

GOOD HEALTH BIG NEED IN EDUCATION

Howard Gives Interesting Address Before Rotary Club on Fundamentals

The "three R's" are fundamentals of education, but there are matters even more fundamental, it was declared by C. A. Howard, state superintendent of public instruction, in an address at the Rotary club luncheon Wednesday.

One of the most obvious of these is health, and the practicability of improving general health through education has been demonstrated through increasing the average span of life in the United States 15 years in the 40 years since a health program was introduced in the schools, Howard said.

Athletics, regarded by some as a distracting influence in the schools, aid this health program even when they are confined to the few, for the athlete is an ever present example of the rewards of sound physique, he added.

Other fundamentals are intellectual honesty, a scientific attitude of mind, recognition that the world is changing, and utilization of the emotional factor as an educational aid, Howard enumerated.

No generation can arrange the future for its sons and daughters, but it can recognize that the world is changing and prepare these young people to meet the changes, he explained.

The emotional stimulus, the speaker concluded, comes chiefly through the student's contact with inspiring characters, and men such as the members of the Rotary club can perform no better service than to foster contact with young people whose lives they may influence, the speaker concluded.

BOY SEEKS STATE HELP

Youth Wants to Publish Paper in Hassel, His Home Town

Cleson Davis, 16, of Hassel, Oregon, has written a letter to C. A. Howard, state superintendent of schools, urging state assistance in launching a newspaper in his home town.

The youth wanted to know the actual cost of purchasing machinery for the plant, the average wage paid to employees, and whether he would have to wait until he was 21 years of age before engaging in business.

The letter was turned over to Hal Hoss, private secretary to Governor Patterson, who informed Davis that about $20,000 would be required to place his proposed printing plant on a sound financial basis.

Mr. Hoss concluded his letter by stating that the state had made no appropriation under which newspaper editors could receive financial assistance.

WOMEN STRUGGLE AT SALE OF GEMS

Russion Crown Jewels Auctioned as Crowds Battle for Admission

LONDON, March 16.—(AP)—Women fought for admission to Christie's showrooms today to attend an auction of a collection of royal Russian jewels, including the famous nuptial crown of Catherine the Great, which brought a total of £80,561, or almost $400,000.

The nuptial crown, as it is described to distinguish it from the great imperial coronation crown, was sold early to a Paris firm for £1300. It has double rows of fine brilliants set in borders of smaller stones and surmounted by a cross of six large brilliants.

Necklaces, tiaras, pendants, bracelets, gold goblets and a jewel encrusted court sword of Paul I—all jewels worn by the rulers and nobility of imperial Russia—purchased recently by an English syndicate, were sold in 124 lots to close a partnership account.

The glittering treasures holding so many romantic and tragic associations were taken from a secret underground strongroom where they had been guarded night and day, only a few minutes before the sale. So eager was the crowd at the show rooms, mostly women, to see the unprecedented array of diamonds on auction, that the doors of Christie's had to be kept closed.

GREAT HOLSTEINS OF THIS DISTRICT

Some of the Best of Breed Are on Marion County Dairy Farms

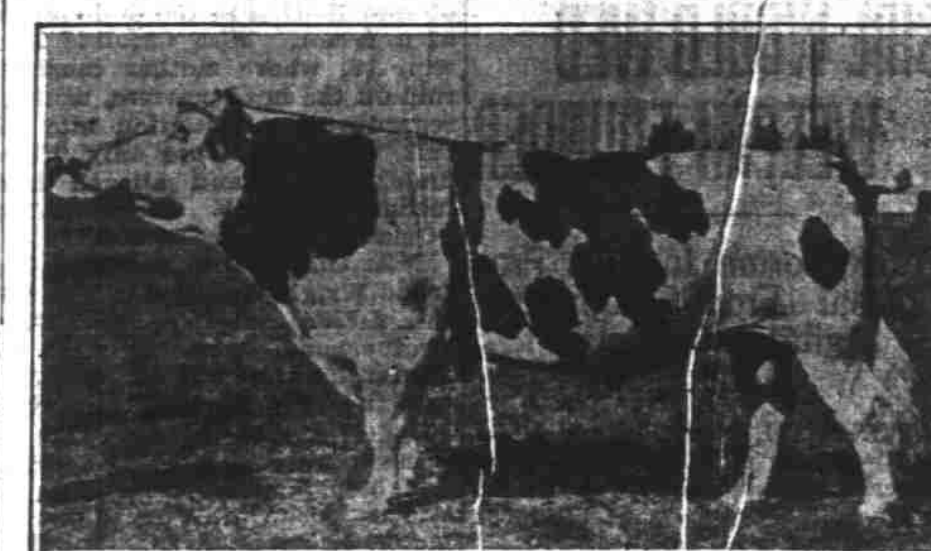

Some of the greatest Holsteins of the world have been produced or are now on the dairy farms of this section.

The outstanding show cow of this breed of the 1926 circuit—the all American age cow, is Model Segis Prilley Gelsache, bred and raised by Clem Bering of Mt. Angel, Marion county, Oregon. This cow gave 31,588 pounds of milk which produced 1282 pounds of butter in 12 months.

The highest milk producer in the world was Segis Pictorje Prospect, of the Carnation stock farm, Seattle, with a record of 37,381 pounds of milk in 365 days—topping the record of all ages and breeds. This world's greatest cow in milk flow died two years ago.

Nearer to Salem F. W. Durbin & Son, Salem, with about 100 Holstein cows on their Meadow Lawn dairy farm just east of the Salem city limits, had 16 Holsteins entered at the Oregon state fair last fall, and they drew down 16 first prizes.

Their aged cow, Lady Sergis Pontiac De Kol Burk, winning the senior and grand championships, finished a seven day record with

Their Lady Iris Homestead De Kol, first prize two year old, broke the Oregon state record by giving 22.61 pounds of butter in seven days, her milk testing 4 per cent. The sister of this cow, Lady Marion Sergis Homestead, who topped the three year old record at the state fair, produced 23.66 pounds of butter in seven days, with the unusual test of 4.7 per cent.

Queen Inka Dell Homestead, second prize three year old and fourth at the Pacific International, has a record of 26.37 pounds butter in seven days, placing her second in Oregon. Average test, 4.3.

Durbin & Son are to start more pure bred on official record tests next Monday, and they expect to make some outstanding new showings.
