and towns up and down the coast and to the big city markets throughout the country—

And the growing of a quality crop for car lot shipments would also lead to a great and growing demand from our canners, who could command a wide market if they could guarantee a strictly quality output.

half of a particular bill they wished to have passed or not passed. The biggest factor possible is the individual lobbyist who has been at the game for a great many years, is skilled in his work, knows what he or she wants and goes after it, and usually gets it.

You will find several university graduates so to speak with post graduate work in this special business of lobbying. These experts promote a lot of good legislation, and if it was not for their loyal support and earnest efforts a great many good laws would never be enacted by the legislature.

Several have taken a post graduate course in lobbying and have passed with high honors. These men or women can be seen busily engaged in conversation with a legislator at most any time.

One of these particular parties has often been seen on the job at 7:30 a. m. and late at night. In fact on two particular Sundays he forgot to go to church and he is a regular church goer. At any rate, he was granted an increase in his salary amounting to nine hundred dollars per annum, so I think that it was well worth staying away from church just two Sundays. I wish I could do as well. It seems so strange that some of these fellows want to raise their salaries and when they get a chance they can show the legislature whereby the state can be saved several thousand dollars by cutting the other fellow's wages.

These same men where the proposed reduction in wages is recommended, are very poorly paid to start with. Hardly any one has nerve enough to suggest that the salary of some of the high officials be reduced. They are usually very influential, often times having lots of money, and wielding altogether too much influence. The majority are afraid to register any complaint, because they might want a favor some time, and these people in power would be in a position to grant it, if they so desire.

Whatever might be said or done these men and their kind are very useful and represent some of the very best citizens in the state. They are keen and alert, and while the rest of us are half asleep, they are accomplishing things for themselves and the state.

I am not willing to concede that they are more intelligent or wider awake than a lot of people are, but happen to be fortunate enough to be in a position whereby they come in contact with people of influence and having a title attached to their names they are able to accomplish and put over things that an outsider, so to speak, cannot understand or comprehend.

Dr. David Friday, industrial economist and lecturer at the Robert Brookings school for political economy, Washington, another witness today, estimated the plant worth $240,000,000 on that date.

Statistical testimony presented by Dr. Friday revealed a profit of $170 per car on the slightly more than $100,000 cars sold by the Ford company at a price of $523 during 1913. An average profit of $258, he said, was realized on each of the 12,222 cars sold in 1909 at $800.

MOSER EXPLAINS EXCESS PROFITS SUSPENDERS PROPER TAILORS AT PORTLAND UP-HOLD USE OF GALLUSES

PORTLAND, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Suspenders, much maligned in their own right and, in late years the cause of no inconsiderable amount of ridicule to their champions, are absolutely correct, quite good form, and the vogue.

This is the solemn pronouncement of the Pacific Coast Merchant Tailors' association, assembled here in convention.

The increasing use of galluses by the discriminatingly apparelled male has compelled tailors to fashion trousers higher in the waist, they assert. This will be one of the dominant notes in the trend of the masculine styles for 1928.

The following too-common practices are and shall be incorrect, the association determined today: Wearing of spats with tan shoes. Wearing of light tan shoes. Wearing of light colored overcoats and hats with evening clothes.

Wearing of white waistcoat with tuxedo or dinner jacket. Non-wearing of gloves. Wearing of soft collars in cold weather.

There are other incorrect practices, it is given to understand, but those mentioned are considered banal.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The British armada bearing 20,000 soldiers toward Shanghai may be diverted in part to British cities in China because of the opposition of non-British members of the Shanghai international settlements municipal council to the quartering of a large force in its jurisdiction.

Work was stopped at Jessfield Park, where barracks for 3000 soldiers were approaching completion. It was learned that the camp would not be used. The park is owned by the international settlement community, although in Chinese territory.

Harry Leonhardt, Chicago, general traveling representative of the Western Vaudeville Managers' association, was in Salem yesterday, conferring with leading growers here, with the idea of helping in getting up a cooperative combination of the people engaged in the mint industry for Oregon and Washington; to finally take in all the mint growing sections of this country—with a view to stabilizing the industry. It is a crying need.

Senate Observations; the Third House Lobbyist Editor Statesman: One of the most interesting, amusing and important acts in the big show being staged at the state capitol is the act being played by the trained and untrained lobbyist.

This individual (or groups of individuals) exert a much greater influence in the law making process than any one not familiar with the conditions at a legislative hall could even imagine. Some of the brightest and best are in this group, and some of the worst and most corrupt are also present.

Already in the session a great army of people have appeared before different committees in the capitol building.

LEGAL NOTICES In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Marion County. Myrtle Irene Morris, Plaintiff vs. Harry Morris, Defendant.

To Harry Morris, the above named defendant: In the Name of the State of Oregon: You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled court and suit on or before the last day of the time prescribed in the order for publication of this summons; or, on or before the expiration of six weeks next, from and after the date of first publication of this summons, the first publication thereof being on January 27, 1927, and if you fail to appear and answer, for want thereof the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in her complaint, to-wit: that plaintiff's marriage to defendant be annulled, and that she be forever released and discharged from any and all obligations and duties arising from said marriage; that plaintiff may resume her former name, viz: Myrtle Irene Wander, and that she have such other and further relief as to the Court may seem just and equitable.

This summons is served upon you by publication by order of Hon. L. H. McMahan, Judge of the above entitled Court, which order was made and dated at Salem, Oregon, January 26, 1927.

Date of first publication, January 27, 1927. Date of last-publication March 10, 1927.
