LIONS DINE LADIES

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS DINNER ON FRIDAY EVENING

Nearly every member of the Salem Lions club, accompanied by his better half if any, attended the ladies' night dinner Friday night at Minto's Salem restaurant. There were also a number of visitors including a considerable delegation from the Independence Lions club. A program of stunts and gaiety, presented by a committee headed by Lion Cecil Swope, was greatly appreciated. Lion Chief Minto was present but spent most of his time in the kitchen helping to feed the hungry Lions.

The program included vocal solos by Mrs. Martin Fereshtehian, a reading and pianologue by Mrs. Ralph H. Kietzing assisted by Mrs. Fred Annunese, a musical saw number by G. McCroskey, a skit by Cecil Swope, Leslie Springer and Robert Aiken, a vocal solo by John Orr, and a novelty musical number by R. C. Stemenin with his "pitchfork-a-phone" and his "broomhandle-can-illn."

Several typical Lions club songs were sung by all present, and the party closed with the Lions' roar.

ing with a few well chosen words, giving the importance of the development to the farming interests of Oregon as well as to the manufacturing interests—promising such an increase of population here as will go far towards furnishing a home market for the other products of the soil, the surplus of which must now be shipped at large expense to distant markets.

The noon meeting showed a splendid spirit of cooperation on the part of the people of Portland, who understand that they must aid in developing the back country in order to insure a solid growth of the metropolis. It was the general prediction that the people of Portland will immediately finish their quota of the stock of the Oregon Linn Mills, Inc. That is, that they will help in securing subscriptions to the extent of an additional $150,000, which will be enough to complete the mill and leave about $100,000 for operating capital, which will be needed. Also, this will leave in the treasury of the company about $100,000 of stock, which may be sold later, if needed for additional machinery or for other purposes; in making the investment a paying one.

The party proceeded at about 1:30 o'clock to the penitentiary, where there was a tour of the state flax plant; the stock sheds for the straw, the storage warehouse for the fiber and seed, etc., and the scutching plant, which was in full operation. The Portland party was accompanied by the following Salem citizens, to show them and explain to them the workings of the state flax plant, and the linen mills: T. B. Kay, C. P. Bishop, Scott Page, George Grabenhorst, Fritz Slade, C. E. Wilson, Col. W. B. Bartram, George Arbuckle, Henry Myers, Ross Miles, R. O. Snelling, R. J. Hendricks, Henry Crawford and Theo Roth.

Next the plant of the Oregon Linn Mills, Inc., was visited, where a part of the full acre of floor space of machinery was found in operation. Actual cloth being made, from Oregon flax fiber. As an evidence of this, each member of the Portland delegation was given a towel, made on the new Jaquard loom, but not bleached and finished, as the bleaching and finishing machinery is not yet all in place, though it is nearly ready.

The bigness and thoroughness of the plant was a revelation to most of the members of the Portland delegation, who were men who could appreciate the enormous task already accomplished, and the busy scene that will very soon be the regular daily round of the plant.

Then the party was piloted to the Miles plant, where shoe and harness thread and fish twine is being actually turned out for the markets, with a promise of very profitable operations in the near future.

The plant of the Oregon Linn Mills, Inc., will likely be turning out marketable products by the 15th of March.

The electric motors are expected daily. Some of the preparing machinery from Belfast is on the ship, "London Importer," due now in Portland, having landed first at Vancouver, B. C., a few days ago. The balance of the machinery from Belfast, now on the ocean, is almost due.

There will be an increase in operations almost daily from now on, and by the first of May the filling of regular orders for the markets ought to begin to be the regular thing. And from that time on there should be increasing activity in a large way, resulting soon in extra shifts for the spinning department, which will have to be speeded up to 24 hours a day, and perhaps additional machinery secured in order to keep all the looms going eight hours a day.

So Salem's linen mill development will on its way, with light ahead, after long years of waiting and hoping.

TOBACCO TAX BILL GETS POSTPONED

House Votes to Increase Number of Traffic Officers and Change Pay

The house continued the regular routine of work yesterday with nearly all of the members cooperating so adjournment could come last night.

The tobacco tax, proposing a license fee on all tobacco products, one of the measures resorted to in the attempt to seek a source of additional revenue to pay off the state's deficit, was indefinitely postponed after a lengthy argument in which practically every member of the house took part.

Representative Hamilton, chairman of the taxation and revenue committee introduced the bill without taking any particular stand either for or against the measure. His remarks were mostly in explanation, that the bill would produce about $800,000 annually in revenue.

Messrs. Scott, Weatherspoon, LaFollett, and Swan all opposed the measure, not only because their constituents had sent them letters and telegrams recently but that the people had voted down a similar bill at the last election.

