

SIDE LIGHTS OF THE STAGE and SCREEN

Capitol Theater
 Something in the nature of a sensation will be seen on the screen at the Capitol theater tonight at the opening performance of Jules Verne's famous melodrama "Michael Strogoff," long popular as a book and as a play, and now filmed for the first time and presented by Carl Laemmle as a Universal-Film de France production. A handsome and personable young Russian actor, Ivan Moskine, said to be "Europe's idol of the screen," heads a brilliant group of principals, supported by a cast said to number 6,000. The performance of the star as the intrepid hero, a "secret courier of the czar," was a splendid realization of Verne's famous character, and left nothing to be desired. The story concerns itself with the adventure of Strogoff on a 5,000 mile journey from Moscow to Irkutsk in Siberia, with a message from the czar to his brother, the Grand Duke, in command of the Russian troops, who is threatened by an uprising of the semi-barbaric Tartars under Feofar, the Grand Khan.

Elsinore Theater
 "Across the Pacific," adapted by Daryl Zanuck from the Charles D. Blaney story, tells of the romance and adventure of a young Southern boy who volunteers to the Philippines to quell the insurrection of Aguinaldo, which followed the Spanish-American War.

What are said to be some of the finest battle sequences ever filmed show the American troops in their heroic advance through jungle and swamp against enemies whom they cannot see, annoyed by tropical insects and sick with heat and fever. This could not be portrayed on the stage nor does it have great dramatic significance to the eye-witness, but through the magic eye of the camera, which carries one from the advancing line to the enemy's trenches; to an individual native sniper; to a hand-to-hand combat; to an American boy seeing the last moments of his stricken buddy; to the staffs of the commanding officers; one sees the battle from every angle, gets a more comprehensive view of the battle than even the generals.

It is all these things, artfully presented in their proper order, which give a panoramic splendor impossible of portrayal on the stage. "Across the Pacific" will show at the Elsinore theater on March 22.

Oregon Theater
 "Put him to torture!" Such a command conjures up in the minds of the present generation a picture of the early ages that is at once romantic and awe-inspiring, a reminder that justice was not always administered as it is in the present, highly civilized era. The practice of torture, which fills such black pages in the history of the world, provides many thrilling moments in "The Beloved Rogue," John Barrymore's initial United Artists Picture, which shows at the Oregon theater today and tomorrow, March 22-23.

ture as the lovable, impulsive Francois Villon, brilliant versifier and equally talented housebreaker of fifteenth century Paris. Deeply in love with Charlotte de Vauxcelles, ward of Louis XI, he incurs the wrath of Charles, Duke of Burgundy, who through the marriage of Charlotte to one of his aides, seeks to obtain a stranglehold on the crown.

Released from the torture chamber, Villon is cast into a great cage and hoisted far up the side of the castle to swing helplessly before the window of his adored Charlotte, played by Marceline Day. This situation, in which Barrymore and Miss Day enact what are perhaps the most gripping scenes of the picture, is but one of the many odd positions in which Barrymore finds himself during his colorful portrayal of Villon, the most romantic character on the screen.

Special Meetings Held at Church on Sunday

PRATON, March 21.—(Special.)—Rev. John Mickey and Wallace Witham, both of Salem, conducted meetings here Sunday morning and evening respectively, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Ira Dumas, who is helping Rev. Merridith Groves conduct revival services at Turner.

Rev. John Franz was able to fill his place again in the pulpit Sunday.

Mrs. Catherine Wenger is very ill at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hoff Stetler.

Mrs. A. Hensch, who is very sick at her home, is improving slowly.

Oscar Meyer and family spent the week-end at Portland and Mrs. Meyer will stay several weeks trying to improve her health.

A. W. Powell sold his fine lot of potatoes. Although there is much musical talent in this community, John Tweed and family have probably the distinction of being the only family where every member plays a different instrument efficiently. Mrs. Tweed plays the piano, Miss Ellen the slide trombone, Edgar the trumpet, Miss Margery the violin with a recorded history of 200 years and no one knows how much older, valued at $500. Robert plays the clarinet and John the phonograph.

Miss Blanche Cornu from Salem parked her car at the old home gate last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Roth recently purchased a fine player piano.

Heavy Snow Forces Silver Falls Camp to Close Down

SILVERTON, Ore., March 21.—(Special.)—Silver Falls Timber company camps which opened a week ago, were forced to close again because of the heavy snows which fell during the past week. About 100 loggers came down in the middle of the week, while those remaining came out Saturday afternoon. Loggers reported from three to five feet of snow. Camps will open again as soon as the snow is sufficiently melted to permit work. The Silver Falls Timber company mill, which is the only active sawmill at Silverton, is also down, and will remain so until logs begin to come in.

FIRE HOSE HALTS RIOT

Interclass Fuss at Johns Hopkins Ends in Injuries to 30

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 21.—(AP)—High pressure fire hose halted a riot of nearly 400 Johns Hopkins university students here tonight in the shadow of Maryland state house, after shots had been fired by police and an appeal had been made to the governor for the national guard.

Approximately 30 students were injured, several seriously, and damage estimated at $3000 was done to the national guard armory, where an attacking force of Johns Hopkins sophomores attempted to break up the annual freshmen class dinner. Nine were arrested and other participants in the riot were being sought.
