A wise son maketh a glad father; but a foolish man despiseth his mother. Folly is joy to him that is destitute of wisdom; but a man of understanding walketh uprightly. Proverbs 15: 20-21.

God and You

A LENTEN MEDITATION

By the Rev. Charles Stelzel

God desires the complete redemption of mankind. To this end He is using the Church. He has commissioned it to "preach the Gospel to every creature." And this Gospel is an all-inclusive gospel. It stands for the redemption of all life, from waste, misuse and sin. It seeks to bring about a better understanding between men and nations. It believes in social justice and brotherhood. The Church proclaims the "good news" which is capable of solving every problem facing humanity today.

ENDOWMENT FUND FOR SALEM Y

At the monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Salem Y. M. C. A., yesterday noon, there was present a representative of the junior board of directors of that organization; the junior board being made up from the boy members of the association, and cooperating with the regular board in managing the activities—

And this boy had a special message. He said the members of the junior board had decided to start an endowment fund for the Salem Y. M. C. A., and they had made up among themselves a purse of $10 for the purpose—

And this proposition of the boys was officially accepted— And now the endowment fund of the Salem Y. M. C. A., and they had made up among themselves a purse of $10 for the purpose—

But perhaps fast soon. And it will be a big fund in time. An irrevocable fund, only the interest on which can be used for the expenses of the association.

A carpenter did some work at the Tacoma Y. There was due him $8.50. He said he did not want the money; he asked that it be put to work; he started an endowment fund. It was done. Many additions have been made. It is now a large fund. But it was started with the $8.50 wages of the carpenter.

It will be the same in Salem. And the boys have started it, with their $10. Who will be the next? And the next? People will mention the endowment of the Salem Y in their wills. But the boys of the junior board started it with their $10.

THE BIG PRUNE INDUSTRY MEETING

Salem has been selected as the place for the most important prune industry meeting ever held in Oregon—

And it is to begin at 10 o'clock next Tuesday, at the rooms of the Salem Chamber of Commerce.

At this meeting there will be presented the findings of the government survey. Chris L. Christensen, chief of the division of cooperative marketing of the United States government, Washington, D. C., will be present and present the report.

Out of this meeting should come the stabilizing of the prune industry of this section—

A thing that is of tremendous importance to all the people of this section, of the Willamette valley, and of the state. The report left Washington by air mail last evening. All the prune districts of Oregon and western Washington will be represented at the meeting.

Salem is to have a honey bottling plant within a few weeks; a plant that will run the year through; that has advance orders sufficient to keep it going steadily the whole twelve months. In connection there will be the largest bee supply depot in the state. Salem is to become a honey center. It has taken a long time to get this start. But it will lead to great things for this valley.

Six dwelling house permits were issued yesterday for Salem, calling for an expenditure of $20,650. Growing. Yes, Salem is growing. Going to grow faster; backed by increasing industries on the land, hooked up with industries in the city.

COME WEST, YOUNG MAN AND OLD

"Go west, young man, and grow up with the country," advised Horace Greeley. The advice was taken by hundreds of thousands, and the western borders of the west that was meant as the west by Greeley moved ever westward till the crest of the Rockies was reached, and then the shores of the Pacific.

Now, for another reason, or other reasons, the Liberty Magazine is commending to all residents of the eastern part of the United States the example of President Coolidge, who proposes to spend his summer vacation in the west. That magazine in its current issue says editorially:

"President Coolidge, in deciding to spend his summer vacation in the west, has set a fit example for his fellow citizens of New England and New York. His visit will reassure many who have refrained from going west through fear of stage robberies, cow boys shooting up the town, or of being clanked by Indians. Besides this, he will learn at first hand why the farmers of the northwest especially are out of tune with administrative policies regarding agriculturists. He may influence some of those who reside along the Atlantic seaboard to look westward and study the problems of the United States rather than eastward to delve into Europe's questions."

Very well put. And the people of the east, speaking generally, will have a good deal to learn about the west; its size, its great undeveloped resources, its wonderful opportunities; its outlook upon the world's greatest populations across the Pacific ocean—

Very many things. And, among the others, the fact that the virile and vigorous west is in the future going to demand more attention to its needs by the rest of the country; and more especially by the smug and self complacent and narrow chested elements of the people of the east.

Bits For Breakfast

Honey bottling plant—
 And largest bee supply depot in Oregon—

These are coming to Salem, and they will help to keep the bee industry going and growing here; will help to make Salem the greatest bee keeping center of the United States, which it must become in order to assist the great fruit industry of the valley.

Salem gets the prune industry meeting; the most important meeting for that industry ever held in Oregon. To open at the Salem Chamber of Commerce rooms at 10 o'clock next Tuesday morning.

Did you read the story in yesterday's Statesman of the vision of the man who says Angola goats must be used in reforestation, if we are to have successful reforestation at all? And says the goats will yield more profits than the timber that is to be grown for pulp wood and lumber? It is worth thinking about—may point to a gigantic industry—

And one that will aid in perpetuating the vast timber industries of this section, which cannot last very long on a major scale without reforestation.

The state lime plant cannot get the raw supplies from southern Oregon fast enough to keep up with the demand for agricultural lime. Something will have to be done about it. Every acre of land needing lime ought to have it, where the owners of the land are willing and ready to buy the lime.

