THERE IS AN EMERGENCY

There is an emergency that must be met in some way; the state's budget must be balanced-

The purely state institutions, like the asylums for the insane, reformatories, schools for the deaf and blind, insti- tricts. All over western Oregon potato farmers this month are plowtution for the feeble minded, etc., must be supported-

These are burdens that cannot be dropped. The 5000 and more state charges cannot be turned loose. The institutions are economically managed now, and their expenses cannot be this subject of organizing the potato industry. A potato company and lowered much; and the number of charges is growing.

If the people refuse to vote to ratify the proposed income tax, in order to balance the state's budget with the first $2,000,000 of the income therefrom next year, what is to be where the largest part of the labor will always be hand labor. The done?

What do you suggest? Shall we have so-called nuisance taxes? Taxes on tobacco sales? On moving pictures, and what not? You say no. Then what? Something must be done. The state will have a deficiency of $2,000,000 for the present biennium; for 1927 and 1928. This cannot be shifted. It cannot be repudiated. It cannot be side-stepped in any Oregon in her state government is a low salaried state. Low enough, to insure proper service.

The thing to do is to vote the income tax; to provide the first $2,000,000 from this tax to balance the budget; and the balance next year, and the whole of it in future years, to lift volume of potatoes for the wholesale trade and to form a shipping made their home for many years. a part of the direct property tax burden.

In that time, a good deal of progress in the industry has been made leading up to better seed and improved methods. Success in the industry depends on the right practices all the way up from the seed to the sack, and the labeling of the sack and the marketing of the product. Col. Hofer is right. There is an opportunity to build up a great potato industry here, but it will require organization and the right facilities and 11:00-12:00-KOIN (319). Housewife's correct business methods, backed by good farming. The industry will not replace but will on the contrary help every other stable industry on the land, for potatoes must be a part of a rotation scheme. And we must have potato flour, starch and dextrine factories, in order to make profitable use of the culls. This will be an industry on the land joined with the industries of the cities and towns, for great success. The lowly spud can be made to powerfully help Salem become a city of 100,000 people.

CLIFFORD W. BROWN

. (Portland Oregonian, June 10.)

The death of Clifford W. Brown of Salem, drowned while on yachting trip to Alaskan waters, is particularly saddening-for Mr. Brown did not pass in the ripeness of years, but in the glow and energy of comparative youth. Scarcely had he found himself, as we say, and won his place in the business world and in the hearts of numerous friends, when the message of death came to him.

An admirable citizen and most excellent young man, whose qualities of mind and spirit were admirably suited to something finer than mere success. He had gained the ungrudged respect of his associates. His energy was unbounded. His vision was of an uncommon clarity. At 42 he was one of the most prominent citizens of Salem, his birth

The Oregonian can only say that it is sorry, deeply sorry, he was not spared to live his life to the fullest. It can only echo the regret that is common to all who knew him.

POTATO PHILOSOPHY FOR SALEM

(Written for the Statesman Industrial Campaign and the Development of Larger Production of Spuds and the Seed Potato Industry, by Col. E. Holer, Editor of the Manufacturer and Industrial News

