FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR G. E. ROSS

Prominent Salem Man Passes Away; Known Throughout State for His Work

George Edward Ross was born at Springbrook, Wisconsin, May 7, 1880. His parents were Geo. A. and Sarah Jane Fuller Ross. He obtained his early education in the Wisconsin schools and was married to Margaret Elizabeth Webster at Eau Claire, Wisconsin, in 1901. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Ross lived for a number of years at St. Paul, Minnesota, moving to Yakima, Washington, in 1907, where Mr. Ross was connected with the U. S. Reclamation Service, becoming chief clerk and paymaster on important units of the construction of the Yakima project. During 1913 and 1914, Mr. Ross was chief clerk on the Tumalo project near Bend, coming to Salem in January 1915, where he became the first secretary of the Oregon State Highway commission having charge of all the accounting for the commission for a number of years during the early construction period of the State Highway. He was secretary of the Phez company of Salem for several years and entered the U. S. Army service in the early part of 1919 as traveling auditor in the eastern construction division of the United States Army, retiring in December, 1919, with the rank of major.

Upon the completion of his army service, Mr. Ross organized the business in which he was engaged at the time of his death, that of public accountant and auditor. Mr. Ross was considered an authority on cost accounting and was the author of a book on "Cost Keeping and Construction Accounting" which has run through several editions.

Mr. Ross was a member of the Masonic order, Modern Woodman of America, Kiwanis club of Salem, and the First Baptist church of Salem, and was widely and favorably known in all parts of the state where his work as auditor and accountant took him. He had a host of friends who loved him for his cheerful personality, his absolute integrity and his readiness at all times to assist those with whom he came in contact. Perhaps the outstanding traits of his character which endeared him to his friends were his friendliness and dependability, inspiring confidence in everyone with whom he came in contact.

Mr. Ross who passed away on March 9, 1927, is survived by his widow and six children, Ruth, Webster, Lee, Dorothy, Marion and Robert, all living in Salem, his parents and a sister, Mrs. Pearl Hassell, all of whom now live at Yakima, Washington, and a brother, Capt. Glen A. Ross, now stationed at Columbus, Georgia. The family of a deceased brother Harry E. Ross, live in Prince Rupert, B. C., and the family of a deceased sister Mrs. Ruby Ross Bergeron, live in Multnomah, Oregon. Out of town relatives who attended the funeral include Mr. Bergeron and daughter Eugenia, and a cousin and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ross, of Portland.

A very beautiful tribute to the memory of G. E. Ross in the form of a poem was read at the funeral services.

LORDS DO KNITTING AND COLLECT FLEAS

Noblemen in London Have Queer Hobbies; One Visits Modestie Shops

LONDON—(AP)—Flea collecting is among the queer hobbies of some of London's nobles. The fad had its inception years ago, one of the most enthusiastic of collectors being the late Baron Rothschild who at his death left a priceless collection from many parts of the world which is now on view in the British Museum.

Among prominent persons to take up this hobby of late is the Honorable Ivor Montagu, son of Lord Swaythling. In this eccentric relaxation the Honorable Montagu goes Baron Rothschild one better, as the banker collected only dried up fleas, but he buys them dead or alive, and chloroforms the live ones himself.

Prince Arthur of Connaught is fond of visiting show rooms of the modiste's. Whenever Princess Arthur buys a new gown, the Prince always accompanies her, taking much interest in all the models his wife inspects and purchases.

An odd hobby is that of Lord Gainford who finds relaxation in crewel-work. He always carries a piece of embroidery to pick up in a train on his many journeys between London and the north of England.

Ernest Thesiger, cousin of Viscount Chelmsford, too, does a pretty piece of needlework in his odd moments, and his tapestries are the admiration of all his friends.

CONSTABLE SOUGHT BY BOTH PARTIES

William Muffin, 90, Democrat by Persuasion, "Kidnapped" by GOP

LENOX Iowa—(AP)—William Muffin, 90-year-old constable, has a hard time staying in the Democratic party.

In 28 consecutive years in his office, he has made so many friends in the Republican ranks that he is in constant danger of getting more Republican than Democratic votes at an election.

When that happens, he becomes by law a Republican official. Once when he was elected with more Republican than Democratic votes the Democrats took him to task.

"I guess they kidnapped me," he explained. "But it's the only blot on my political career."

Muffin is the oldest official in Iowa, but his youthful prowess as a runner, wrestler and undefeated pugilist has left him ample vigor for his job. Diet: Meat and potatoes two or three times a day; three good cigars between morning and night; no liquor.

Champoeg Park Free From Flood Damage, Says Tozier

Thirty-two automobiles, carrying a total of 127 visitors, four hikers, and three horsemen visited Champoeg park last Sunday, according to Albert Tozier, official custodian of the park. Damage suffered to park property through the recent flood, according to Tozier, was slight, all tables and benches being securely anchored to prevent washing away. For several days the memorial building at the park was on an island being entirely surrounded by water, with the road at one point being four feet under water for two days.

All were heavily armed and the trio in the jail were effectually standing off guards who sought to surround them. At an early hour no one had been reported killed. The six men were under sentence to be hanged this morning.

FIGHT FOR FRICK'S LIFE NOT IN VAIN

Science May Be Able to Make Use of Information Outlined During Illness

CHICAGO, March 11—(AP)—The gruelling fight waged for the life of Albert Frick, kept alive for more than 103 hours by friends doing the work of his paralyzed muscles in providing him with precious air, will not have been in vain if science can prevent it.

Confirmation of the diagnosis of the young man's ailment was obtained by medical experts today who reported that pathological examination showed only those conditions found in Landry's disease, an acute ascending paralysis, usually fatal in 48 hours to two weeks.

An exhaustive microscopic examination of the spinal cord, liver, kidneys and brain will be made by a medical school.

Dr. T. E. Conley, who, with his brother, H. H. Conley, Dr. Charles F. Reed, nerve specialist, and Dr. Hart Fisher, medical consultant for the public service company, attended Frick, issued the following statement:

"The remote cause of Mr. Frick's death was Landry's paralysis following intestinal inflexion. The immediate cause was paralysis of the diaphragm and accessory respiratory muscles."

Frick's illness dates back a week when he had two teeth extracted. He did not take an anaesthetic and fainted in the dentist's chair. He later said he had become dizzy on his way home and had been hit by an automobile, striking his head against the pavement.

When he complained of stomach cramps, Dr. T. E. Conley diagnosed the ailment as intestinal influenza, and Frick was taken to the hospital Saturday, paralysis setting in that night.
