THE OREGON STATESMAN, SALEM, OREGON

And to part or all of these and others the following paragraph going the rounds of the press will be both interesting and inspiring:

"A $100 prize offered for the best example of self-reliance was awarded to a twenty-year-old blind negro youth, Leroy Wellington, of White Plains, New York. The president of the club which made the award said that Wellington's handicap of blindness and color had failed to quell his spirit of selfreliance, and that his attitude toward life was in marked contrast to many cases reported to the club. The youth has practically been the sole support of his family. Besides helping to maintain his invalid mother, his three younger brothers and his father by caning chairs, weaving baskets and tuning pianos, he has been setting aside a small portion of his earnings to buy a secondhand truck, so that he can call for and deliver chairs and thus get more business."

GOOD OUTLOOK FOR RABBIT INDUSTRY

"Why not a law requiring furs to bear the proper names of the animals from which they were taken?" This is a question asked of The Statesman by a local man engaged in the rabbit industry-

And he says that some of the present deceptions are as follows: Alaska sable from raccoon or skunk pelts; river sable from muskrat; sableine from squirrel; American seal from rabbit dyed; Arctic seal from rabbit dyed; Australian seal from rabbit dyed; Baffin seal, Baltic seal, Bay seal, Coney seal, French seal, all from dyed rabbit pelts. Hudson seal from muskrat dyed; Near seal from French rabbit; Polar seal from rabbit dyed; Sealskin from rabbit; Baltic tiger from rabbit dyed; blue Japanese wolf from goat dyed; Chinese wolf from Chinese dog; Manchurian wolf from Chinese dog: Russian wolf from Siberian dog dved; Squirrelette and Squirrelline from rabbit squirrel dyed. Hence, it will be noted that many a costly fur was originally worn by a rabbit. dog, goat, skunk or muskrat.

Effortless ease of operation;

Quite a formidable list. It is also an indication that there are great things in store for the already fast growing rabbit industry of the Salem district-

For with a well established market for both the meat and the pelts, the income ought to be large and the profits good-

And why not organize and have a tannery here in Salem? There are many commercial uses of rabbit skins.

And the output of a tannery need not be confined to rabbit skins. There is in fact room for a big tannery industry here, for various hides, skins and pelts. ,

NATIONAL EGG WEEK BEGINS SUNDAY

The week of May 1 has been designated by the National Poultry Council as national egg week. The purpose of this special week is to increase the consumption of eggs and to teach the more intelligent use of eggs.

Eggs are a universal food product, and interest in eggs and poultry is distributed over a large field of industries. Producers in various ways will display quality eggs in banks and store windows. Grocers and hotels and lunch rooms will hereby notified to present the in their advertisements during this week call attention to the same, duly verified as required by value of eggs in the human diet-in Salem, Marion county, Oregon And the Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, chambers of commerce, within six months from the date and other luncheon clubs will feature egg luncheons during of this notice. next week in the cities. 20th day of April, 1927.

It is most appropriate for the American housewife and the entire public to become thoroughly acquainted with newly discovered and distinctive properties possessed by eggs as human food.

Eggs are important as an article of fod because they are universally available, conveniently stored and prepared, easily digestible, and because they combine well with other food material in cookery. The famous old French chef, Stacpoole, years ago said of an egg, "All cookery rests on an egg. The egg is the atlas that supports the world of gastronomy. The chef is the slave of the egg."

FRESH PRUNE CAMPAIGN PLANNED

Bruce Shangle, president of the Blue Mountain Prune Growers' Cooperative association, announces in an interview at Walla Walla that a national newspaper advertising campaign will be carried on prior to and during the 1927 prune

That a contract has been entered into with Strang & Prosser, the well known Seattle advertising agency. ' It is planned to have the Yakima valley and Idaho prune men join in this movement to make fresh prunes more popular. The amount to be spent will be determined by the size of the crop and market conditions just prior to the movement of the fruit.
