Prominent Hubbard Pioneer Celebrates 85th Birthday.
Hubbard, Or., March 26.—(Special.)—George J. Wolfer, one of Hubbard's fine old pioneers, celebrated his 85th birthday Friday evening when a crowd of relatives and friends surprised him and loaded him with presents. At the banquet, "Dad," as he is lovingly called, grew reminiscent and related how he came to Hubbard 60 years ago over the plains from Missouri. Mr. Wolfer is the owner of the Hubbard mineral springs. He is an active member of the club and a 100 per cent booster for Hubbard. His fine collection of relics and antiques is his hobby and his visits with old friends his chief delight. Dad says he will live to be 100, "and then some."

AMERICAN FIELDS OF HONOR OVERSEAS
Third had seen lots of them, and there were more ahead of them, as well as the Fourth, 28th, 32nd, and 77th, as we pushed on to the Vesle and finally to the Aisne valley. It is principally the dead of these divisions which lie here in serried rows under the Star and Stripes. They come from every corner of the Union, the names on the crosses representing east and west, north and south. That is why Belleau will be the big concentrated point for the Legionnaires as they make their sacred pilgrimage to the cemeteries.

Maybe it was Bill Srew's Alabamans who first surked up this slope, hollering "Heaven, Hell or Hoboken before Christmas." Maybe it was that bunch of New Yorkers yelling "Guts and bayonets," a cheerful little chorus that originated from the commander of Captain Richard Ryan: "Drop your packs. If you come back you can get them and if you don't you won't need them. All you need from here on is guts and bayonets." Like enough it was neither, but these crazy Iowans who will probably be back here next September with Senator Dan Steck (whoever thought about being a senator in those days) and the rest of the American Legion convention crowd which always seems to have Iowans—more or less crazy still at reunion times—in the vanguard.

Be this as it may, and the Legionnaires will probably settle it when they refight the battle on the ground next fall. Those who did not come back from that and the other charges of the July-September campaigning, are at peace under the green sod of this lovely quiet cemetery. They lie in well ordered rows, except in one little section which was part of a temporary cemetery, and is yet to be rearranged in symmetry with the whole plan of architectural and landscape development.

Officially this larger and central cemetery of the Marne salient is called the Oisne-Aisne cemetery just as Belleau is called the Aisne-Marne cemetery.

From the five days fighting of July 28 to August 2, the enemy retreated to the Vesle river, and from there by mid-September he had been driven almost to the Aisne. There had been a special engagement by the 32nd Division on the left and beyond the Aisne, taking Juigny, and from all these later fields, the heroic dead were later brought to rest near Fere-en-Tardenois.

The beautifying of these cemeteries under the auspices of the graves registration service of the army has gone steadily forward. Caretakers are located at each, and there are rest houses for visitors, where the records are carefully kept so that individual graves may be promptly located. The bodies which were asked for by relatives have been returned to the states. Those which remain will rest henceforth in fields of honor whose improvement will go forward until no finer cemeteries will be found in any land.

The American Battle Monuments commission has charge of the future major improvements. At Fere-en-Tardenois a chapel will be erected, costing about $140,000 designed by Cram and Ferguson, Boston architects, who have likewise planned the chapel at Belleau, which will cost approximately $110,000. Masonry walls will be completed around each and the landscape work will be continued. Already the trees and shrubbery make the sites very attractive. These cemetery chapels and other improvements have had the approval of congress, and form a major project of the Battle Monuments commission, which also has the task of planning and erecting the official American monuments on our own battlefields overseas, and of passing upon all private projects for overseas memorials.

It is worth recording that every American grave in Europe is decorated on every Memorial Day by the American Legion, the flags and flowers being secured from the interest of a perpetual trust

OF NEWBERG, OREGON
6000 Shares Common Stock—Par Value of $100 per Share
6000 Shares Cumulative Preferred Stock—Par Value of $100 per Share
The cumulative preferred stock bears 8 per cent dividends, payable semi-annually, and is cumulative from the date of issue. If dividends are not paid for a period of two years this preferred stock becomes voting stock and so remains until dividends are paid. Preferred stock is subject to redemption at $105 per share and accumulated dividends at any time after three years from issue.

HISTORY and BUSINESS—The Spaulding Pulp & Paper Company, an Oregon corporation, is erecting a modern pulp and paper mill on the bank of the Willamette River, in Newberg, where the natural advantages of location, raw materials, rail and water transportation combine with sound business judgment on the part of executives to insure success for the enterprise. The company will equip its plant with the latest and best machinery in the paper making industry, and will manufacture the higher grades of sulphite paper that yield a higher price per pound than newsprint.

ADVANTAGE OF LOCATION—The location of the plant is ideal. The site comprises 12 acres of land adjoining the large sawmill of the Spaulding Logging Company. On one side is a paved highway and on another a spur track which connects with the Southern Pacific. Ample water will be obtained from the Willamette River. There is a bountiful supply of pulp wood in the vicinity of Newberg and this may be brought to the plant at advantageous freight rates.

PERSONNEL—The company is headed by Chas. K. Spaulding, president of the Chas. K. Spaulding Logging Company. His knowledge of pulp wood equals that of any man in the west. For 35 years he supplied the larger mills of Oregon with pulp wood obtained from the upper river. His business ability is known and respected throughout the Northwest. Mr. Spaulding has associated with him a board of directors comprising leading business men of Eugene, Salem, Newberg, McMinnville and Portland. Technical work in the plant will be in charge of men who have proven their ability after many years in the industry.

FINANCING—Already more than $600,000 common and preferred stock has been sold. This is sufficient to complete a pulp plant of 50-ton daily capacity, which will be in operation in a few months. This plant is now under construction and those interested are invited to make a trip to Newberg and inspect the work in progress. With the completion of this plant pulp will be shipped to the markets of the Atlantic Coast and Middle West at prices that will show substantial profits. With the pulp plant in operation work of erecting the paper mill will start. No bonus or promotion stock has been issued. Organizers of the company are paying the same amount for their stock that other investors are paying. To date it has cost the Spaulding Pulp & Paper Company about 1 1/2 per cent to obtain more than one-half of its required capital.
