WAYS AND MEANS BILLS SPECIAL ORDER IN HOUSE (Continued from page 1) He instruction, $90,100.

For control and destruction of predatory animals, $40,000.

For expenses incurred in operation of Oregon state board of forestry, $127,000.

For maintenance and upkeep of battleship Oregon for years 1927 and 1928, $10,000.

For expenses in connection with operation of medical department of University of Oregon, $38,993.

For the aid and preservation of the John McLoughlin home, the Florence Crittenton home, the Patton home, Oregon historical society, Champeog memorial building, Mt. Scott park cemetery, Oregon humane society, $57,800 was appropriated, and the sum of $9850 for expenses of publication of executive proclamations, codifying state laws, expenses in connection with the board of higher curriculum, the emergency board, the pilot commission, board of conciliation, board of textbook commissioners and expenses in putting out the Oregon blue book; and the further sum of $800 for aiding the department of Americanization of Oregon in promoting Americanization education in the state of Oregon; and the further sum of $600 for the payment of the pension granted Raleigh C. Wilson, battery "A" field artillery, ONG, for the years 1927 and 1928, as compensation for permanent injuries he received in the line of duty August 14, 1911, were appropriated by house bill 578.

House bill number 579 probably caused more discussion than any of the ways and means bills which came up yesterday, before it was finally passed with a number voting against it. It provides for appropriations for county fairs as follows:

Jackson, Oregon interstate, Coos and Curry, Tillamook, Union, Deschutes, Klamath, Clatsop, Malheur, Josephine, Grant, Wallowa, Malheur, Clatsop and Multnomah, $4000; Columbia, Lincoln and Lake, $3000; Polk, Linn, Lane, Clackamas, Washington, Yamhill and Douglas, $2000; Wasco, Gilliam, Wheeler, Sherman, $1000, and $800 to Douglas county for Smith river fair.

The discriminatory allowances to the different counties brought objections from many of the members.

Representative German said that he thought it was "a peach of a bill to kill" for in the first place, as he stated it would save the state $100,000, he did not like the blanket manner in which the bill was made, and third, that it would result in ill feeling between so many members.

Mr. Miller objected for the reason that his county, Umatilla, was left out entirely.

Mr. McPhillips opposed the bill in that he felt it was no time for indulgence in county fairs when the state was over one million dollars in debt.

Mr. Swan from Linn county asked for the unanimous consent of the house to amend the bill so that all the counties receiving $6000 would receive $4000, but Mr. Gordon objected to that and those allowed $6000 and $4000 would get $3000. Mr. Gordon explained that if he allowed one request for an amendment, the whole house practically would want some amendment made which would affect their own county.

Mr. Hamilton of eastern Oregon mentioned the fact that they were drawing the line between an absolute necessity and things highly desirable in objecting to this bill.

Mr. Allen argued that the county fairs were an incentive for the coming generation to remain on farms, and to encourage the producing of better agricultural products.

A vigorous but unsuccessful attempt was made in the house yesterday to dispose of the industrial welfare commission when bill number 479 by the repeal of laws committed came up for final passage.

Representative Swan said the commission never did any good and told the members "as they had advertised economy to cut out one expense by abolishing this useless commission."

Representatives Loneragan and Allen contended that the commission was functioning and doing good work; that they helped working conditions in factories and canning plants. "It is a pleasure to see these people come in the door of your factory," Mr. Allen said.

Mr. Henderson called attention to the fact that all members had received letters not to pass the bill, but that the letters could all be traced to friends of members of the commission getting money from the state.

On the house calendar as a special order of business for Thursday morning at ten o'clock will be the remainder of the joint ways and means committee bills. It is expected that there will be considerable opposition to some of the remaining measures as they carry large sums for buildings and extensions.

Five bills asking for appropriations for buildings and recommended by the committee that they do not pass will be discussed, at the same time. These bills are: Numbers 519 and 520 by Buchanan for buildings at OAC, number 24 by Lewis asking for money to construct a girls' cottage at the children's farm home at Corvallis, number 82 by Allen acquiring site and building for an armory at St. Helens, and 322 by Selvers providing for an armory at Oregon City.

INCOME TAX BILL MADE SPECIAL ORDER TODAY (Continued from page 1) time the administration forces are at work and said to be making headway in winning supporters for the bill.

The senate yesterday refused to approve a bill introduced by the house committee on legislation authorizing institution heads, with the sanction of the state board of control, to transfer funds from one budget classification to another.

Senator Strayer attacked the bill on the grounds that it would open the way for the expenditure of funds by institution heads without authority of the legislature.

with the assertion that he understood the board of control now had under contemplation the diverting of $50,000 appropriated for maintenance at a certain institution to capital outlays.

"If this is a fact," retorted Senator Hare, "they should be impeached."

"This senate yesterday repealed the emergency board act," said Senator Moser. "It seems inconsistent that we should now pass this bill. I am opposed to the legislation."

Senator Bailey said the bill apparently was in the interest of good business.

"It is my opinion," said Senator Staples, "that the object of this bill is to legalize certain acts dating back over a period of years. Eighteen senators voted against the bill."

The senate adopted a house resolution authorizing the consolidation of city and county governments, with the proviso that the territory included in the consolidation should not extend beyond the county boundaries. Senator Moser explained that this resolution has for its purpose the simplifying of government in Multnomah county. It will be referred to the voters at the next general election.

A resolution introduced by Senator Marks requesting 1500 sales of timber from government reservations in Oregon be confined to cases of actual need, also was approved. Senator Marks explained that the present method of disposing of government timber interfered materially with the private timber industry in this state.

The senate voted down a bill by Senator Joseph providing that the funds of the state fish commission should go into the general fund, and that the commission be compelled to appear before the legislature for its biennial appropriation.

Senator Norblad said the passage of this bill would again place the fish commission in politics and revive the practice of lobbying on the part of the fishing industry.

A resolution referring to the voters the question of repealing the interest guarantee law as it affects irrigation and drainage
