

SIDE LIGHTS OF THE STAGE AND SCREEN

Capitol Theater
Thrills—laughs—spectacle—drama—these are the things that go to make "Slide, Kelly, Slide" one of the outstanding pictures of the year, shows at the Capitol today.

The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer play—biggest baseball story in the history of the screen, and now playing at the Capitol theater, is unique. In the first place, the director, Edward Sedgwick, filmed the World Series, took its crucial plays and wove them into a dramatic background for his story. 'Thousands of yelling fans in grandstands; the nation's two foremost teams at death grips—this is the beginning or postlude of the picture.

In this is woven an intimate story of American baseball; the story of a young "busher" who learns to pitch, makes the big team, becomes a star, gets the "swelled head" thereby—and then learns the greatest lesson of life.

It is just life itself—told amid the surge and thunder of the great American game.

Elsinore Theater
"High Hat," Robert Kane's latest comedy featuring Ben Lyon, Sam Hardy and Mary Brian, shows at the Elsinore today only. As a studio life, the picture, burlesques, all phases of movie life, from the romance of the extras to the temperaments of stars and directors.

To anyone who has ever aspired to a day inside a great picture studio, this fast moving film is recommended as a screen travelogue through Hollywood or the studio row of New York.

Ben Lyon is particularly appealing as a lazy, but lovable, extra. Mary Brian does a turnabout from the Barrie type of role she has heretofore played, and gives a splendid performance as a sophisticated little boss of the studio's wardrobe.

It is Sam Hardy, however, who rivals Ben for the honors of the show. As a conceited, self-conscious ham actor, he contributes much to the comedy.

In addition to the picture there will be five vaudeville acts today. Comedy, dancing, singing, beauty and art are included in the coming Association vaudeville bill. Featured is a delightful concoction of song and dance presented by Lucille Enderly, a male impersonator with a double voice, and her company of four—two young men who dance, and a harmony singing team.

Everyone remembers those funny Dutch comedians, Rice and Cady, who are still pleasing vaudeville audiences. One is a tall, Dutchman and the other a short and rather plump one with a squeaky voice, excellent for comedy.

The Youngers will have the audience alternating between admiration and laughs. These three accomplished gymnasts will have the house in an uproar with their unorthodox tumbler, and at the same time will elicit many a gasp of surprise as they perform feats of strength and skill.

Jimbo and Mack will offer "The Primrose Path," singing and dancing skit interrupted here and there to permit a bit of comedy chatter.

The Howard Twins have a routine of dances, both fast and difficult—that is, difficult for any but the Howards. Practically every style of dance is done by these two boys, and in an entertaining way.

In the days when the exclamation of the word "Stung!" was freely used, a nice, but restless little boy of about eight years, happened to be one of a merry party occupying a box at a performance of "The Honor of the Family," in Detroit, Mich.

This little squirming individual proved not only annoying to the audience, but also to the actors on the stage, who imagined the boy about to fall onto the stage or into the orchestra. He kept on plucking out almost the entire plush covering of the railing, twisting, turning, fumbling, scratching, without reprimand from his elders. The dialogue on the stage nor action of the play could divert his attention from the red plush material.

Eventually, Otis Skinner made his appearance in his reckless, dare-devil personality that he assumes so well in the role of Colonel Philippe Bridau. This aroused the little boy's decided attention, and especially so when Mr. Skinner banged his cane heavily on the table, with the outcry of "Well, do I see my uncle!" All eyes and ears were the little lad thereafter until a certain scene in Act 3. In this scene the leading lady as the intriguing Flora tries to beguile Mr. Skinner, as Philippe, whom she has every reason in the play to hate most bitterly, changes her attitude suddenly and coyly asks "Do you believe in dreams?" to which Philippe replies, "To h— with dreams!" the boy, after that, fairly sat upon the railing, all interest; he liked the blustering, swaggering and blunt Philippe, and had no use for the lovely, but scheming and wistful Flora, his soldier man must not be ensnared by this woman. Yet Flora's beauty and charm seemingly entrance Philippe, sweet and affectionate terms, a confession of love, desiring a real master such as he, become all his, quickly follow one another while she slowly and creepingly approaches Philippe, eventually falling into his arms. All seems at an end for poor Philippe, and after a bit of billing and cooing, he suddenly throws her off, exclaiming, "No, no, my dear, I am an old hand at this game and you cannot fool me." The boy in question leaned forward at this and at the top of his voice shouted "STUNG!" The audience became convulsed in laughter, the boy had all eyes upon him, it was some time before the play could be continued. This play will show at the Elsinore June 22.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound
Mrs. Annie Kinski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and run-down that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman. With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good. Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

The Marion county health clinic will give its third toxin-antitoxin diphtheria treatment Saturday. About 95 children have been taking the treatments.

