

SIDE LIGHTS OF THE STAGE AND SCREEN

Elsinore Theater
 Otis Skinner's stage rags are very dear to him. One can always buy new stuff but not rags, at least the kind he wore in "Kismet" and is wearing this season in "The Honor of the Family."
 Nineteen years ago Mr. Skinner played in "The Honor of the Family" when he created the role of Colonel Philippe Bridau. He has elected to revive the old Colonel, who is very much a rogue, and the veteran actor dug from the moth balls the Colonel's old down-at-the-heel uniform.
 "There I am," said Mr. Skinner, pointing to a life-sized figure as the Colonel in a handsome painting. "That is the way I look when I make my appearance on the stage and begin raising hell."
 But it must be rather enjoyable hell, if it can be raised with such a twinkle in the Colonel's eyes. Skinner's twinkle seems deeper and the eyes browner when they are contrasted with his white hair that is not always permitted to show on the stage.
 Mr. Skinner deprecates the commercial aspect of the stage.
 "I don't want to be one of those old fellows who float on the past, but it is all so staggering. Why do you know, that there are two legitimate theaters in New York where major productions are being presented? Everything happens so fast."
 And then to youth.
 "Youth is handicapped on the stage today. They are not given a chance. In the past there was a school of expressionism; a player had a chance to express himself. Today it is a study in suggestion and repression. Players are cast as to type. They play themselves and many of them do it exceedingly well. But out of this style of acting we will never find any Shakespearean actors."
 What Mr. Skinner objects to on the modern stage is the tendency to use it for vivification of social problems.

 "I think the stage should represent a Never-Never land, people want to believe the unreal."
 Mr. Skinner and his excellent company will be the attraction in the Elsinore theater June 22.
Oregon Theater
 Anybody who fears that laughter may increase their girth is herewith warned to stay away from the Oregon theater today, where "McFadden's Flats" will show today.
 For this latest First National picture, filmed by the producing body of Asher, Small & Rogers, is one of the greatest laugh hits ever thrown upon the screen. Not only have all the comic situations that made the original stage production a continued hit for more than 30 years been retained, but new and novel situations have been added. The result is that nobody who cares for wholesome fun can afford to miss this, the most promising of the season's successes.
 Two of the reasons for the complete success of this picture are Charlie Murray and Chester Conklin, who have been teamed up for the first time in this production. Charlie, always exuberantly funny, finds greater opportunities than ever in his association with the gifted Conklin.
 The eye filling members of the company are Edna Murphy, who plays the part of Charlie's beautiful daughter, and Dorothy Dwan, her chum. One would hardly imagine that a production such as "McFadden's Flats" would give the opportunities it does for elaborate gowns and even alluringly trim bathing suits. But there they are, and it may be added, both Edna and Dorothy know how to wear them.

SCOVILLE TO SPEAK

World Famous Evangelist Coming to Turner

World famous as a preacher, the coming of Charles Reign Scoville, of Chicago, to the state convention of Christian churches at Turner, July 2-10, is of more than usual interest.
 Dr. Scoville has held meetings around the world. He has held some of the largest union meetings in recent years resulting in between 4,000 and 5,000 conversions. He is credited with having held the largest single church meeting in the United States.
 Twenty-five years ago this summer Dr. Scoville was the speaker at the Turner convention. He is the only imported speaker at this convention who has been invited to a return engagement.
 He will speak in the great tabernacle at Turner twice each day, at 11 o'clock a. m. and at 8 o'clock p. m., beginning on Sunday, July 3 and continuing until Sunday, July 10.
 This is a rare opportunity for Salem folks to hear one of the world's greatest evangelists. Admission to the grounds and all services free. For information about camping and programs write to C. F. Swander, secretary, 409 Panama Bldg., Portland, Oregon.

Something New For Over-Stout Women

 You can wrap a 250-pound woman into this beautiful garment and bring her down to the most shapely figure. For it is an exquisitely designed and beautifully worked and finished piece of apparel. You may call it a corset or supporter and yet it is a delight to the eye and a contribution to comfort never before attained. It is
The W. S. Rice Corrective Supporter and Brassiere
 The front and back are so designed that those great layers of fat that bulge over the abdomen and roll in waves down the back to the waist, are all smoothed out and gently but firmly kept in place to show 50 to 75 pounds reduction.
On Free Trial
 It lifts up and supports the bust, snugly rounds over the hips, curves the waist line to symmetrical appearance and brings the entire figure into slenderizing proportion.
 Made in the famous W. S. Rice factory at Adams, N. Y., and designed by a noted corsetier, it needs but a try-on to prove it the first and only perfect Reducing Corset ever made for stout women.
 In every neighborhood and community are women who have undergone surgical operations leaving weak places that sometimes break apart with most unfortunate results. A simple attachment of air cushions to the conformer gives perfect support and protection.
 Mrs. J. A. Gilligan, the personal representative of W. S. Rice, is now here to give the ladies of Salem every opportunity to fully test this wonderful Reducing Corset.
 Put it on and see how charmingly it feels, how perfectly it brings you into shape, how nice and comfortable you feel, how easily you breathe, how actively you become, how you can bend over without strain, walk upstairs like a girl, and wear modern gowns with all the appearance and freedom of a perfect figure.
 It is made by W. S. Rice, Inc., in the largest and most complete factory of its kind in the world. And if you have been so unfortunate as to have undergone a surgical operation that has left the abdomen weak, a simple attachment of air cushions gives perfect protection.
