Bits For Breakfast
Since Salem did not win—Hurrah for the winning Eugene team!
In the passing of Charles F. Elgin, whose funeral was held yesterday afternoon, Salem lost a good citizen and his family a good husband, father and brother.
The Eugene Guard has this: A Californian from Los Angeles, temporarily marooned here by flood waters, looked at the Willamette river yesterday. "Quite a flood," he said; "quite a flood. But you ought to have seen the end.

Los Angeles river last week. There was a torrent for you. Why, it just tore out viaducts and buildings along its banks like they were paper. There is no other river anywhere like it. There is your true native-son spirit. Nothing but the biggest will do, even if it is a flood.
"John Barleycorn may not be entirely dead, but a lot of his old cronies are."—St. Helens Mist.

Scio, and it was later found that it had been made out for one dollar and that Cohen had apparently added the word "rifty" and the figure "5" to it.
Cohen is now in the county jail. His companion Lester Harvey was arrested on a charge of driving a car without an operator's license, and was fined $10 by Justice of the Peace Brazier Small. He is in jail in lieu of money to pay the fine.

Special made shoes—
Walk-Over has overcome the necessity of men having their shoes made special—
Many men have their shoes made over a special last — a piece of wood — kept for them in some shoe factory. Special made shoes cost more, and should, for the extra work involved in handling one pair of shoes in any factory requires changing of many machines for a single operation, greatly increasing labor cost.
Walk-Over Factories, Stock Departments and Retail Stores have a service for the man who when once fitted to a Standard Staple shoe enables that man to get another pair on just the same last, of just the same measurement, at any large city Walk-Over shoe store and at many of the smaller Walk-Over agencies.
It will be to your advantage to become one of the million wearers of Walk-Over Standard Staples. You will like the style of the shoes, the quality, the shoe-making, the service and the price.
We would like to show you in our store at armed with shot guns, but reversed his fire until one officer was upon him. He whirled and snapped his pistol in the officer's face, but it missed fire and he surrendered.

This leaves at large only Bernardo Roa, a cripple who hobbles on a crutch to reinforce legs shattered by some of the 21 bullets received after the prison break of last May.
Back at Joliet the three desperate white men, Charles Duchowski, Charles Shadler and Walter Staleski, finally called out they would surrender after reserve guards had been rushed to the jail and tear bombs had been tossed into their cell.
"This cost $1500," was the only information obtained from the Americans. It was snarled out by Duchowski, who was credited with being the leader in the penitentiary break of last May when Klein was killed.
were given pay for an additional eight days for good measure or a total of $275 for the session. Not content with this compensation one member of the senate put through an allowance of $350 for his stenographer while stenographers for two other senators toiled in committee clerkships for which one received $402.50 in additional pay and the other $235 in addition to her salary as stenographer. One legislative employee, a chief clerk in an important committee was paid a total of $900 for his services during the session, the payroll showing that he put in 74 days overtime in addition to 46 days of straight time work.
That the cost of lawmaking is keeping pace with the mounting costs in other lines is shown by a study of legislative expenses for several sessions past. The session of 1901, for instance, cost the taxpayers a total of $62,273.78 or considerably less than one-half the cost of the last session. By 1919 this expense had mounted to $97,780.88. The 1921 session cost $110,641.07, the 1923 session dropped back to $106,773.93 and the 1925 session mounted to $121,391.41.
Klasko forced the wildly racing taxicab to the curb, and at that moment the Mexicans opened fire. George Grant, shot through the abdomen, and probably fatally wounded, and William Frost, shot in the arm and leg, were put out of the fight, and Klasko alone was left. The Mexicans leaped from their taxicab and ran. Klasko took careful aim, and dropped Gregario Rizo with a bullet just under the heart. He probably will die.
In the fusillade the chauffeur of the stolen taxicab, John Marciniak, 23, was shot in the leg.
The district was combed by squads of detectives and policemen and 20 minutes later Torres with two other Mexicans audaciously walked from a house and sauntered off down an alley. He was pursued by policemen

Twanging a guitar or playing a mouth organ as a loud accompaniment to native folk songs, the Mexicans had drowned the scraping of the steel upon steel as one of them sawed through the bars before which he knelt, apparently in prayer before an improvised altar, seemingly under the urge of a newly acquired religion.
Then, shortly before dawn today, two of them crept into the corridor outside their cells, "covered" two guards on duty there with pistols, and gagged them and tied them, standing, to the cell bars.
Four other guards and deputy sheriffs were silently stolen upon until finally the night force had been corralled and left standing spread-eagle and gagged against cross barred cells.
Then came the, to them, most untoward incident. The key to the cell of the Americans they had expected to find on one of the guards was locked in the jail safe. Tossing pistols into the cell of the men who were sentenced to die with them, the Mexicans shouted an "adios" and dashed to the back yard of the jail.
There they encountered John Krinich, a deputy sheriff, with his automobile.
They impressed him as chauffeur and in the next 90 minutes dashed 60 miles over rain greased concrete highways to Indiana Harbor, Ind., which boasts of a large Mexican settlement. There the motor car was smashed and abandoned, and still taking Krinich with them, they forced a taxicab chauffeur to race with them to a corner in southeast Chicago near which one of the escaped convicts knew relatives lived.
Careening wildly through the night, the commandeered taxicab was spied by Sergeant John Klasko of the detective bureau and two men of his squad.
Klasko forced the wildly racing taxicab to the curb, and at that moment the Mexicans opened fire.