Mrs. Dora Patton Dies Suddenly at Son's Home
INDEPENDENCE, June 16.—(Special.)—Mrs. Dora Patton, 65, died suddenly today at the home of her son, W. E. Patton, near Eola. She had been in good health but early this morning complained of feeling faint and asked for a drink of water. Members of the family went to bring it, and returned to find her dead. Coroner A. L. Keeney was called and announced that no inquest would be necessary, heart trouble evidently being the cause of death. Mrs. Patton was born at Granby, Mo., May 17, 1862, and that was her home until ten months ago when she moved to her son's home near Eola. She is survived also by another son, E. G. Patton of West Salem; by a sister, Mrs. Jennie Mack of Enterprise, and four brothers, Elias Stedman of Portsmouth, Ohio, Bruce and Kirk Stedman of Granby, Mo., and William Stedman of Paint Rock, Tex. The remains are at the Keeney chapel here. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Bergdoll Wants to Fly With Chamberlin to U. S.
BREMERHAVEN, Germany, June 16.—(AP)—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the American draft evader declares that he wants to fly in the Bellanca monoplane Columbia to New York or Philadelphia, either alone or with Clarence Chamberlin.

In a personal letter to Charles A. Levine, written from Weinsberg, Wurttemberg, where Bergdoll has been sojourning since his acquittal on a seduction charge at Moshach in April 1926, he says:

"Hearty congratulations to you and Chamberlin for your wonderful flight; also best wishes for the future.

"Should you care to sell or loan me the Columbia, on condition I fly the same from Berlin within a specified time to New York or Philadelphia, or if you do not care to allow me to fly the plane alone, would you be willing to allow me to accompany Chamberlin on a flight to New York. Let me know where I can reach you."

Mr. Levine replied that the plane was not for sale; that he and Chamberlin proposed to return to New York together. The letter was made public by Mr. Levine tonight aboard the steamer Bremen where the fliers are spending the night.

RELIGIOUS COURSE CHAUTAUQUA PLAN

C. I. Andrews of Kimball School of Theology Directs New Feature

A new feature of the Williamette Valley Chautauqua, which meets from July 12 to 24 in Gladstone Park, near Oregon City, will be the inclusion in its program this year of a definite program of religious education.

This was announced yesterday by C. I. Andrews, Kimball professor and representative of the Oregon State Council of Religious Education, under whose auspices the program will be conducted.

A daily vacation Bible school will be conducted for children under 12 years of age, from 9 to 11:30 each morning, under the direction of Mrs. Rosebraugh, of Park Place. The school will follow the latest methods in religious educational work.

Miss Mildred Mohr of Salem will have charge of religious activities for young people, in an advisory capacity.

For adults the hour from 10 to 11 o'clock each morning will be given over to a series of courses of study, following the plan of the international standard leadership training school. Six courses will be offered, those present attending any one of the six which they may choose.

A course in the study of the New Testament will be conducted by Rev. Bonarth of Oregon City. Professor C. M. Keefer, of Kimball School, will conduct a class in "Principles of Teaching." "The Message and Program of the Christian Church" will be the subject for a series of talks given by Rev. Henry Weiss, of Lent.

Mrs. Clara G. Esson of Portland, state field representative for the educational work of the Christian church, will have charge of a class in "Training and Worship."

Hildred Mohr, in charge of young people's work, will also teach a class in pageantry and drama. Prof. C. I. Andrews will act as dean, and will conduct a discussion group on the subject of "Parents' Problems."

This program of religious education is a new plan for the Gladstone Chautauqua, which previously has merely given one hour daily for a course of lectures on the Bible, and has made no provision for the younger groups, or for a diversity of interest among adults.

Certificates of graduation will be given those who attend recognized by the various denominational boards of religious education.

Time of Byrd's Hopoff Not Definitely Known
ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 16.—(AP)—Instructions to Thomas H. Kinkade, Wright engineer, to make a thorough examination of the motor of the Fokker monoplane America, gave rise to a report tonight that Commander Richard E. Byrd planned to hop off for Paris early tomorrow.

Reports from the weather bureau, however, were adverse to an early departure for a trans-Atlantic flight. Conditions were said to be unchanged since this afternoon when the weather bureau gave no great hopes that there would be sufficient clearing by tomorrow noon.

TO PIERCE SKY

Plans for the proposed 110-story Larkin tower, on west Forty-second street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, New York City, have been approved by the city's building department. Cost is estimated at $25,000,000 and completion is anticipated before the end of 1928. Plans call for it to rise 1,200 feet above street level, 267 feet higher than the Eiffel tower, Paris. Drawing of it is pictured here in comparison with the Eiffel tower.

ADMINISTRATION COURSE POPULAR

Commendation Given Home Economics Work by Educators of State

The most popular course offered in the home economics department of the senior and junior high schools was the class in home administration, according to Mrs. Eula S. Creech, head of the home economics department, in her report to Superintendent Geo. W. Hux, filed in his office in the high school.

This course in home administration received high commendation on the part of educators at the State Teachers' association meeting held in Portland in December, when a report of its work was given by Dr. Walter H. Brown, head of the Marion county health demonstration.

A new course in nutrition was introduced into the senior high school course this year. Beside work from a textbook, a series of lectures were given, including a talk on science by Carolyn Rhubetz, physical education and health education by Anna Simpson, health by Dr. W. H. Brown, child feeding by Dr. Gerald Shackleton, nursing by Mildred Shackleton, and dental care by Dr. Estil L. Brown.

The school cafeterias, which are under the home economics department, all showed a slight surplus at the close of the year. The Parrish cafeteria also bought $115 worth of new equipment.

A fashion show in which 250 girls took part was the most outstanding feature of the Parrish work during the year. Each girl wore a dress she had made in the sewing classes, and displayed other work done by the department. The show was well attended and much interest shown in the work of the girls.
