PAIR CONFESS: BRUTAL KILLING TRIANGLE CASE

nickname of "Tommy" today broke down after 14 hours of grilling in a police station, and related to the police the sordid details of the murder of her husband before dawn Sunday.

Triangle Indicated
It was the "old story" said the police, "the eternal triangle," of a young woman linked in marriage for "freedom" with the "other man" resulting in a crime premeditated brutality, described by the police as unparalleled in years.

The principals in the crime are: Albert Snyder, art editor of a magazine of motor boating, 45 years old; his attractive bobbed haired wife, Ruth, 32; and his wife's "friend" Henry Judd Gray, 34, accused by her in an alleged confession of the actual slaying. Snyder is dead from blows on the head with an iron bar, and from his neck having been nearly twisted through with picture wire.

The other two are held by the police in widely separated cities.

Mrs. Hattie Busick — J. K. Cloyd

in New York state. Gray was arrested in Syracuse, N. Y., in a hotel room, at 1:30 o'clock this morning.

Gray Denies Presence
Fully dressed, dapperly so, Gray, a corset salesman, and a husband and father with a residence in Orange, N. J., shrugged his shoulders at the entrance of the police, they said, and denied any knowledge of the crime.

He had been in Syracuse since Friday, he said, and while he admitted he had been intimate with Mrs. Snyder, he added that he had never met her husband.

In a police station at Long Island City, Mrs. Snyder was continuing, according to the police, the story of the slaying.

This story was a new one, replete with lurid details. It completely swept away her first hysterical outburst that she had been seized, bound and gagged by "a giant of a man" while another beat to death her husband.

The alleged confession told of the return of the Snyder family to their modest home in Queens Village—the husband and his wife and their nine year old daughter Lorraine, from a bridge whist game at a neighbor's home, after midnight Sunday.

Mr. Snyder, who had had "quite a lot to drink" wanted to go to bed, she is alleged to have said, and she helped him undress.

Dead in one ear, she placed him on the bed with his "head ear up" and then, the police say, she let Gray into the house.

In the next room, the two had a few drinks, the statement said, and after Gray is alleged to have said "I can't live without you" the murder was planned.

flight over the North Pole to speak of and several reels of the finest motion pictures so that the eye can grasp what the mind hears.

Instrument Found
Gray is alleged to have struck the sleeping man with an iron instrument, which the police believe was the iron pinbar found, together with rubber gloves in Gray's grip in Syracuse.

Snyder's feet were tied together with a necktie, his hands bound with picture wire and his throat gashed with a twisted loop of the same material. In addition traces of an anesthetic were found in his organs.

After the crime, the confession alleges, the two attempted to make the house appear as if there had been a robbery.

The alarm, six hours after the crime, was given circuitously by Mrs. Snyder, who from her position on the floor of a hallway, aroused her sleeping daughter, Lorraine, 9 years old by knocking at her daughter's bedroom.

The child called a neighbor, who summoned the police to investigate what seemed to have been a robbery inspired murder.

The daughter told police "Mama and papa quarrelled lots" because her mother stayed away from home nights. Discovery of letters from Gray and the existence of a diary telling of her feeling for him brought about questions which resulted in the wife's formal confession, the police said.

The much talked of fight which was expected to develop at the regular meeting of common council last night over the award of sand and gravel bids failed to materialize when the Salem Sand & Gravel company won the preference by underbidding their nearest competitor. Oregon Gravel company from five to 15 cents per yard on each specification. The Portland firm bid still higher.

The Salem firm's bids were, for zone one; sand, $1.55; gravel, $1.10; and concrete gravel, $1.50. Those for the Oregon Gravel company were: sand, $1.60; gravel, $1.15; concrete gravel, $1.45; and for the Portland Sand & Gravel company; sand, $1.50; gravel, $1.17; and concrete gravel, $1.67. Prices raised five cents per yard on each consecutive zone.

The principal controversy arose on the selection of sewer pipe, the choice resting between those of concrete offered by the Oregon Gravel company and those of vitrified clay, offered by Salem Brick

The contract for 165 catch basin grates was awarded to W. W. Rosebraugh Co. of Salem, competing against Woods-Ewing of Portland and Salem Iron Works.

The matter of insurance was brought up by Alderman Rosebraugh of the proposed increase of insurance carried on the city hall. A move to insure the building for $28,750 rather than the old amount of $13,800 carried unanimously.
