

SIDE LIGHTS OF THE STAGE and SCREEN

Elsinore Theater
Nothing could show the versatility of Allan Dwan more effectively than his ability to go from the modern jazz tempo of his former productions, to the subtle and stately melody of "The Music Master," which he recently adapted to the screen for Fox from the famous old stage play.

The story is laid in the New York of 1900, and is chiefly concerned with Anton Von Barwig, a lovable old musician who gave up a brilliant career in Vienna to come to America in search of his wife who ran away with a man who had been his friend, and taken with her his baby daughter. For nineteen years he continued the search, selling, in the meantime, all his precious mementoes of happier days to pay detectives. At the time the story opens, he is living in a cheap boarding house near the Bowery, teaching music to the children of the neighborhood and playing evenings in a medicine show orchestra.

Then he meets his daughter, who has been brought up in luxury by the man who betrayed him, and is about to marry into one of New York's most distinguished families. He goes to her home to give her piano lessons and hears her tell of her life, and of her mother who has died. But he does not let her know who he is because he is afraid of spoiling her chance for happiness.

There is infinite sadness in the theme, and Alec Francis in the role of the lonely old man has done a beautiful piece of work. Lois Moran, as the daughter, is no less perfectly cast, and Neil Hamilton, Norman Trevor, Charles Lane and Kathleen Kerrigan provide excellent support.

The climax is reached in that fine dramatic scene made famous on the stage by David Warfield, when the real father and the foster father meet and clash with all the accumulated bitterness of the years between them.

It is superbly directed, and Alec Francis achieves in it the best bit of emotional acting he ever has done in a long career of character parts.

Oregon Theater

Nick Duize, a real figure in Hollywood life, has the role of "Carlos," renegade boss of African natives in the adventure-romance, "The Notorious Lady," which shows at the Oregon today.

Duize (pronounced Dweeze) is a real movie villain, but, press agents to the contrary, he is beloved by many of Hollywood's most prominent players and his hospitality is known to almost everyone, high and low, in the movie world of the west.

"When you go to Tijuana, don't forget to drive on about 15 miles and see Nick Duize," is the suggestion of a friend to anyone planning a trip to the Mexican border town.

"Nick Duize's place" is a ranch, with many picturesque quarters for guests.

"It's like the Mexican ranch paintings and scenes you read about in novels," is the way one enthusiastic visitor described the "Nick Duize place."

Lewis Stone, who is featured with Barbara Bedford and Ann Bork in "The Notorious Lady," has often visited Duize and they are great friends, although, in the photoplay, Duize is in the role of an unscrupulous enemy.

Mrs. A. Bowen, who underwent an operation at a Salem hospital several weeks ago and whose condition for a time was serious, is improving rapidly and is expected to be able to leave the hospital Saturday after spending 25 days there.

A union Sunday school picnic will be held at the picnic grounds July 4. Although anybody is welcome to attend, a special invitation is extended to every Japanese in Marion county to come and to bring their friends and relatives. The program is in charge of the local missionary society.

A. W. Powell is building an addition to his barn, making provision for his fine dairy herd, which is increasing.

F. A. Frazier was a purchaser at the Pickard Bros. high grade Jersey sale last Tuesday.

Some hay has been cut and stored in the barns, but some is in the shock and some not even cut, so sunshine would be more welcome here just now than showers.

The damages to Fred DeVries' automobile, resulting from an accident several weeks ago when a reckless driver crowded him off the pavement east of Aumsville, cost over $290 to repair, it has been reported.

SEVENTY PRACTICE TEACHERS IN SALEM

Grant and Park Schools Accommodate Normal Summer Students

OREGON NORMAL SCHOOL, Monmouth, June 24.—(Special.)—Two hundred and three normal school students are putting into practice the theories they have acquired in the courses in teacher-training given in the Monmouth normal school. They are doing supervised teaching and observing others teach during the first six weeks of the summer session under the direction of the training school department. Five training centers, besides the Monmouth school, are in operation under skilled critic teachers, and the practical experience gained in even so short a period often proves invaluable to the young teacher when she begins work in her own classroom.

Two Salem schools—the Grant and Park—are open with sufficient children attending to accommodate 70 student teachers at the Washington school at Corvallis there are 43 students, 35 at Independence, 17 at Valsez and 38 at Monmouth.

During Miss Todd's absence Miss Arbuthnot, recently returned from a year in Europe, will live at the Senior cottage and assist Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Robards, the assistant deans.

