

SIDE LIGHTS OF THE STAGE and SCREEN

Elsinore Theater
From riches to rags is the evolution through which beautiful Corinne Griffith as an outcast wife passes in her new First National picture, "Three Hours," which shows at the Elsinore today.

But of course the heroine of this dramatic motion picture finds happiness and decent clothing before the final fadeout.

The production, which was directed by James Flood, is hailed as the dramatic masterpiece of Miss Griffith's screen career. In it she is said to give her strongest emotional performance.

A capable supporting cast includes John Bowers, Hobart Rosworth, Paul Ellis, Ann Schaefer and Baby Mary Louise Miller.

The picture was adapted by Paul Bern from a story written by May Edgington.

The management of the Elsinore theater announces that they have secured Marilyn Mills and her, world-famous horse, "Beverly," for a showing at the theater today for the last time.

Marilyn Mills is one of the best known and most daring horsewomen on the screen.

Miss Mills will be at the Elsinore theater today with the showing of "Tricks." In support of Miss Mills will be seen J. Frank Glendon, Gary Cooper, William Lowery, Dorothy Vernon, Miles McCarthy and Star and Beverly. The story is from an original by Mary C. Bruning and the direction by Bruce Mitchell. It is the story of a hoydenish young girl who gets expelled from finishing school as the result of her pranks and then goes to her father's ranch and there has numerous adventures which provide an opportunity for her to display her marvelous ability as a horsewoman.

Capitol Theater
Sally O'Neill, piquant as tabasco, and charming as a May breeze, has found her forte. "Frisco Sally Levy" proved it.

The new picture, which opened last night at the Capitol theater, proved a veritable triumph for the tiny heroine of "Mike." "Slide, Kelly, Slide," and other recent hits. It is her best role since "Mike," the picture that made her famous. But—it is a much better Sally O'Neill playing it—her experience in the past months since her "discovery" has done wonders for her.

It is a Jewish-Irish comedy—with a few heart throbs mingled with the laughs, and Miss O'Neill is at once captivating, wistful and loydenish—often extremely funny. She plays the daughter of a Jewish father and Irish mother, in a comical series of adventures in which two lovers, a family quarrel and a dash of adventure enter. The story is a frothy affair that every now and then digs deep into life and tugs at the heart-strings. It shows again today.

Oregon Theater
Getting a cat to climb a tree is easy enough for a movie director, but persuading a caged lion to effect his escape by tunneling a hole in a pile of sand is another matter.

Johnny Hines bucked up against the latter condition while filming one of the hilarious sequences in his latest First National picture, "All Aboard," produced by C. C. Burr, which comes to the Oregon today and tomorrow. Johnny personally directed the scene. He ordered the big van containing the lion moved up to the cage which had been erected on a set in the studio.

When the king of beasts stepped into his new home in the studio, fully 50 persons, mostly members of the cast, including Edna Murphy, Frank Hagney, Sojin, Dot Farley, Babe London and others, were gathered about the cage, each with his eye on some vantage point above the floor to be instantly utilized should the lion decide to shatter the wooden bars.

Leo, however, went right over to the sand heap and started to dig. He took his acting job so seriously that he sprayed sand into several of the cameras, putting their mechanism out of commission for the time being. The comedian, however, yelled at the top of his lungs for the surviving cameras to grind away.

ANNOUNCE PROGRAM FOR SCOUT BENEFIT

Parrish Junior High Pupils to Present French Version of Cinderella

Practically every country has a Cinderella legend. The timid little kitchen maid whose dainty foot was formed to fit the glass slipper and so won the love of Prince Charming, is a story which people universally know and enjoy.

The French version of this story will be presented in the form of an operetta by Parrish Junior high school students for the Boy Scout benefit show at the Capitol theater tomorrow night. The production will be directed by Mrs. Grace Zosel.

This operetta was given at the Parrish auditorium some time ago to a packed house and there have been repeated requests, since for a return performance.

For the Capitol theater show a choice line-up of local talent vaudeville has been arranged. Among the numbers announced yesterday were musical acts from Willamette university. Dancing and singing numbers largely will make up the bill.

The proceeds of the two performances will go to the Salem Boy Scouts to cover a deficit in their funds, and to further plans for the summer. The scouts opened a ticket sale Saturday, which will admit purchasers to either show.

Birthday Party Held in Honor of Daughter

Rooms Beautifully Decorated; Delicious Refreshments

BROOKS, May 31.—(Special.)—"Broadview," the country home of Mr. and Mrs. John Dunlavy, was the scene of a merry party recently honoring their daughter, Anna Marie's birthday.

The rooms were unusually attractive with a profusion of flowers.

Dancing was enjoyed until 12 o'clock when a delicious luncheon was served. Music was furnished by a three-piece orchestra from Salem. Miss Marie received many lovely gifts. The dining table was centered with a large angel cake with pink rose bud candles. Miss Marie is a graduate of the Gervais Union high school, class of '27.

Modern smokers praise the integrity of Camels

THIS is the age of frankness and plain-speaking, and it rates Camel first among cigarettes.

For Camel is that kind of a smoke. Camel is all quality and no false front or show. Camels are made of the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown—no substitutes. And the finest blending ever given a cigarette.

It is Camel character that has won the smokers of today—such honesty of taste and fragrance as never was known in a cigarette before. You'll find all dreams of smoking pleasure realized in this modern, quality cigarette. "Have a Camel!"
