Johnson, designated executor, filed in county court yesterday by two brothers and one sister of the deceased, F. O. Albert A. and Amanda C. Johnson. According to the will the third brother, Jacob, was to be executor without bond. The plaintiffs in the contest claim that the will was made under undue influence from the named executor. The estate has a value of $7,297.33.

SALEM LIONS WANT 1928 CONVENTION

So They Are Going After It and Will Make Their Appeal a Strong One

The Salem Lions are after the district convention for 1928, and they are going to make a strong appeal at the district convention to be held at Medford on Friday and Saturday.

The Salem Lion, the weekly publication of the Salem den, has the following to say about this in the current issue:

"The selection of the place for the next convention should not be a matter of sentiment. It should not be a matter of oratory. It should be considered on its merits only."

"Salem is inviting the convention in 1928 because it is the capital city of our state—of our district. It has the transportation and hotel facilities to care for all who will attend. Its climate is ideal—its scenery unexcelled."

"Salem has a great many things of interest, not only to the city, but to the entire state. The flax plant at the state prison and the new linen mills will play important parts in the development of Oregon. They will be open for your inspection. All of the other state institutions will be of interest to the visitors from all parts of the district."

"The hall of the house of representatives will be available as a place in which the convention itself may be held. There is no better place in which to hold it."

The Salem Lions have but one idea in asking you to come. That idea—that hope is that we may have the pleasure of entertaining our friends from all over the district and that we may put in Salem the great spirit of Lionism a little bit stronger, a little bit more keen, in order that our community life, our civic work, might be lifted to a little higher plane and put on a higher pedestal that nothing but Lionism can attain.

Strong Delegation Going
The Salem Chamber of Commerce is assisting in the movement for the district convention for this city next year.

The Salem Lion announces that the following will be among the strong delegation going to Medford to make the appeal for the 1928 convention: Lions Scott, Williams, Giese, Reynolds, Orr, Morley, Jack Martin, R. H. Martin, E. L. Gray, Ohling, Fitzgerald, McCallister, Emmons.

The Salem delegation will leave for Medford tomorrow evening.

Methodist Council Rally
The Methodist men's council of the Salem district will hold a rally at the First Methodist church Tuesday evening, May 24. A dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock, to be followed by an interesting program of snappy addresses by a number of prominent laymen of the district. Prof. F. A. Magruder of Corvallis is the president of the council and Roy M. Lockenour is the secretary.

SOME WEEDING OF FLAX TO BE DONE

21 Machines to Operate, but Heavy Crop to Take Some Hand Pullers

There is in prospect a heavy crop of flax on the 2000 or more acres contracted by the state. The weather has so far been very favorable for the growth of the flax, since most of it was put in early and seed beds were generally well prepared.

But the rainy weather since seeding has contributed to the growth of weeds as well as the flax, and Col. W. B. Bartram, manager of the state flax plant, is worrying over this. He is anxious to have as much long line fiber of good quality as possible, and as small a proportion as can be had of short fiber and of flax fit only for upholstering tow. And so are the growers.

Appeal to the Growers
So Col. Bartram is sending to all the contract growers a letter, urging them to weed their flax wherever necessary. He is also telling them that small tracts will have to be pulled, in order to get this operation over at the right time for securing quality fiber.

The following is the wording of the letter which is being sent to the growers:

Weeds
"Owing to the late spring and for other reasons, it has been observed that the flax crops in many instances are very weedy this spring. In a former letter to you, you were advised that every effort must be put forward by all to grow quality crops. The flax crops have not advanced too far to improve this situation, and we are strongly advising our contractors to weed their flax now before it is too late.

It does not injure the flax to walk on it with light shoes or rubbers up to the time it reaches 6 inches high. It would be very much better for you to spend several dollars per acre on flax now that has the appearance of turning out to be a good crop rather than have us grade it for green tow purposes only at $20 a ton because of weeds.

"This year we will not be able to accept flax for fiber purposes that is very foul with weeds. Foul flax will only be accepted for upholstery stock at $20 a ton, and, if very weedy, a reduction even would have to be made in accepting that grade. We therefore strongly advise you to give this matter your careful attention."

Over Ripe Flax—One of the serious handicaps that the flax industry has labored under in the past has been the amount of poor fiber produced due to retting and scutching over ripe flax. This year and for the future, we do not propose to accept over ripe flax from any one except for green tow. That would put the over ripe flax in the $20 class.

"While it is our intention to do everything possible in our power to assist our flax growers in the pulling of their crops, we cannot, however, accept any responsibility in that connection. If the season continues on as favorable as it has been up to this time, we will have a very heavy crop of flax. This will necessitate flax growers who have small acreage having their flax pulled by hand. The state will operate 14 flax pullers this year and private owners will operate seven. The state machines will be spotted in different localities and as far as possible to serve the flax growers under an organized system. Fiber flax rips from the root up. The right time to pull flax so as to harvest it when the fiber content is at its best is when the flax stock has yellowed about 3-4 of the way up from the root. If you start pulling the flax at that stage under ordinary conditions it would give you several days to finish pulling your flax before it would reach a stage of being over ripe. Were we, however, to have three or four days that are very hot, such as we have experienced in the past, the period of time for pulling would be shortened.

"The writer will be making a tour of the flax districts beginning about the 25th of May, when it is hoped definite arrangements can be completed for pulling, etc., during that tour."

HAVE TAKEN OVER TURNER FLAX MILL

Some Flax Being Grown in Aumsville District for the Vancouver Mill

The Starling and Robert Simpson interests, with a group of local capitalists, who have been reorganizing the linen mill enterprise at Vancouver, Wash., have taken over the flax mill at Turner, and are retting and scutching flax there.

They have also taken the equipment at Rickreall, and have bought the flax that was stored at West Stayton.

They have contracted for some flax of this year's crop with growers in the Aumsville and West Stayton and Stayton districts.

They are fitting up the machinery for the linen mill in a new building they have purchased at Vancouver, Wash.

Judge Wm. M. Coats Says
Don't try to Rush Nature!
Pewees or small eggs are generally the result of bringing pullets to maturity too early, or in other words before they have finished growing. Pullets should not be forced.
Feed Fisher's Developing Mash until your pullets are six months old, and then they will be ready for Fall and Winter laying and they will give you standard eggs.
Fisher's Feeds cost a little more than most other poultry feeds. That's because they cost us more to manufacture but they give you greater egg yield which means more profit to you, hence they are, in the long run, the most economical feeds to use.
The Fisher Flouring Mills Company, Seattle or Portland, will gladly send you on request a complete book on the subject of Chick Raising by Judge W. M. Coats. Ask also for Fisher's Feeding Schedule by Judge Coats.
