Three Feminine Roles in Domestic Science Comedy Are Excellently Cast

Unusual ability in the portrayal of difficult roles characterizes the three young women who form a part of the cast of "Apple Sauce," the three-act domestic comedy by Barry Connors, which will be presented at Bligh's Capitol theater on the night of June 10 as a benefit for the Mississippi flood refugees.

Starting back in their early high school days, all three took part in plays and formed a love for dramatic art. Work and study have developed their art so that their impersonations carry truth and sincerity.

These three are Fay Jo Woltz, who plays the lead in "Apple Sauce"; Mildred Pugh, who has developed into a character actress of ability, and Julia Query, whose comedy touches have delighted many Salem audiences.

Miss Woltz has a long list of parts to her credit, in which her natural charm and beauty have shown to the best advantage. She has appeared in "Brown's in Town," "Good Gracious Anna," belle," "The Whole Town's Talking," and won a distinctive recognition in the De Molay production of "A Full House." In the present play, "Apple Sauce," she has a role that fits her natural abilities well. She resembles to a marked degree the girl who played Hazel in the New York production at the Ambassador theater.

Miss Pugh found an outlet for her dramatic talent while in high school in "Kempy," "The Whole Town's Talking," and won exceptional commendation in the production, "A Full House," by her excellent old maid characterization. Her present role in "Apple Sauce" is that of Mrs. Robinson, the wife who is always wrong, whether right or not. Her portrayals of this part promises to be exceptionally fine.

Miss Query first stepped into fame as a comedienne with her work as a house maid in the De Molay production of "A Pair of Sixes." Any one who saw that play cannot recall Miss Query's work without a smile of appreciation. While she appeared in comedy roles in "Wedding Bells" and "What Happened to Jones," she caused gales of laughter in "A Pair of Sixes." In the play, "A Full House," presented last December by the De Molay boys, she carried a serious role successfully and demonstrated her versatility. In "Apple Sauce" she is cast as a talkative neighbor hood gossip. Her tongue wags furiously, and with a decided comedy result.

Greater Oregon Work for Coming Year Will Be Headed by Salem Man

Of much interest among local folk, especially those who are alumni of the University of Oregon, is the fact that a Salem man, Harold Socolofsky, has been chosen head of the greater Oregon committee. The appointment was made by Don Beeler, Associated Student Body president. Mr. Socolofsky is a junior in business administration.

This committee endeavors, especially during the summer months, to get in touch with possible Oregon students, and aims to encourage high school graduates of the state to attend the University or other institutions in Oregon.

Socolofsky's home is in Salem, a central location which will make it possible for him to direct the work of his helpers easily. Twelve districts have been mapped out, Portland being one, so that the state is thoroughly covered. A new card system of correspondence to be used for the first time will be of value, Beeler explained.

"In choosing a man for this position I carefully considered several who have shown marked ability in initiating, organizing and directing projects on the campus. I decided upon Harold Socolofsky because I think he has the qualities that will make the Greater Oregon committee a valuable institution," the president stated.

It is predicted by the administration that the Junior college plan which will be introduced here in the fall will attract many freshmen to the campus.

Socolofsky was a member of the Student Union Workers, active in athletics as manager of basketball and assistant manager of football. He has been a member of the men's Glee Club for 2 years, took a leading part in the recent junior Vod-Vil and is a member of three national honorary fraternities—Pan Xenia, foreign trade; Phi Mu Alpha, music; and Alpha Kappa Psi, professional college. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi.

Blaming It On Eve

"One day," said a story-teller, "at the close of a hot day, Adam was returning with his hoe on his shoulder from a hard day's labor to his humble cottage. May be it was a cave. That doesn't matter, for it was a humble abode. Young Cain was running ahead, boy-like, throwing rocks at the birds. Suddenly they came upon a beautiful garden. 'Oh, father,' said Cain, 'look at that beautiful garden. I wish we could live there.' 'We did live in that garden,' said Adam regretfully, 'until your mother ate us out of house and home.'"
