up to near harvest. Some of the early sown flax is already in bloom. Some 2500 acres is in flax in seven Willamette valley counties, and it is hoped that the acreage may be increased in 1938 to 4000 or more. This will depend partly on the ability of the state flax industry to find ready markets for all the output, and all the flax already on hand at prices that will give available funds for handling such an acreage next year—depending also on the ability of the state to provide the new machinery that will be necessary to harvest and work up 4000 acres or more of flax. The success of the Salem flax mill in working up a large proportion of the flax will also have a bearing upon the acreage for next year.

LINDBERGH WELCOMED HOME BY U. S. PLANES

Washington navy yard, where she is to dock at 11 a. m. Immediately the gang plane is down, Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, mother of the flier, will go aboard alone to be the first to welcome her son. Their meeting probably will be in the privacy of the son's stateroom.

At noon Lindbergh will step ashore to be welcomed formally by the semi-official reception committee and escorted to a White House automobile in which he will ride over the stretch of street made famous by the tread of victorious armies like the Aplan Way of Old Rome.

Coolidge in Line

At the end of the line, President Coolidge will await him, to deliver a brief word of welcome and to decorate him with the distinguished flying cross, on the back of which is the simple inscription, "Charles A. Lindbergh, No. 1."

But before the chief executive has had his opportunity to clasp the hand of the man who set the world agog with his marvelous flying feat, thousands upon thousands will have acclaimed him. These will line Eighth street, Southeast, from the navy yard to Pennsylvania avenue, and along that avenue, which winds down through the capitol grounds, and runs on westward nearly to the White House.

The president's presentation will be in the shadow of the Washington monument and in the presence of probably the largest and most colorful crowd that ever has assembled for any event in the national capital.

Perfect weather is forecast.

Guest of President

Colonel Lindbergh and his mother will be guests of the president and Mrs. Coolidge during their stay here. The flier will be in Washington approximately 45 hours, hopping off from Bolling field, the army's air station here, around 9 o'clock Monday morning for New York, where another monster reception and ovation awaits him.

Mayor Walker has designated Monday as "A day of public celebration," and all stock and other exchanges, as well as many business houses and the public schools will be closed. Millions will cheer the flier as he parades the metropolis, where he began the flight which linked France and America by air.

Whether Colonel Lindbergh is to complete his round trip in the "Spirit of St. Louis"—will be determined after he reaches Washington.

To Reassemble Plane

When he takes off from here the public will be excluded from Bolling field, but he will give all Washington a chance to see him. He will circle the city, probably twice. "The Spirit of St. Louis" will be re-assembled tomorrow at the naval air station at Anacostia and probably will be placed on exhibition in the Potomac river on a barge anchored off Haines point.

Even should Colonel Lindbergh not fly to New York in his trans-Atlantic plane, he will use it for the non-stop flight to St. Louis, where he is to be honored on June 18, which to-day was declared a municipal holiday in honor of the pilot.

authorities to the recent revival of alleged counter-revolutionary activities beginning with the assassination of Pierre Volkoff, Soviet minister at Warsaw, the bombing of a communist meeting at Leningrad, and the wrecking of a trolley car enroute to Minsk which resulted in the death of a Russian official, who was transporting an alleged Polish spy.

With the exception of Vinogradoff, a lawyer, Marakoff, a merchant, and Gurevitch, a journalist, virtually all of the victims were of the old regime, being members of the nobility to a greater or lesser degree. The names of two princes, Mosherski and Dolgoroukoff appear upon the list of those executed, as well as such names as Shlegiloff and Narishkin, all of whom were prominent in pre-revolution affairs in Russia either as exarist military officers or politicians.

British Officials Comment

LONDON, June 10.—(AP)—The world now has an example of the bolshevik mentality at its worst, it was remarked in British official circles with reference to the execution of 20 persons in Moscow on charges of anti-Soviet activities, including that of furnishing information to the British diplomatic mission in Moscow.

Dismissing the Soviet charges against the British government as "absurd and ridiculous," officials here declare that the British government does not stoop to such plots as trying to blow up the Kremlin. The officials assert that the objectives sought by the Soviet authorities in carrying out the score of death sentences in the same as they have been in previous critical moments of the bolshevik regime—namely, to institute a reign of terror and also to make a false appeal to the Russians' sense of nationalism by making them believe that Russia is menaced by foreign powers.

According to the British view, with no freedom of speech and consequently no public opinion in Russia, the Soviet government has been able to gain support even from its enemies within Russia by continually emphasizing that the Soviet union is in danger from Baltic states and from the great European powers.

At the British foreign office, where it is emphatically denied that the British government had any relations with the persons whose execution was announced in Moscow, the Associated Press was informed today that the members of the British missions which has just been recalled from Moscow had taken great care during their stay in the Soviet capital not to associate with Russians because all Russians in Russia who are friendly to foreigners invariably are suspected of espionage.

