A LENTEN MEDITATION

By the Rev. Charles Stelzel

God's gifts are superlatives. His peace is perfect. His pardon is complete. His strength is everlasting. His supply is inexhaustive. His love is infinite.

OVER 1100 TAKING AGRICULTURE

The contention that agriculture, along with other branches of vocational training, should be taken up in the public schools of Salem does not present a new problem in this state. For over 1100 high school students in 30 high schools in Oregon are now taking agriculture.

Agricultural courses were inaugurated in the McMinnville public schools a number of years ago, when Prof. Geo. W. Hug, now city superintendent of schools here, had the same position there; and these courses have been successfully carried on there ever since.

One does not have to go further away than Woodburn to find agricultural courses being maintained in the public schools, as courses in connection with general vocational subjects have for some time been carried on there, connecting school work with work on the farms of that section, which supply a considerable proportion of the student body.

And at Stayton we find the high school students voting ten to one in favor of commencing school work at 8:15 in the morning for the balance of the year, in order to allow the students a better chance to assist in the work on the farms. This is sensible and practical. It is in line with the idea that school life should be hooked up with the life of the community, and with the future careers of the students.

Salem is in the first place an agricultural community; a section where fruit and nut growing and dairying and swine and poultry breeding, and the many and diversified industries on the land, are and ought to be the big thing. Cooperating with the industries in the city, furnishing them their raw materials sent out to the markets of the world in manufactured form.

The more our public school work can be made to mesh in with both farm and factory industries, the better for both; the better for the future of city and country; the better for the coming careers of the growing generation. Salem is already doing something in the line of vocational training. Four more lathes have just been added to the equipment for vocational training in our public schools.

The Salem public schools are doing another thing, among a number of things worthy of the spirit of modern training. At the Parrish, Richmond, Grant and Lincoln schools, opportunity classes are being conducted in separate rooms, where students with special talents in some directions and perhaps deficiencies in others are given special training, where manual work comes in to teach the mind through the hand; where the pupils are made happy in doing the things they like to do and for which they are the best fitted.

Congress are hurrying the matter as fast as possible. This whole incident is going to teach our people to be more alert in protecting themselves in such matters in the future.

Aurora is to have a pickle factory. The Willamette valley, with the aid of the irrigation that is easily available, could almost supply the world with pickles.

When the petitions are ready, every voter in Salem ought to take it as a privilege and a duty to sign in favor of putting the matter of city ownership of the water works on the ballot for the June 28 special election. This is the most important matter before Salem as a municipality at the present time.

Bits For Breakfast

There are three kinds—

Three principal styles of the commission form of city government developed in this country— First, the form in use in Portland, where three commissioners both make and administer the laws; an anachronism, considered in the light of the views of the founders of our Republic.

Second, the managerial form, with the mayor or manager either elected by the people or chosen by the city council.

Third, what has come to be known as the corporation form. This is the most popular; the most generally being adopted by cities in this country now. It calls for a city council, corresponding to the directors of a corporation. The city council makes the laws; passes the ordinances. It selects the mayor or manager, and the manager or mayor selects all his subordinates, with or without the consent of the council. The mayor manager corresponds in his duties with the president of a corporation.

The corporation form is the easiest to carry before the people, because they are likely to be jealous of their sectional rights; to want to return their own local councilmen. And perhaps that is the best form, too.

French Increase Guard PARIS, Mar. 28.—(AP)—French reinforcements have been ordered from Tonkin, Annam, to support the already sizeable French force now protecting France's concessions in Shanghai.

The reinforcements will consist of white colonial troops plus a force of Annamites, who are considered here the most loyal colonial troops and incapable of being swayed by Cantanese propaganda.

It was made clear at the foreign office today that France intends to defend her concessions in Shanghai against any Chinese aggression and that there was no thought of evacuation, as has been reported.

Tension Relaxed WASHINGTON, Mar. 28.—(AP)—Hope that a general outbreak of anti-foreign violence in China will be averted revived in official Washington tonight after examination of navy and state department advices.

All messages showed a relaxation of the high tension at Shanghai which prompted Admiral Williams' hurry call for reinforcements, already on their way or being mobilized to sail.

Danger to Americans in the treaty ports and the Yangtze valley is far from over, however, and international military and naval forces at Shanghai are taking precautions to guard against mob attack on the international settlement at the instigation of Chinese agitators. For the moment, at least, moderate leaders among the nationalists appeared in control. In the meantime, Americans continued to pour out of the danger zone under the urging of Minister MacMurray, at Peking, and consults to whom his instructions to issue renewed warnings to leave were sent. Two consulates in the far up-river regions are to be closed and Americans even at Canton have been warned to evacuate.