TELEVISION SUCCESS: SPEAKER SEEN FAR OFF

 In Washington and Whippany were thrown onto both small and large screens. On the screen designed for the telephoner's use solely the pictures were exceedingly clear, easily recognizable as likenesses of the person at the other end of communication.

On the large screen, about one and one-half by three feet, the results were not so clear. Especially was this noticeable when Secretary Hoover's image was transferred from the small screen, on which it showed clearly while he talked with President Walter S. Gifford of the telephone company, to the large screen for the benefit of the half a hundred newspapermen and scientists present at the demonstration.

At times during Mr. Hoover's address the likeness on the screen was recognizable, but at others it so faded and rippled as if it were running over it, that it became nothing but a formless shadow. Again at changing moments, only a pair of eyebrows, or an ear, or a mouth, would be visible as the secretary's voice boomed from the loud speaker.

The demonstration was held in the auditorium of the laboratories in West street.

The combined telephone and television instruments were set in cabinets shrouded from overlight by heavy maroon curtains, cabinets reminiscent of those in which the stage magician places the woman who is mysteriously to disappear.

The first exchange, after the official greetings, passed between Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, in Washington, and Carl S. Brandesbury of the New York office of the Associated Press. The likeness of Mr. Noyes was so clear in New York that the scintillation of light on his spectacles as he moved his head in speaking could be seen plainly.

The next part of the demonstration, it having been conclusively shown that television by telephone wire was an actuality, was the radio program from Whippany. Here again the likenesses of the speakers were thrown on the large screen and were with almost no exception distinct. Newspapermen who spoke after a man and woman an entertainer had sung were easily recognized by their associates in New York.

Although the mechanism of television is naturally immensely technical in detail, its basic principles may be compared to those of the telephone. As in the telephone instruments are used which are electrically sensitive to sound, so now instruments have been devised sensitive in a like way to light.

The subject, as he telephones, is "placidity scanned" by three great "photo-electric eyes." The largest photo-electric cells ever built. The impressions made on these cells are translated into varying intensities of electric current and as such are carried over wire or air. At the receiving end machines have been invented which can turn the varying current back into light and shade, and so reproduce the image of the scene scanned by the electric "eyes."

More than 15 complete images of the scene are sent over wires or air every second, so that motion of the subject has no more of the jerkiness than a moving picture. The company announced that there is no one inventor of television, many scientists at the laboratories having cooperated in its development, but having contributed most to the research which led to the present stage. The three are Herbert E. Ives, son of Frederick E. Ives, inventor of the half-tone

Tinkering Around Your Car in the Middle of the Road May Result in More Trouble

Courtesy, National Safety Council

It isn't any fun to have to get out and monkey with the engine on a lovely April day, when you have planned to take a friend for a long drive through the country. However, if you do get stuck on the road, remember you're inviting more trouble if you fail to draw up to one side, so that other motorists, who may be "stepping on it," will have a clear stretch. The motorists shown in the picture had plenty of space in which to park, instead of using the highway as a public garage. Hogging the road always is discourteous and often is dangerous. VESSEL SINKING AFTER RUDDER BREAKS ON BAR

 Jane Nettleton, 100 miles south, was reported proceeding to the Necanicum's assistance.

Carried Lumber PORTLAND, April 7.—(AP)—The Necanicum reported in distress of "Cos" bay, in command of Capt. John Samuelson, was dispatched from Portland at 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the Nelson line service and reported at Marshfield Monday morning. The vessel carried merchandise for delivery there and took aboard a deckload of lumber for San Francisco.

The Necanicum is owned by the California & Oregon Lumber company, is managed by A. F. Mahony of San Francisco, and is on her 12th voyage from Portland under the agreement with the Nelson line.

She was turned out in 1912 at Fairhaven, Cal., and is of 752 tons gross and 565 tons net register. Her length is 178.5 feet, beam 39 feet, and depth of hold 13.3 feet.

The crew, aided by natives on the island, reached shore safely and was brought to Dutch Harbor by a passing gas boat. It is feared that the Iskum and her cargo will be a total loss.

VICTORIA, B. C., April 7.—(AP)—Two scows, one laden with 100,000 feet of lumber and the other empty, were piled high and dry on Shoal point, at the entrance of the inner harbor here during a storm early today.

The scows were owned by the Wilfert Lumber company of Esquimault harbor. Tugs prevented two other scows, laden with 400,000 feet of lumber, from breaking away from their moorings.

WOULD SCRAP WARSHIPS

Limitation of Naval Armament Plan in Chamber of Deputies PARIS, April 7.—(AP)—Abolition of battleships and battle cruisers by international agreement is suggested in a naval disarmament plan introduced in the chamber of deputies today.

The plan is contained in a resolution sponsored by eleven conservative deputies and the royalist deputies Jean Le Cour Grandmaison and the Marquis De La Ferronnays. It calls on the French government to invite all civilized nations to join in limiting naval armaments on the basis it suggests.

Whitman Orator Winner Extemporaneous Contest

CORVALLIS, Ore., April 8.—(AP)—Harry Rothrock, representing Whitman college, Walla Walla, won first place in the extemporaneous speaking contest held here tonight. Arthur Silverston, the University of Southern California, placed second, and Carolyn Wineger from Washington State college, won third place. The contest was held as part of the Pacific coast league conference. Allan Nichols, coach of the Southern California debate team, was chairman.
