

Jack Sharkey Wins Technical Knockout Over Jim Maloney In Fift

OVERHAND RIGHTS GIVE EX-GOB FIGHT

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

RINGSIDE, Yankee Stadium, New York, May 20.—(AP)—Displaying an unexpectedly crushing attack, Jack Sharkey, giant ex-sailor, knocked out his Boston rival, Jim Maloney, tonight in the fifth round of a 15 round match that upset all calculations.

While a pop-eyed crowd of 30,000 looked on in astonishment, Sharkey mastered Maloney with a bewildering drive from the start, knocked down the chubby Irishman just before the end of the fourth round and finished him in the fifth with a slashing right handed assault that left the beaten man a gory and battered figure.

It was a technical knockout victory, for the referee, Lou Mag-nolls, stepped in to stop the bout when the count had reached six on Maloney's third and last knock down, but this did not affect the decisiveness of Sharkey's triumph. Maloney, bleeding from the left eye, nose and mouth, had plunged to the floor from a vicious succession of right handers to the head. He fell over the lower strand of rope, tried to struggle gamely to his feet, but fell back. Once again, gamely, he staggered up half way, on one knee, starting toward his foe but plunging headlong again to the canvas, courageously going forward but virtually "out."

Twice before Maloney had gone down under the impact of Sharkey's vicious left hooks or jabs, followed by smashing overhand rights, but each time he jumped up without a count to rush back into the fray. This gameness possibly cost him a chance to recoup some of his waning powers.

The bell saved Maloney in the fourth as he jumped up from being toppled to his back. In the first few seconds of the fifth he went down for the second time, again leaping to his feet without a count. The finish, as dramatic and exciting as it was entirely unexpected, came after only 52 seconds of the fifth round had elapsed.

Sharkey conceded more than ten pounds to Maloney, who weighed 202 1/2 but more than offset this by his superb agility, stamina, ring generalship and punching.

The big American league park was less than half filled for the battle by the estimated attendance of 30,000. The receipts were estimated at $250,000.

The fight by rounds:
Round 1—Sharkey tore out with a left to the head. It slipped harmlessly by and Jim carried the ex-gob into the ropes where he smashed him viciously with both hands to the stomach. Jim chased Sharkey into the open and cracked a straight left on his jaw. The left tore in close again with a left and right to the body and Sharkey's left opened a small cut over Maloney's right eye. Jim stabbed two lefts to the head but took a rousing barrage about his own head. Jim buried a heavy right deep under Sharkey's heart just before the bell.

Round 3—Jim's left eye was in bad shape as he came to the center. The referee stopped the fight to pull down Sharkey's tight, worn unnecessarily high. Sharkey wove around the ring dodging cleverly to evade Jim's left lead. Jim managed to get in a left and right to the body, but Jack smashed a hard right under Jim's short ribs to open the count. As they sparred aimlessly in the center of the ring Sharkey contented himself with dancing up and down to evade punishment. Jim whipped in close again and a straight left set his nose to bleeding. They were sparring again at the bell.

Round 4—Jack smiled contentedly as he pecked a half dozen times at Maloney's bad eye. Jim chased Sharkey to the ropes pecking with both hands to head and body and blood began to trickle from Jack's left eye. Jim plunged both hands into Sharkey's body but danced out of range and continued his left hand salvoes at Maloney's head. Jack's cleverness kept Maloney missing. A smashing right to the chin knocked Maloney to the floor on no count. He was up as the bell changed.

Round 5—Maloney's face was badly battered, blood dripping from eyes and lips as he came up to meet Sharkey's winging left. An overhand right sent Maloney down again for no count. Another right overhand knocked him down and his body rolled helplessly on the canvas. His efforts to climb

Legion Minstrels Win Capitol Theater Fans

Red Cross Relief Fund Increased by More Than $1200 When Crowd Packs Large Showhouse

Surpassing all expectations in number, one of the largest audiences that has ever attended a theatrical benefit performance in Salem, jammed the Capitol theater last night to applaud the Legion Minstrels, rollicking show staged by Capitol Post No. 9 of the American Legion to raise funds for the victims of the Mississippi floods.

Although exact figures will not be available for several days, it is estimated by conservative experts that the receipts of the show tally around $1250 at the lowest, and may possibly reach the $1500 mark.

Each item of the organization needed to stage the Legion Minstrels, including the use of the theater which was given by Frank Eligh, was donated, so that every feather on every eagle on every dollar will go 100 per cent intact, directly to the thousands of suffering men, women and children who were stricken by the raging waters of the Mississippi.

Prior to last night there was a well founded belief among local theatrical managers that no presentations offered at Salem theaters could compete with the crowd-drawing prowess of either a political or evangelistic meeting.
