

SIDE LIGHTS OF THE STAGE and SCREEN

Elsinore Theater
Far from the well worn path of conventions; far from the cut and dried feature production; ultra modern in every respect is "Pals in Paradise," a Metropolitan picture directed by George B. Seitz, which will be on view at the Elsinore, May 24, 25 and 26.

Mr. Seitz, whose ability as a director received a challenge in "The Vanishing American," "Wild Horse Mesa" and "The Last Frontier" and which challenge was accepted, is bringing to the screen a brand new type of western story.

Peter B. Kyne, who knows his west, deserted the well beaten paths in writing "Pals in Paradise" and has brought to his readers a new West—the West of today.

"Pals in Paradise" boasts no cowboys riding down the main street of a new found town in chaps, shooting in the air—rarin' to go. But it does bring to light the modern mining town—the settlement brought to notice through a new gold discovery. With the news comes the rush of soldiers of fortune, real estate agents, gasoline-filling stations and the mad rush on rubber of those seeking a fortune in yellow metal.

Modern methods of extracting and refining gold; modern household appliances such as vacuum cleaners and electric washing machines, modern palaces of pleasure—the soda grill and penny dance hall—All are here! And though it is a most modern version of frontier life in a new mining town there are thrills, humor and sentiment aplenty.

Rudolph Schildkraut, Marguerite De La Motte, May Robson, John Bowers, and Alan Brooks have the featured roles.

Capitol Theater
A picture described as the world's funniest comedy—which shows at the Capitol May 24 and 25. It is "Rookies," with Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, featured as a new comedy team, with Marceline Day in the leading feminine role. Sam Wood directed this new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer success from a story and continuity by Byron Morgan.

"Rookies" tells an exceedingly amusing tale of life in a citizens' military training camp. Dane has the role of a hard-boiled top-sergeant whose rival for the hand of Marceline Day is a scruffy young private played in imitatable fashion by George K. Arthur. The warfare between these two is carried on through scenes of alternate laughter and terror, as many episodes take place in a runaway balloon above the clouds.

Cooperation from the United States government in staging this production has made possible an authentic and graphic background of military life in the training camps.

asked.

"Well, it hasn't been anything like I thought it was to be," said the modest Missourian, who brought letters of introduction with him on his flight because he knew no one in France.

Wants to See Paris

He had been on his feet almost the entire day but what he wanted most to do, he said, was to "walk around and see some of Paris, if possible."

The first thing this morning a tailor came to measure him for a suit of clothes, which will be delivered tomorrow—an all-time speed record for French tailors. Then he hurried out to Le Bourget to take a look at the "old bus" that brought him over from New York. He found it had not been very much damaged by the crowd that crushed against it when he arrived Saturday night, and the mechanics promised to have it fully repaired by tomorrow.

Will Fly Again Soon

He is going out to Le Bourget again tomorrow afternoon to bid bon voyage to two French aviators, Costes and Rignot, who expect to take off for Tokyo. Lindbergh wants to make a flight over Paris, and he may do it tomorrow. He intends to fly to Brussels Saturday, and on Monday will take his plane over the channel to London.

In the meantime all his days in Paris are likely to be as full of engagements as was today.

"I am not in any hurry to get home for I want to see a little of Europe while I am over here," the boyish genius of the air said this evening. "I haven't accepted any offers that have come to me from America and I am not going to consider any until I get home. We didn't take the flight with that idea in mind. We didn't come over here with any million dollar ambitions."

Fatigue Lines Show

There were little dark rings of fatigue beginning to show beneath Lindbergh's eyes tonight, but he received two delegations of newspapermen. Lindbergh, tired as he was, consented to talk with them a while.

He light heartedly parried casual questions that touched on sundry subjects, but when anything was asked about his plane or his flight, or something germane to aviation, his smile would pass, his slim body would bend over a little near to the man who happened to be addressing him.

and a stream of words would flow from him in precise sentences, finely phrased.

Proud of Equipment

He seemed never to weary of talking about his earth induction compass, to which he attributed the fact that all the way through darkness and storms over land and sea his plane stayed steadily on its course and on the time schedule he had planned before leaving New York.

General Pershing was one of the few Americans who succeeded in getting past the concierge on guard at the gate of the embassy today. Paul Claudel, French minister to the United States, was another of those who saw Lindbergh. It was his second visit, the flier being still asleep when he called yesterday.

