

SIDELIGHTS OF THE STAGE and SCREEN

Oregon Theater
An Irish-Jewish epic has at last been screened! It is the newest Gold Bond Special offered by F. B. O., namely "Kosher Kitty Kelly," which shows at the Oregon theater for the last time, today, March 17. There is perhaps no situation more delightfully humorous than the battle that wages night and day in New York's East Side for the supremacy of the Kellies over the Feinbaums. The predicament offers a thousand laughs and a number of heart-throbs based on the genuine sympathy which these opponents incite in all who watch their struggles. Both races are so deeply and endlessly rich in an abounding wealth of fresh humor and rare pathos, that they seem forever to bring new and delightful situations for the delectation of the spectators.

The gay Parisians of Francois Villon's time must have believed in Santa Claus because they made their roofs conveniently over-lapping and any portly gentleman with white whiskers who wished to run across the housetops had little difficulty. In John Barrymore's new picture, "The Beloved Rogue," which shows at the Oregon theater March 18, 19, 20, 21, 22 and 23, the famous actor rushes across these snow-capped roofs thumbing his finger at authorities, hastening to his mother's house, reeking into his sweet-heart's chamber and, whenever threatened with arrest, concealing himself among the chimneys and sheltering eaves.

Elsinore Theater
Rich in comedy, with a melodramatic flavor, and a capital story, Al Christie's latest comedy production, "The Nervous Wreck," shows at the Elsinore today March 17 for the last time.

One cannot follow the fortunes of the two nervous wrecks in this picture—wrecks in spirit perhaps, but not in their physical capacity to do big things in the way of eating and causing excitement—without enjoying one's self hugely. Mr. Ford was a droll figure as the leading wreck who has gone to Arizona presumably to die, but whose escapades nearly cause him to be lynched by the Sheriff, his jealous rival in love for the rancher's daughter, played by Miss Haver. You'll squirm with glee, at the antics of Conklin, as cook and cowboy, while Swain's performance as a de luxe rancher will remind you forcibly of his work in Charlie Chaplin's comedies, and tickle your risibilities as of old. The spinning plate episode done by Ford is excellent in its way. No one who enjoys the best amusement the screen has to offer, can afford to miss this delightful and bracing feature comedy.

Mr. Wu and his Chinese revue are offering a unique and interesting novelty at the Elsinore to day, March 17 for the last time. It is called "At the feet of Buddha." Gorgeous costumes and wonderful settings are especially features of this delightful presentation. There are many new songs and dances, which will please everyone. The oriental settings are remarkable and add a great deal to the picturesqueness of the performance.

"The Man in Blue" will be the picture at the Elsinore theater for one day, March 18. In addition to the picture there will be several acts of a fine vaudeville bill, which are sure to please.

Capitol Theater
Hoot Gibson appearing in "The Buckaroo Kid" will be the special attraction at the Capitol theater for two days, March 17 and 18. This is a very interesting screen version of a story by Peter B. Kyne and will be pleasing and entertaining to the theater goers.

The Pantages vaudeville will be the special attraction at the Capitol theater on Monday. This company has been sending some excellent bills to Salem and the advance notices on the acts scheduled for Monday indicate that this will be one of the very best entertainments seen here this season.

Navy physicians saved the lives of the three sailors by first giving each a spoonful of water every few hours for two days, then adding a few spoonfuls of broth. After recovering part of their strength, the sailors were taken from the Wood at Balboa and sent to the government hospital.

The 14 foot boat in which the three sailors were found had drifted 800 miles northwest from where the Albatross foundered and was 270 miles off shore.

Other members of the crew of the ill fated Albatross were picked up by the destroyers Kildar and Sloat.

MIXING OF POISON FOR GRAY DIGGERS

The Work of Rodent Control Going on in Marion and Other Counties

County Fruit Inspector S. H. Van Trump will on Monday next oversee the mixing of 1200 pounds of poison for the gray diggers of this county.

He will keep a supply on hand at the court house, to be had at the office of County Treasurer Dave Drager, and also at the banks at Silverton, Stayton, Mt. Angel and St. Paul.

A. M. Moore, first deputy federal rodent control leader for this district, was in Salem Tuesday, looking after matters in connection with his duties.

Over the State
Ira N. Gabrielson, rodent control leader, United States department of agriculture, with headquarters at Portland, is out with a circular dated March 1st, from which the following paragraphs are taken:

"The first of March, despite the rainiest February for a great many years, finds the squirrel poisoning work well under way, and 30,500 pounds of poisoned grain were prepared during the month by the rodent control force. In addition to the poison prepared in many counties, there were several others that had enough held over from last season's work to start off. With new county agents in Yamhill and Walla Walla counties, the squirrel campaign should be handled better than ever before, as this places county agents in all of the major agricultural counties except two, and in one of these poison work is handled by the county court."

"Poison has been mixed in the following counties so far this year: Baker, Malheur, Umatilla, Union, Walla Walla, Wasco, Lincoln, Benton, Douglas, Lane, Polk, Yamhill, Klamath, Clackamas and Columbia. Jackson and Josephine had hold-over poison left to start off the work."

"Judging from the poison demand and sack orders, squirrels have put in an appearance promptly on schedule in all parts of the state, and warm, sunny days in March will offer ideal opportunity."

H. CROARKIN GETS LIFE

Hammer Murderer of Six Year Old Boy Not to Be Hanged

CHICAGO, March 16.—(AP)—Less than three hours after retiring to deliberate, a jury tonight found Harold J. Croarkin guilty of the murder of six year old Walter Schmidth, whom he beat to death with a hammer, and fixed his punishment at life imprisonment.

Life imprisonment, it appeared, had been a compromise between the state's contention that the 25 year old son of a Chicago flour dealer was sane when he beat the child to death in a north side riding academy after attempting to mistreat him last December 17, and therefore, should be sentenced to death, and the plea of the defense that he was insane then and is insane now, and should be sent to an asylum.

STATE OFFICIAL SHOT

Attorney in Illinois Town Wounded by Unknown Assailant

MARION, Ill., March 16.—(AP)—State's Attorney Arlie Boswell of Williamson county was shot and wounded by an unidentified assailant tonight as he was closing the door of his garage after returning home.

Boswell's assailant escaped. The prosecutor was rushed to the Union hospital at West Frankfort, where it was discovered his wound was not serious. The shot was evidently fired at close range by someone hidden near his home.

This was the second attack on Boswell's life in seven months. An assailant fired several shots at him last September, but not took effect.