Salem is developing a big seed potato industry. Hyde & Company are a San Francisco firm that has established a seed potato plant near the Valley Packing Co., and have already contracted for three hundred carloads Netted Gem seed potatoes for fall delivery with growers in and about Marion county. Manager Bowman, who handles this business for the northwest, is seeking contracts for a thousand carloads in Oregon and Washington. He has headquarters at Portland. and in Washington a seed potato growers' organization has been formed. One grower at Salem is holding, and has probably sold his twenty acres of Netted Gem certified seed during the past week. This seed potato has been selling for $3.85 a sack at Salem. Mr. Hoffman of land liable therefor its proporgrows from certified seed only and the crop is on a rotation basis, of corn, grain and seed potatoes, twenty acres of each and changed each year. A certification official from O. A. C. goes over the seed and the crop each year, guarantees the purity of the crop from diseases and pests. There is very little genuine Burbank seed left in Oregon. It has been allowed to become badly mixed and too many Oregon potato growers fail or refuse to have their seed and crops inspected. Seed potatoes are grown in many other states, and in Minnesota the Burbank is planted and much seed stock sold for Netted Gem is called Burbank Netted Gem. Netted Gem Burbank seed from Oregon is sold under that name in eastern states. Idaho and Yakima Netted Gem was originally a Burbank type of potato. Those regious have built up a national trade in seed potatoes, and grow large crops that are shipped in carloads to all parts of the United States and Canada, and even to European and Oriental countries. Oregon needs most of all to get hold of pure seed and to grow better potatoes. Our soil and climate can produce the finest quality will be June 14, 1937.

of Burbank and Netted Gem. Many hold that the genuine Burbank is a better potato than the Netted Gem, and produces larger crops and brings better prices where known at its best. One thing is certain, there is demand for a great many more seed potatoes than can be supplied. And if the shipping business were organized here and conducted as it is in Idaho and Washington it would become one of the largest farming industries in the state. What is needed in Oregon is intelligent organization of the growers with a large shipping and grading plant at some central point like Salem. I am only a city potato grower and have not learned the rudiments of the potato business and do not know as much about it as an oriental spud grower in California.

Like the strawberry, and prunes, and flax, the plain homely mutfaced spud could be made the foundation of a great industry if we YMCA during the month of May. had some one who would master the factors of the situation and according to a report made to the organize it. Here is a crop that is also an article of commerce. In board of directors of that organipoint of consumption potatoes are more consumed than any one other article grown on the land except wheat. Next to bread, potatoes are number 33 were men, 28 boys, and most universally eaten. The unfortunate fact remains that a large 53 were women part of them are consumed as corn flakes and a hundred other kinds of prepared breakfast foods sent in from states like Michigan, nine- that three musical programs had tenths of them made of potatoes. Some bright business man who been conducted in the lobby, with would organize the potato with a big buying, grading and shipping good attendance. These programs center at Salem, and with the spud farmers of about five countries to draw on, in these days of paved highways and truck transportation, besides the railroads and private cars, a potato distributing business could be built up here at the farming center of western Oregon reaching into millions of bushels.

Willamette and Santiam river bottoms have a big acreage. The handling of the crop is pretty well understood, but could no doubt be enlarged. Some bank at Salem should interest itself in on a track meet with Chemawa, could be organized by business men and by the growers themselves. and secure the necessary shipping and grading warehouses and begin to study the subject. As in all heavy crops, the labor problem would and 44 girls learned to swim, and have to be solved, but it is not so hard as in the sugar beet crop potato crop, all but the planting, can be easily made by machinery. The farmers generally know how to grow the potato crop. There are no pests to speak of. Brains and intelligence will have to be employed in securing certified seed and the marketing. Dealing in seed potatoes can be made a large and profitable business. Standardizing the crop for shipping will have to be undertaken by a potato growers' organization. The Oregon Burbank potato was widely known long before Burbank, the California plant wizard, was known in the state penitentiary here a to fame. I am not an authority on varieties of potato, but I understand the Burbank notato was originated in Ohio long before Prof. Luther Burbank began to operate in the potato publicity department. Testing varieties could be carried on at the agricultural college exper- prison officials. iment stations. What we need now is a genius to organize and collect the facts of the potato industry and organize a growers' corporation to enlarge production and a corporation to supply the necessary center at Salem. Plant as much certified seed as possible. Build up the seed production on scientific lines. There have never been enough seed potatoes to supply the demand. There is a longer season in The potato philosophy of Col E. Hofer, the second recent western Oregon to make the crop, and it can be left in the ground longer. But our farmers are lax in fighting for better stocks of seed and better crops. But frosts and saving crop and holding it for