All of the support for the bill was more or less lukewarm.

Messrs. Graham and Billingsley were in favor of the bill because they thought the people ought to be willing to pay the small tax on their cigars and tobacco which they considered a luxury.

Mr. Gilie said that it would open the way for the mail order houses outside of the state and that people would send to them for their tobaccos.

Mr. Hazlett opposed the last tobacco tax as unfair legislation two years ago, and would oppose this measure for the same reason he stated.

Mr. Roberts said that the bill differed from the one rejected at the last election, in that it included cigars and chewing tobacco, and that the rate of taxation was about half that of the previous measure.

Mr. Lewis, in explaining his vote, said that there was over two hundred million dollars worth of property not on the tax roll at the present, and if the legislature would do something to put this on the rolls there would be no necessity for a tobacco tax.

Mr. Mott also explained his vote, saying he was against this kind of legislation and while an emergency existed, this was not the proper remedy since the people had once refused to accept it, and under the provisions of the bill with the emergency clause attached it would not give the people a chance to vote on it.

Senate bill 287 which died in the automobile and roads committee Tuesday night, was revived by the application of an amendment yesterday morning and placed on the calendar for final passage, and passed, with Bailey, German, Gordon, Henderson, LaFollett, Lewis, McCallister, McPhillips, Norvell, Russell, Scott, Snell, Stewart, Swan and Weatherspoon voting against it.

The bill increases the number of traffic officers on the state highways from twenty-five to thirty, and makes two captains and three lieutenants. The salaries of the captains were raised from $175 to $200 per month, and the lieutenants from $150 to $175 per month, leaving the salary of the chief at the same of $250. The rest of the officers salaries were raised from $125 to $135.

The increase of cost to the state to operate under this act was estimated at about $29,000 biennially, and therein lay most of the opposition to the bill.

Graham, who as a general rule is opposed to spending any money from the highway fund, thought this increase was fair as the highways in the state increased, and the traffic officers should increase in proportion.

Weatherspoon and LaFollett were opposed to the bill, because the state, as everyone knows, is in bad shape financially, and pointed out that besides the salary increases, there would be more cars or motorcycles to buy, which would run the total up to nearer $50,000 than $39,000.

Representative Hamilton of Crook county said that we had a very fine traffic force in Oregon and cited an instance of where his car had been stolen and the thief captured and car returned to him within twenty-four hours.

Mr. Giesy also said that the traffic department was good as he had occasions to become closely associated with it, and found that they had saved many lives through prevention of accidents.

Mr. Bailey opposed the same sort of bill two years ago because it gives the department liberty to spend as much money as they want to, and gives the men of the traffic force too much power.

Mr. Lonergan, however, said the men were under paid, as they risk their lives and brave the storms in performance of their duty.

It did not take the house but a very short time to dispose of the two bills introduced by Mr. Mott yesterday proposing to increase the license fees of foreign and domestic corporations and foreign insurance companies.

Mr. Mott explained that the two measures would produce about $100,000, in revenue and if the state needed the money they would be good bills to pass if it did not they could vote them down. The House proceeded to do this by indefinite postponement.

A committee of seven members from the house will be appointed to investigate the possibilities of compulsory insurance for automobile drivers and report to the next legislative assembly. The provision for this was made in a house resolution passed by that body yesterday.

lation chiefly "committee legislation."

"Every year you pass a lot of bills you don't need after you get home, anyway," he continued.

Representative Gordon opposed the resolution believing that there was no particular economy in it, nor any direct help to the state, while Mr. Graham thought it would be a help toward fewer foolish laws being made. He said he would defy any member, with the exception of perhaps four or five, to tell him what the contents of approximately the one thousand bills were that had been introduced this session. During the 40 days, with the flood of bills, attention to committee work, and also keeping up to some extent personal business on the side, he stated that no member, without some recess in which to study over the bills, could give sufficient time to any of them.

Joe Bailey stated that he believed there had been sufficient demand from the people to have submitted to them this question, to warrant the passage of the resolution.

Under the provisions of the resolution this question is due to be on the ballot at the next election. Voters will be able to read arguments on it, as four pages of the pamphlet will be devoted to such arguments.

When house bill number 623 came back from the senate amended to read that the date for the special election called for in the bill be changed from November 8 to June 20, there was a motion made that the house do not concur in the senate amendments.

The motion failed to pass however, and the date will be June 20, 1927. The majority of the members from eastern Oregon were of the opinion that the later date would be the best as a larger vote would be out owing to the fact that farmers and stockmen in that section are very busy in June.

Others contended that the sooner the bill was sent to the people the better chance it had for passage.