SUSPECTED MEN WAIT ARRIVAL OF OFFICERS

bye, Ray."

That was their farewell and as she spoke the words she swooned in her seat.

Some time later, with her son and $250 which federal officers took from her husband's pockets, she left Steubenville to go back to the farm-home near Hanging Rock, Ohio.

Since their arrest, both men had been held incommunicado in the Steubenville city jail. Today federal authorities permitted newspapermen to send in a list of questions, but the paper came back with no reply.

It has been learned, however, that they came from Kentucky to southern Ohio about two years ago and worked as railroad tie cutters for sometime under the names of Clarence and Elmer Goodwin.

As they lived in a little shack in a remote part of Lawrence county that Ray met and married Hazel Spruce. The couple then went to Pine Grove, Ohio, and Ray lived with them. They left that section of the state about a first of this year, presumably going direct to Steubenville,

CARRY INTO COURT OREGON'S EMBARGO

Baby Chick War Will Likely Go to United States Supreme Court

PORTLAND, June 10.—Embargo regulations adopted by the Oregon state livestock sanitary board and scheduled to become effective August 1, prohibiting the importation into this state of baby chicks or eggs of parent stock which have not undergone certain tests for disease, are attacked in a suit filed Thursday in federal court.

The complaint was filed for the Must Hatch Incubator company of Petaluma, Cal., by the law firm of Day, Hampson & Nelson, and names as defendants Governor I. L. Patterson, State Attorney General I. H. Van Winkle and W. H. Lytle, state veterinarian.

An order to show cause at once was issued by Federal Judge Beane and the case set for June 23, when argument on the matter will be heard by three judges, as it involves a constitutional question.

The suit is directed against the regulations adopted by the sanitary board last July, forbidding the importation of baby chicks and eggs of parent stock which have not been subjected to the agglutination test for intestinal disease. The statute under which the regulations were drawn, was passed in 1913.

It is charged that such regulations unduly restrict interstate commerce and deprive it of the equal protection of laws guaranteed by the constitution. The purpose of the regulations, it is admitted, is to prevent mixing stock already infected with those not affected. But the test, it is declared, is not a true diagnostic one, nor generally recognized as such.

The disease, known to be communicable, is said to result in a mortality rate of 5 to 10 per cent when it actually exists. The Must Hatch Incubator firm, however, avers its flocks never have been infected with the malady and that an examination covering millions of its chicks showed the mortality rate to be less than 5 per cent.

PUPILS RAISE FUND TO BUY EQUIPMENT

Luncheon and Playground Fitted Up at Lincoln School; 448 Attend

The lunch room at Lincoln grade school was equipped this year with the proceeds of an entertainment given by the pupils, according to the principal's report filed in the office of Superintendent George W. Hug.

Playground equipment was also purchased with the money raised through a paper drive. Other causes for which donations were made were the Mississippi flood relief, $20.41, and the Near East relief, $11.17, making a total of $159.68 raised for all purposes by the school during the year.

Health education was an outstanding feature of the work at Lincoln, the report shows. The health honor roll contained the names of 16 per cent of the pupils, the highest percentage in the city.

In nature study the pupils profited greatly by the use of a microscope loaned by O. E. Flagg, and by lectures given by him. An open house during the year gave opportunity for parents to visit the school and to enjoy a social time with the children here.

An increase of 53 pupils during the year over the enrollment of last year is shown. This year's enrollment included 240 boys and 298 girls, a total of 448 pupils.

GIRLS' CHANCES BETTER

Use Their Eyes To Get "The Man" Instead Of Simpering

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP)—Because modern girls are "not afraid to use their eyes and smile" and don't just "sit and simper," as the girls of past generations were supposed to do, the clapper of today stands a better chance of getting the man she wants than her mother did, in the opinion of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman who is author of an article in the current Red Book magazine.

Mrs. Harriman is the wife of the younger son of Oliver Harriman, banker, and is prominent in the city's social life.

"In the old days," she writes, "men did all the hunting and many women wasted their lives waiting. Now some girls pursue men quite openly."

"Girls lost men they really wanted through the false shame which prevented an admission of their true feelings. For love was something then to be ashamed of. I remember girls who were in love and whose assumed frigidity so disheartened their suitors that they went away never to return."

DEMPSEY LEAVES MOUNTAIN CAMP

LOS ANGELES, June 10.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, today deserted his "comeback" camp in the mountains above Ojai, and will continue his conditioning program in a gym here.

After working out with sparring partners in the city gymnasium, Dempsey said he would decide how soon he would be ready for a bout with Tunney, or if necessary for an elimination match with Jack Sharkey.

DINNER STORIES

Cats Seat

A slight variance from the old story of the man who cut two holes in his door—a big one for the old mother cat and a little one for the kitten—is told on Sam Ross. Sam cut four holes in a door, one for each of his cats. When asked why one hole wouldn't have been sufficient for all the cats, Sam replied: "Brother, when I says 'SCAT' I means seat!"

