

Eugene and Salem to Meet in Championship Basketball Game Tonight

MARSHFIELD AND EUGENE WINNERS

Coast Team Staged Rally and Hands Defeat to the Franklin Hi Quintet

Eugene and Marshfield won their way to the semi-finals by taking two of the toughest games of the tournament Friday morning.

Marshfield defeated Franklin high of Portland 34 to 26, but faced an uphill battle to do it. The Portlanders amassed nine points before the coast team could score at all, and it looked like a riot for Franklin.

But Marshfield has, in Norberg and Chapman, an ideal offensive combination. Norberg shoots the baskets, but Chapman gets him the ball in position to do it. The latter is another of those players who will have to be taken into consideration in picking an all-state team.

And the rest of the boys from the Coos Bay section are not fence, and every one contributed some points toward the victory.

After Franklin had taken every thing for most of the first quarter, the Chapman-Norberg combination got to work and gave Marshfield a two point lead, 13 to 11, at half time. In the second half Norberg kept on shooting and his team mates had stood down enough to help him. They played an exceptionally clean game, not one of the quintet committing more than one foul.

Kretzmeir was Franklin's star both on offense and defense.

Eugene's victory over Medford was a wild scramble from start to finish, with plenty of fighting, but little scientific basketball, except on defense. Both teams checked closely, Medford getting only two baskets in each half and the university city team not many more. Eugene won 21 to 13.

Melvin, who had been Medford's high point man the day before, did not get a point, the Eugene guards, Lewis and Colbert, keeping him guarded at all times. Eugene took an early lead and coasted from then on so far as offensive play was concerned, its defensive strength holding the south-erners safe.

Pitman, who could not get going in Thursday's game, was Eugene's outstanding player in this contest. He is one of the hardest workers on any team in the tournament, fighting for the ball constantly. Several of his shots were made from ludicrous angles. Anderson started for Medford.

CONSOLATION GAMES PROVING ONE SIDED

Tillamook, Astoria and Medford Capture Opening Games of Series

All three of the consolation games Friday afternoon were one sided affairs, yet none of them was lacking in interest. Tillamook, Astoria and Medford won, leaving three exceptionally strong teams in the running for the consolation trophy.

Tillamook ran up the high score of the tournament so far, defeating Pendleton 50 to 23. The boys who wear a block of cheese on the fronts of their jerseys, displayed the best teamwork of any quintet that had appeared on the floor so far, and both the regular forwards and the men who took their places, as well as Mahan, center, proved to be an exceptional battery of marksmen, with Holden, one of the regular forwards, topping the list with 20 points. Allen was again Pendleton's outstanding star.

Astoria took it easy to win from Wasco, 43 to 17. Coach Sowers keeping in mind that his team will have to play three games today if it is to win the consolation cup.

Makinen was as effective as he had been the night before in his shooting during the short time he was in the game, as well as Arvola, the other forward who started, were not far behind.

The salmon fishermen played under the handicap of wearing jerseys of a color to which they were not accustomed, while Wasco wore the orange, that the Astoria players have been used to passing to. Nevertheless, the coast team displayed as much teamwork as they did against Salem.

Medford, too, used all of its men in beating Franklin high of Portland 30 to 13. It was a fast game, with the Portlanders keeping even with the southerners on floor play, but failing in their shots.

Lewis, Archer and Anderson made the best showing for Medford, while Kretzmeir was Franklin's outstanding player.

SIDE LIGHTS ON TOURNAMENT

The Tillamook team is the best exponent of the old fashioned interception system of defense that has appeared in the tournament. That isn't strange, for Coach Russell Raley was the best back guard that R. L. Mathews ever developed, and breaking in after the ball was the whole secret of Mathews' basketball system.

Most of the spectators have been pronouncing the Astoria players' names improperly. They are all of the Finnish race, and the first syllable usually gets the accent in that language. All of these boys' names are pronounced that way.

Coach R. L. Keene of Willamette has some tough boys among his lettermen, and that's why he parks them on the front row under the basket. They have taken some terrific jolts in several of the games, when the players came charging in.

A few people "booed" the Eugene players when they were introduced. Not so good.

There wasn't so much foolishness in the bleachers Friday night. There was too much at stake out on the floor.

Some people who parked their cars as close as they could to the Willamette gym had to walk three blocks to get to the game. But thanks to the increased seating capacity, everybody got in and found a place to sit—and every seat commands a full view of the playing floor.

THRILLER WRITER LIVES IN QUIET

Man Who Turns Out "Diamond Dick" and "Nick Carter" Likes Peace

OWASCO, N. Y.—(AP)—A comfortable home overlooking Owasco Lake, radiating an atmosphere of peace and respectability, is the daily scene of murder, carnage, robbery, and hairbreadth escapes at the present rate of 3000 words a day.

"Diamond Dick" and "Nick Carter," dime novel heroes of an earlier generation, live in this house with their creator, George Charles Jenks, lecturer, historian, playwright, actor, theatrical director, editor, printer and newspaperman.

The dauntless demon and desperate daredevil have undergone some changes since the y first lured boys to the barn for thrills in paper covers. Diamond Dick is now "Ted Strong," and Nick Carter adventures forth in a magazine instead of a novel.