Aside from the lessening tension at Shanghai, reported officially by Consul General Gauss and reflected in Admiral Williams' orders withdrawing part of his blue-jacket landing force to the ships, failure of the general labor union ultimatum demanding removal of barriers and defenses around the settlement to be followed up by mob action or the threatened general strike, was regarded as evidence that Cantanese military forces were endeavoring to hold again in check.

Word of this development from Gauss was supplemented by his statement that Cantanese troops were guarding the native side of the barriers at the French concession to prevent violence.

Apprehension Aroused The latest dispatches said Chang Kai Shek, Cantanese commander in chief, had attended the mass meeting in the native city, which aroused apprehension. The meeting adopted resolutions against imperialism, demanded retrocession of the foreign settlement but urged the Cantanese government to negotiate with the powers to that end.

From Hankow, Consul General Lockhart cabled in a delayed message that Eugene Chen, Cantanese foreign minister, had asked him to convey to Washington sincere regret of the loss of an American life at Nanking, "regardless of whether or not these acts were committed by northern or nationalist troops."

"Chen has stated that he will issue a statement as soon as the facts of the incident are definitely established," the message added.

National to be $21,437,497. Deposits were $18,317,390. Surplus and undivided profits were $521,676.

PORTLAND, March 28.—(AP) A run today on the Northwestern National bank of Portland, promoted, the Morning Oregonian will say tomorrow, by "unfounded and malicious rumors circulated by telephone," started this morning and continued until the close of business tonight. In order to accommodate as many depositors as possible, the bank did not close at the usual hour but remained open until 6 o'clock.

Late today directors of the bank and officers of the Portland Clearing House association were in session considering the affairs of the institution. It was expected they would issue a statement later.

RICH INDIAN GIRL THOUGHT KIDNAPED

Disappears in Auto With Sleek Looking Stranger; Fortune in Court

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Mar. 28.—(AP)—Millie Naharkey, known as the "poor little rich Indian girl," who has an estate valued at $400,000 tied up in litigation, but who has been virtually an object of charity for nearly four years, is missing from her home here.

A Kansas automobile, a glib-tongued stranger, sleek of hair and handsome of feature, figure in the disappearance of the girl. Friends fear she has been kidnaped.

Government agents searching for the girl who disappeared Saturday from the home of T. N. Roach, employe of the five civilized tribes here, today said they had a few leads on which they placed much hope of locating her.

Miss Naharkey, who is not more than 20 years old, yesterday stopped at a farm house, traveling with the stranger who called to see her at the Roach home Saturday. The automobile in which the pair was traveling, left the farmhouse, traveling north towards Tulsa, and has not been seen since.

With rumors of contemplated violence cropping out, efforts of investigators were redoubled today to locate the girl before she is delivered at a point believed to be the destination of abductors in Missouri.

Credence was given to the reports of an alleged plot, by the past adventures of the girl.

In June, 1922, she disappeared from her mother's home at Red Fork. She was found in abject poverty, washing dishes in Kansas City.

The girl, a Creek Indian, did not become rich from her government allotment, but through lands inherited from her father and his relatives. Litigation involving her estate grew out of concessions she is alleged to have made during her last absence.

Late Friday a young man, representing himself as a resident of Oswego, Kansas, and an acquaintance of the girl, appeared at the ranch and asked to see the girl. It was said.

The theory that the strange young man had something to do with the mystery was substantiated today when Roach received a telephone call from a farmhouse south of Tulsa. The message said that Millie was there Sunday afternoon and was accompanied by a man whose description tallied with that of the man who called on her.

UNLUCKIEST MAN HURT Lindgren Paralyzed in Slight Fall; His 97th Accident

GREAT FALLS, Mont., March 28.—(AP)—Paralyzed from the waist down and probably with a spinal fracture as the result of his 97th major accident, Ernest P. Lindgren, who calls himself "the unluckiest man in the world," was in a hospital here tonight. He stumbled over a porter's stool in the vestibule of a passenger train at Belt, Mont., today and fell down the car steps.

Lindgren has suffered 55 bone fractures, the loss of his left arm and nine toes when he was dragged three miles by a train, a skull fracture after which 39 pieces of bone were removed from his head, and every rib on his left side crushed.

He is philosophical, however. "What will happen will happen," he said, "and there isn't anything I can do about it."

PINEDO COMING NORTH South American Flier Will Visit Points Along Coast

HAVANA, March 28.—(AP)—Commander Francesco de Pinedo, who is scheduled to leave for New Orleans tomorrow, has revised his itinerary on the North American continent to carry him to the Pacific coast and then eastward to Washington and New York, with stops in Montreal and Quebec. He arrived here late today from Port Au Prince, Haiti, a distance of some 700 miles.

