The history of the senior class dates back to September 23rd, 1923. At that time 40 students enrolled in the Independence High school to gain what knowledge they could. Our advisors for that year were Miss Clave and Mr. Palfrey.

Those first few weeks were indeed interesting ones. Everything seemed so different. The methods, the studies, the teachers—we had to become accustomed to all of them. However, this was a pleasant and profitable experience for most of us, as we realized that this was but a milestone on the road toward a final goal—a completed education.

Members of our class have participated in athletics every year. Those who are on the various teams are: basketball, boys—John Potts, James Hanna, William Becken, and Marshall Pengra; girls—Lennie Burch, Helen McGillivray, Bernice Nelson, Evelyn Kurre, and Helen Knott; baseball, James Hanna, William Becken and Marshall Pengra; football, James Hanna, William Becken, Paul Young, and Norval Taylor; tennis, boys—Marshall Pengra and Norval Taylor; girls—Helen McGillivray, Helen Knott, Alta Ruch and Dorothy Hill; and track, boys—Paul Young, William Becken and James Hanna; girls—Helen McGillivray and Golda Bush.

During our sophomore year we sent two of our class to represent us at the State Music Tournament. They were Oral Violette and Luetta Baker. We also contributed seven of our number to the high school orchestra. They are Marshall Pengra, Fred Hewitt, Fay Irvine, Martha Hill, Luetta Baker, Golda Bush, and Alta Kingsbury.

PLOW WIPES OUT SIGNS OF BATTLE

(Continued from page 1.) prevail and nowhere have the signs of war and destruction disappeared so completely. Military experts say this is due to the swiftness with which American troops struck, carrying their objectives with rifles and bayonets, doing away with the usual destructive artillery barrages.

Farmer Jasper, who occupies the land near the spot halfway between Vinneuilles and Hattouchatel, where patrols of the 26th and 1st divisions met on the morning of September 13th, 1918, completing the Saint Mihiel drive, seems unaware of the battle staged in his fields.

"Let's make it quick," he replied when requested to pose for a photograph. "The sun is going down and this is a nice day for plowing."

When informed that former American soldiers would be here about September, he merely said: "Too late to help with the harvest."

Joseph Dumont, of Rincheourt, 10 years old, expressed greater interest: "Good!" he shouted. "I'll guide them to Montsec." Montsec, visible a few miles away to the west, was the scene of spirited fighting.

At Creus, the owner of the only cafe in the main square, asked: "Are they dry or will they drink wines and beer?"

This query, which appears to interest a large portion of the population, was left unanswered.

COOLIDGE IS INVITED TO FISH

Twenty years ago Roosevelt stopped there on a flying tour of the west, cast his line and pulled out an eight-pound brook trout.

Taft visited the dam in 1911 with rod and reel, and in half an hour caught the limit of some 20 trout.

If President Coolidge can match these performances, Black Hills sportsmen will concede to him the reputation as an angler which precedes him to the scene of his summer outing.

Trout are even more numerous in the pool this summer than when Roosevelt and Taft fished there, anglers say. A Rapid City man caught 16 trout in 16 minutes with a birch fishpole, and a state official extracted 20 good size specimens in 15 minutes.

Posted against trespassers and guarded by watchmen, the pool is always well stocked with good-sized fish, and the public is admitted only when the pond is too full of trout.

Jarvis Davenport of the power company has invited the president to bring with him to the dam Gov. W. J. Bulow and Senator Peter Norbeck of South Dakota, and the visit may turn into a contest between the three. The pond lies some 50 miles north of the summer white house.

Most of the executive's fishing will be closer at hand. Squaw creek, which runs close by the president's vacation home, has been set aside for the sole use of the White House party, and abounds with brook, mountain and Lochlaven trout not yet educated to keep away from hooks and bait. And if he wants diversion a little farther from his front yard another wealthy trout haven, French creek, lies in the park only a few miles south of his lodge.

thorne were his assistants. I started to college in 1878 and attended three years. When I was in my early 20s, I ran a scraper, working on the grade on the railroad between Woodburn and Silverton. I was paid $1.50 a day. "My two older brothers, John and Alfred, ran a gun store, with musical instruments on the side, at Corvallis, and they had a branch store at Albany. I worked with my brothers till 1890, when I came to Salem and started a music store here and took the agency for sewing machines. I have run this store for 37 years. I was married in the fall of 1887 to Margaret A. Minzenmier of Albany. Our son, Lowell, who was born October 19, 1888, is with me in the store. The first year I had this store in Salem, the total sales amounted to about $3000. Last year our sales of pianos and other musical goods amounted to over $150,000."

FLOATING COLLEGE PLANNED FOR GIRLS

(Continued from page 1.) believed that an educational campaign would have to precede the definite establishment of a girls' college on a sound basis and that to attempt it before we had started the men's college well on its way would jeopardize the success of that undertaking. We therefore let our tentative plans rest where they were. "This decision, however, has met with an unexpected number of protests from feminine undergraduates who have asked that they be given the same opportunities as the men. A representative of the Vassar Travel Bureau received so many enquiries that, upon our request, she undertook a survey of the colleges of the east and has found there is a general enthusiasm and demand for a "Floating University" for girls.

"Under the circumstances we decided that we could go ahead at once. We have therefore taken steps to provide a faculty, dean, and president which we expect to be able to announce within a very short time now. The members of the faculty will be drawn from Vassar, Radcliffe, Bryn Mawr, Mount Holyoke, Wellesley and Barnard and we have received assurances from most of these colleges that they will cooperate in the undertaking by granting leave of absence to such of their faculty as we may require. We have also opened negotiations to charter a suitable steamship for the college.

"The itinerary of the cruise will follow closely that of the men's college with some changes made necessary by the fact that the girls' cruise-year will be limited to one semester of six months instead of a full college year. The northern European parts will probably be omitted in order to give more time in the Orient where our experience has shown, the girls have found the most interest.

"In order that the full educational value of the college afloat may be taken advantage of, the registration will be limited to between 200 and 300. I think, judging by the enquiries, protests, and applications which have been reaching us, we will be able to register this number very quickly, in spite of the careful process of selection called for by such a cruise."
