MOSCOW, U. S. S. R .- (AP)-

The absence of snow, however, raised havor with the horse-drawn sleighs which in winter constitute Moscow's main source of traffic. The irvoshiks (drivers) protested it' was impossible to run their sleighs over the bare cobblestones, whereupon the municipal authorities ordered all the citys' available motor lorries and wagons to import snow from the suburbs and replace it on the bare roadways. The operation cost the municipality $150,000.