The revised itinerary, which will carry the aviator back to Rome, follows: New Orleans, Galveston, Hot Springs, San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Malta, (presumably Montana), Chicago, Montreal, Boston, Washington, New York, New Foundland, Horta in the Azores, Lisbon and finally Rome.

INCOME TAX LAW TO PASS, BELIEF

GOVERNOR PATTERSON, EX-PLAINS BILL'S PROVISIONS Will Help New Industries Rather Than Discourage Them, He Declares

The income tax bill on which the people of Oregon will vote June 28 is the only possible solution of the state's aggravated financial condition, and it will carry, if the people understand its provisions, Governor I. L. Patterson told members of the Salem chamber of commerce at the Monday noon luncheon.

As to the argument that the income tax will discourage new industries, Patterson believes that the effect will be the exact opposite.

A new industry, he pointed out, rarely is profitable for the first few years. Under this law, no income tax would be paid until a profit was shown; and since the property tax will be reduced, the total tax paid by a new industry would be less than under the present arrangement.

The proposed law's provisions are simple, Patterson said, and it will require no experts to figure out what each individual should pay.

A single man or woman has an exemption of $1,000; a married person of $2,000 and $400 additional for each child. On the first thousand dollars above the exemption the tax is 10; on the second thousand, $40.

Every individual in the state benefits from the state government's operation, and everyone ought to have a part in supporting it, the governor said. About half of the revenue goes to education, which is for everybody.

"Taxpayer" is an honorable title, and one which every citizen is proud to bear; therefore the persons with moderate income who will pay an almost nominal tax under this law, should be in favor of it.

Other proposed solutions of the financial problem have been shown to be impracticable, the governor emphasized, and if this law is not passed, some less favorable means of raising money to conduct the state's business will have to be adopted.

Every business man ought to make it his business to explain this law to those with whom he comes in contact, Patterson urged, so as to assure its passage in June.

The governor advanced this plan, he said, only after numerous citizens had indicated they thought it was his duty and after the tax investigating committee's report had failed to produce any adequate solution.

He declared that T. B. Kay, state treasurer, was "the most active member of the legislature," and that Kay should be given credit for the state office building which is soon to be erected here.

Spaulding Pulp & Paper Co.

OF NEWBERG, OREGON 6000 Shares Common Stock—Par Value of $100 per Share 6000 Shares Cumulative Preferred Stock—Par Value of $100 per Share

The cumulative preferred stock bears 8 per cent dividends, payable semi-annually, and is cumulative from the date of issue. If dividends are not paid for a period of two years this preferred stock becomes voting stock and so remains until dividends are paid. Preferred stock is subject to redemption at $105 per share and accumulated dividends at any time after three years from issue.

HISTORY and BUSINESS—The Spaulding Pulp & Paper Company, an Oregon corporation, is erecting a modern pulp and paper mill on the bank of the Willamette River, in Newberg, where the natural advantages of location, raw materials, falland water transportation combine with sound business judgment on the part of executives to insure success for the enterprise. The company will equip its plant with the latest and best machinery in the paper making industry, and will manufacture the higher grades of sulphite paper that yield a higher price per pound than newsprint.

ADVANTAGE OF LOCATION—The location of the plant is ideal. The site comprises 12 acres of land adjoining the large sawmill of the Spaulding Logging Company. On one side is a paved highway and on another a spur track which connects with the Northern Pacific. Ample water will be obtained from the Willamette River. There is a bountiful supply of pulp wood in the vicinity of Newberg and this may be brought to the plant at advantageous freight rates.

PERSONNEL—The company is headed by Chas. K. Spaulding, president of the Chas. K. Spaulding Logging Company. His knowledge of pulp wood equals that of any man in the west. For 35 years he supplied the larger mills of Oregon with pulp wood obtained from the upper river. His business ability is known and respected throughout the Northwest. Mr. Spaulding has associated with him a board of directors comprising leading business men of Eugene, Salem, Newberg, McMinnville and Portland. Technical work in the plant will be in charge of men who have proven their ability after many years in the industry.

FINANCING—Already more than $600,000 common and preferred stock has been sold. This is sufficient to complete a pulp plant of 50-ton daily capacity, which will be in operation in a few months. This plant is now under construction and those interested are invited to make a trip to Newberg and inspect the work in progress. With the completion of this plant pulp will be shipped to the markets of the Atlantic Coast and Middle West at prices that will show substantial profits. With the pulp plant in operation work of erecting the paper mill will start. No bonus or promotion stock has been issued. Organizers of the company are paying the same amount for their stock that other investors are paying. To date it has cost the Spaulding Pulp & Paper Company about 1 1/2 per cent to obtain more than one-half of its required capital.
