The old fashioned wick lamp is used in more than one-half of the farm homes. Although 32 per cent of the homes of West Virginia are piped with gas, only 3 per cent of all the homes have gas light. Twenty-seven out of every 100 homes have electric illumination.

Wood stoves are the prevailing method of heating in farm homes in 15 states, whose average January temperature reaches or goes below the freezing point.

In 42 states the majority of women start a fire three times daily in wood or coal ranges for meal preparation. Seventeen per cent of the women on California farms cook with electricity.

About four-fifths of the farm families have automobiles; in 34 states more than three-fourths of the families had them.

Fifty-seven in every 100 families living on farms have telephones, with Illinois, Indiana, Vermont and Minnesota having the largest proportion.

In more than one-fifth of the farm homes there are radio sets. Detailed summaries of equipment are being sent to leaders of home demonstration in each state to serve as a guide in formulating plans for the active campaign for better equipped homes.

Mrs. Canfield and Mrs. Olson Entertain With Two Elaborate Affairs

It has been many months since Salem matrons have been invited to two affairs as large and elaborate as the bridge tea on Monday afternoon and the bridge party of Monday evening at which Mrs. Lee Canfield and Mrs. O. A. Olson were hostesses at the Woman's club house on North Cottage street. Seventy-two tables of bridge were in play during the afternoon and evening—36 on each occasion.

The club room was exceedingly festive with hundreds of gorgeous tulips, ferneries, hydrangeas and banks of purple and white lilacs in many floor baskets.

The guests were greeted at the door by Phyllis Fisher and Vera Beechler, who presented the score cards.

Mrs. Olson and Mrs. Canfield were assisted during the afternoon by Mrs. U. S. Page, Mrs. Earl Fisher, Mrs. Edwin Armstrong, Mrs. Carl Armstrong, Mrs. Charles Pratt, Mrs. N. H. Jones and Mrs. Earl Dae.

At the tea hour delicious refreshments were served at small tables.

Mrs. G. L. Newton won the first prize of the afternoon. The second prize went to Mrs. Harold Brown.

A delightful feature of the afternoon was the group of songs which Mrs. W. Carlton Smith sang, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Frank Zinn. One number, "Lilacs," was in special keeping with the gorgeous decorations.

The afternoon guest group included Mrs. W. Carlton Smith, Mrs. William McGilchrist Jr., Mrs. George Dunstford, Mrs. Ray Hartman, Mrs. O. E. Price, Mrs. Lynn Smith, Mrs. W. L. Needham, Mrs. J. H.