Another to whom Lindbergh gave some of his precious time was M. Levasseur, builder of the plane in which Nungesser and Coll set out for America. They talked together for an hour. Sir Alan Cobham, noted British flier, who flew here yesterday especially to congratulate Lindbergh, also had a long talk with him.

Poem to Lindbergh Gives Praise to Yank Soldiers

PARIS, May 23.—(AP)—Two of the striking stanzas from the poem to Captain Lindbergh, written on the flying field of Le Bourget, by the celebrated poet Maurice Rostand, Saturday night, translated, are:

Dost know who let you hold in check
Death, distance and solitude?
Dost know who caused you to arrive
With such exactitude?
'Twas those young men, with hearts so brave,
Who, full of fervor and good will,
Came from your home, too soon forgot
To die for France.

Theater Party Greatly Enjoyed by Company B

Fifty-five members of Company B, 162nd infantry, attended a 9 o'clock show at the Capitol theater last night upon the invitation of Frank Bligh.

The picture, "The Rookies," was shown and it won the hearty praise of every national guardsman. This theater party proved a diversion to the men, and was very welcome; but it no doubt added greatly to the "esprit de corps" of the company.

BROOKS SCHOOL CLOSED FRIDAY

Field Meet Held in Forenoon; Excellent Program Presented in Evening

BROOKS, May 23.—(Special.)—Friday marked the close of a most successful year for the Brooks school, district number 31, under the direction of Professor H. M. Clinesmith assisted most capably by Miss Tressie Town.

A field meet was held in the forenoon on the school grounds. Professor Clinesmith had secured many valued prizes which were awarded to the winners in the various athletic stunts and at noon a presumptuous dinner sponsored by the ladies of the Brooks Community Club was enjoyed by all.

After dinner a program commencing with a debate by eight students of the upper grades and followed by musical numbers and recitations of nearly all of the students was enjoyed. Of special interest was the prophesy of 20 years hence given by Hattie Ramp and Elizabeth Colyer.

At the close of the program Professor Clinesmith made a presentation of awards to the eight students who had not been tardy nor missed a day during the entire school year. Arieta Sturgis has obtained this award during the past five years and is without a doubt one of the very few that have held such a record in the entire state.

Brooks school feels its loss in not being able to secure Professor Clinesmith and Miss Town to assist in the continued good work the coming year. Miss Town will leave immediately for her former home in Ohio and Professor Clinesmith is undetermined as to his plans for the coming year.

Federation of Clubs to Discuss Advertising

SUNNYSIDE, May 23.—(Special.)—The Marion County Federation of Community clubs will meet at Sunnyside on Thursday, May 26, at 8 p. m. in the school house. Every club in the county is urged to send a delegation. County advertising will be discussed at this meeting.

POPPY SALE PLANNED

Sale of Flower of Flanders Field to be on May 27-28

Capital unit No. 9, of the American Legion auxiliary, will sponsor its annual poppy sale Friday and Saturday, May 27 and 28. The red poppy that grew on Flanders Field after the war was adopted by both the American Legion and the American Legion auxiliary as the memorial flower, at the national convention in Cleveland September, 1920. Later, in 1924, Mrs. Adeline Wright Macauley, now national president of the auxiliary, instituted a national poppy program, by which the commercially made poppy was eliminated from the sales of the auxiliary. Now, only the poppies made by the disabled and needy ex-service men and women can be sold by the American Legion auxiliary.

Mrs. Richard A. Meyer has direct supervision over the sale, assisted by Mrs. H. B. White, Mrs. James Jennings, Mrs. Brabeck, Mrs. Karl Hinges and Mrs. Lyle Dunsmoor. All auxiliary members are urged to attend the special meeting in the White House restaurant Wednesday at 2 p. m. to make plans for the poppy sale Friday and Saturday.

Report Favors Highway Through Salem via Santiam to Bend

Of the two proposed routes through the Cascade mountains to Bend, one from Albany via Cascadia, and the other from Salem, by way of the North Santiam, the latter presents the best possibilities, according to a report prepared by J. G. Sawyer, division engineer for the state highway department.

The report followed an investigation of the two routes by Mr. Sawyer and H. D. Farmer of the federal bureau of public roads. The report showed that the distance from Portland to Bend via