Shrinking!

Squire Johnson had been to New York and had had a suit made at a fashionable tailor's. When he got home he tried the suit on he found it was too small on him.

"By gosh!" he ejaculated, "a big concern like that making my suit too small for me."

"You must remember, Squire," said his friend, "that you are not such a big man in New York as you are here in Squeedunk!"

Try To Collect!

An inn-keeper, hearing of the whereabouts of a guest who had left without paying his bill, sent him a note:

"Dear Mr. Soanso: Will you kindly send amount of your bill at once, and oblige yours, etc."

The answer he received stated: "The amount is twenty-five dollars, yours, etc."

Just Reaping

A recent visitor to an English prison discovered among the inmates a man whom he knew. This particular prisoner had been finally laid by the heels for swindling, though for quite a time he had cut a large figure in English public life. But there he was making sacks.

The visitor went up to him and said, "Why, how do you do, Mr. Bottomley? What are you doing—sowing?"

"No—reaping."

New Field for the Talented

Two small boys halted before a brass plate fixed on the front of a house whereon was inscribed in bold characters the word Chiroprapist.

"Chiroprapist!" remarked one of them puzzled. "What's that?"

"Why," replied his companion, "a chiroprapist is a fellow that teaches canaries to whistle." College Humor.

YEARLY MEETING OF FRIENDS HELD

Plea Made by Officer of National 5 Year Meeting for Reaffiliation

NEWBERG, Or., June 10.—(Special)—The 35th Oregon yearly meeting of the Friends church (Quakers) opened Thursday morning at 10 o'clock with Edward Mott of Portland as the presiding officer and Marguerite P. Elliott of Salem as recording clerk.

The visiting Friends whose minutes were read today were Evangeline Reames, head of the rescue mission of Friends in Columbus, Ohio; William P. Haworth and wife of Miami, Okla., in Kansas yearly meeting; Nettie C. Springer and Inez E. Bachelior, ministers from Muscatine, Iowa, and John R. Cary and wife of Baltimore, Md., the former clerk of Baltimore yearly meeting of Friends, and also clerk of the five year meeting of Friends in America, from which Oregon yearly meeting withdrew at its session last year.

After these Friends had been welcomed to the yearly meeting by the presiding officer on behalf of the yearly meeting, John R. Cary addressed the yearly meeting, explaining that he had come not in any official capacity but purely in his own responsibility and at his own charge because of his deep concern over the withdrawal of Oregon yearly meeting from the five years meeting.

In a very feeling and forceful way Mr. Cary told of this association of the various yearly meetings in America and of the work which is being done unitedly, from which Oregon has now withdrawn.

He spoke of the changes in the organization of boards which are to be made at the next five years meeting in August; referring to the plans for pushing the evangelistic work of the church, and said: "It wrings my heart to think that Oregon yearly meeting, which stands pre-eminently for evangelism, will not be there to help us face our problems unless some change is made from the action of a year ago," and he sought the yearly meeting to find some way to resume its relationship to the other yearly meetings in the five years meeting in spite of the action taken last year.

Following this stirring address, Prof. Clarence G. Mottson of Pacific college, acting pastor of the meeting at Newberg, read that part of John 17 in which the prayer of Jesus is recorded, "That they all may be one; that the world may believe that Thou hast sent Me."

Officers were appointed for the yearly meeting as follows: Presiding clerk, Edward Mott of Portland; recording clerk, Marguerite P. Elliott of Salem; reading clerk, Robert Shattuck of Portland; announcing clerk, Kenneth Eichenberger of Quilicura, Wash.

At the session this afternoon reports were made of the departments of Christian stewardship and literature and the chairman of these departments, Mrs. Anna W. Benson of Portland and Mrs. I. Gurney Lee of Portland had charge of brief programs.

The evening evangelistic meetings during the yearly meeting will be in the hands of Nettie C. Springer and Inez E. Bachelior, who have held evangelistic services in various parts of the yearly meeting during the past winter.

Eplistles were read from the yearly meetings in London, Dublin and Berlin, as well as from yearly meetings in America.

A communication from Central yearly meeting in Indiana, a group which seceded from western yearly meeting, was not received on the ruling of the clerk which was supported by the yearly meeting.

DEBT SITUATION VIEWED

Credit Men Recommend no Changes in Arrangements

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 10.—(AP)—After appraising war debts owed to the United States from the professional credit point of view, delegates to the 32nd annual convention of the National Association of Credit Men have unanimously expressed the belief that arrangements made this far should not be changed and that no attempt should be made to open negotiations for settlement.

This action was contained in one of nine declarations adopted by the convention. The eight others regarded the McFadden-Pepper national bank measure; the federal reserve system; the national bankruptcy act; good government; taxation; good faith in credits; pledge of loyalty, and credits and profits.