The writer of these thrillers is a man over 77. For three generations he has entertained the youngsters of two continents. From 1903 to 1907 he produced 250 Diamond Dick stories, each 25,000 words in length. At times he wrote 10,000 words a day, four thrills to the hour, and averaged four days to the volume.

He got the background for his stories from his newspaper work. Once he covered a prize fight for the Associated Press on the Pennsylvania-West Virginia border, he said there to avoid interference by the police of either state. After the fight the crowd fought over the decision while returning on a river steamer. Jenks was forced to the overheated engine room, where he stripped off his outer to pen his account of the match.

He was born in England in 1850, came to this country in '72, got a job as printer's devil in Pittsburgh and rose to be an editorial writer for the Pittsburgh Press. He then invaded Paris, Row in New York, where he eventually settled down in a Brooklyn studio to write adventure novels. Eventually he moved here for the sake of quiet.

RHYNE AND CROWIN BATTLE FOR PLACE

Pittsburgh Has Keen Second Base Competition; Several Stars Injured

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 11.—(AP)—Keen competition for the second base position between Hal Rhyne and Joe Cronin continues to outshine everything else at the Pittsburgh Pirates' training camp.

Both are showing a world of stuff, neither has given any indication of weakness, and if Manager Donie Bush has come to any definite decision, he is keeping it to himself.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 11.—(AP)—An unkind fate has laid its hand on four American league's greatest stars, but in only two instances is it expected to hinder the pennant aspirations of individual clubs.

Walter Johnson, acclaimed as one of the greatest hurlers of all time, has received a fractured leg at the Tampa training camp of the Washington Senators. The leg is in a plaster cast and Walter's mishap has dampened the enthusiasm of the rejuvenated Senators.

Johnny Mostil, brilliant center-fielder of the Chicago White Sox, remains in a serious condition at Shreveport, La., from self-inflicted wounds.

Babe Ruth, the fetter of home runs and paid admissions, has a strained tendon at the St. Petersburg camp of the New York Americans.

Eddie Collins, considered by many as one of the "master minds of the four-pointed greenward," still has a blue leg, suffered much in the same manner as Johnson's. Ruth's injury was taken seriously tonight, for the Bambino has been confined to his hotel during the day and a trainer worked on the leg for some time.

Meanwhile exhibition games held the spotlight in Florida. Six teams were in action today.

SAN JOSE, Cal., March 11.—(AP)—The Portland Beavers held a good workout here this afternoon in preparation for their exhibition game with the Oakland Colored Giants tomorrow. Manager Ernie Johnson had Pitchers Bill Hughes, Joe Storti and Ray Liangori hurl to the batters and this trio got some hard work on the mound, as the players were on a hitting spree.

Five U. of O. Basketball Men to Be Given Letters

EUGENE, March 11.—(AP)—Five University of Oregon basketball men will receive varsity "O" sweaters for 1927, in which the Webfoots collected the northern section championship of the Pacific coast conference, William J. Reinhart, head coach, announced today.

Although the Oregonians played 23 games, 10 of which were conference tilts, the five regulars were the only players to gain enough minutes to receive awards. The list includes Algot Knute Westergren, all-star guard in 1925, 1926 and 1927; Roy Okerberg, all-coast center this year; Jerome Gunther, all-coast forward in 1926; Scott Milligan, guard; and Gordon Ridings, forward.

STEADY, FAST PLAY WINS FOR EUGENE

Second Game in One Day Is Faster Than First; Beats Marshfield

The old theory that a basketball team couldn't play real basketball in two games the same day, was blasted by the Eugene high quintet when it put up a better battle in defeating Marshfield 38 to 21 in the semi-finals Friday night, than it did to win from Medford 21 to 13 in the forenoon.

Unlike the Salem team which started its game with La Grande keyed too high, Eugene played cannily from the start, and speeded up as it went along, until it hit a stride that no other team in the tournament had reached; and it kept up that pace until the end.

The strain of tournament play was apparent in Marshfield's game, however, Chapman being the only one on the team not affected by it. This diminutive forward made all of Marshfield's points but one in the first half, and he kept up the same pace to the end of the game, gaining the reputation of being the cleverest dribbler of the 80 players who have taken part in the tournament.

In the second half, he got some help from his team mates, and in the final quarter the coast team held Eugene even, each scoring eight points.

Eberhart and Pitman vied with each other in leading the attack for Eugene, and Eberhart nosed out as high point man with 16, all on field goals. Both scored from all sorts of queer positions. Eugene's passing was nothing short of marvelous. There was steam behind every throw, and the players displayed a knack of hooking the ball overhead that made their passes hard to anticipate and harder to intercept. Very few of them were misdirected.

The game was passable rough, both of the centers being retired from the floor on personals.

The defeat served as a temporary halt in what appeared to be a steady march to the championship. Cochran now goes back into a first place tie with Jake Schaefer of Chicago, both with four wins and one defeat.

The two meet tomorrow in the final match of the tournament, which will decide who is to receive world billiards' latest crown.