Monmouth Faculty Member Named for Beaverton Work

OREGON NORMAL SCHOOL, Monmouth, June 4.—(Special.)—Mrs. Ethel Miller of the normal school faculty has been appointed by President Landers to conduct classes in methods for the coming six weeks at St. Mary's institute at Beaverton. Each summer the invitation is extended to the Monmouth normal school to furnish an instructor skilled in methods, to present to the Sisters of the school the professional side of teacher-training. The intention of the Beaverton Institute is to bring the work of their teachers into a close adjustment with the prevalent phases of teacher-training now required in Oregon.

Over Half of Students Flunk Bible Examination

Of the 408 high school students who wrote in the recent state Bible study examinations 190 were successful while 218 failed. In the examinations having to do with the new testament 113 students passed and 104 failed. Seventy-seven passed in the old testament tests while 114 failed.

Ida Markusen and Edward Ruder, both of Junction City, scored 100 per cent in the new testament examinations.

The examinations are standard throughout the state and are offered in any standard high school which makes application for the questions. Sixty-five schools offered the examination on May 6. Pupils may earn one-half credit if successful in either the old or new testament examinations. By passing both examinations they may earn one of the 15 units required for graduation from a standard high school.

OREGON NORMAL SCHOOL, Monmouth, June 24.—(Special.)—Polk county religious educational convention will be held at Monmouth on Saturday, June 25, at the Evangelical church. This convention is inter-denominational, and delegates representing almost every church in the county will be in attendance, according to Mrs. Inez Miller, president of the Polk county religious council.

The day's program will begin at 9 o'clock with an address by Mrs. Jean Johnson of Portland, former state secretary of the association. Mrs. Johnson will also give an afternoon talk. Several other prominent speakers from other sections of the state, will assist the Polk county workers during the day's meetings.

COURT KILLER RELEASED WHEN $10,000 BOND GIVEN

DUNCAN, Okla., June 23.—(AP.)—Charged with the murder of the alleged despoiler of his daughter, Arch Gilbreath, farmer, tonight was free on a $10,000 bond furnished by ten of the scores of friends who pushed forward to assist in obtaining his release.

Gilbreath, who late yesterday shot B. F. Cox to death in a crowded court room here, waived preliminary trial in county court when he was arraigned this morning and was immediately bound over to the district court, where his trial was set for Oct. 3.

When the amount of his bond was agreed upon, sympathizers swarmed to the front of the court room asking for the privilege of signing. The court, however, deemed the ten bondsmen sufficient for more than $100,000.

Coast Trip Planned By Route 9 People

ROUTE 9, June 24.—(Special.)—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Matthes, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Babcock and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Babcock and little daughter June are leaving this week for a fortnight's stay at the coast. This being the time of low tides the party expects to secure many fine clams and rock oysters.

Glen Mathis of the Willamette Nursery company, is spending the week in Corvallis.

The phenomenal crop of clover here this year is being cut and cured as rapidly as weather conditions permit. Hay-making, however, will not be general until after July 4.

Gardens and flowers were never more beautiful and prolific than the present season, but strawberry, cherry and clover growers fall to see the beauties of too much moisture at this time.

Many here are planning to attend Hayesville's big Sunday school convention on Sunday, June 26, at Hayesville church.

The onion crop and head lettuce crop are showing great promise.

A. W. Speers, of old-time orchestra fame, is receiving a visit from his brothers, Alonzo and Thomas Speers, of Yakima, Wash. All three are expert musicians.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Feist and son Leonard visited friends here this week.

Increased moisture and perfect growing conditions in the Lake land have overcome the late start vegetation received by unusually cool weather earlier in the season.

CONVICT MUTINY ENDED OVERCOMING LEADERS

The mutiny was called Tuesday morning.

Several of the guards were sick when they were brought to the surface.

"We have had nothing to eat since Tuesday morning," Charles Nicholson, one guard told the warden.

"It was an awful thing to go through," Charles Hamlin, another guard, said. "You can't know how awful it was unless you were down there."

Nicholson and John Heslop, pit boss, said they were overpowered about 11 o'clock Tuesday morning and along with the other 12 guards, locked in the electric shop.

They knew nothing further of the progress of the mutiny until four o'clock this afternoon when convicts came to the shop, broke out the windows, and told them there had been a battle, and that the mutiny was over.

RECORDER ORDERED TO PLACE MEASURE

Proposal for Repeal of Eugene Charter for Bond Sale Goes on Ballot

The state supreme court Friday ordered the city recorder of Eugene to place on the ballot at the special election June 28 an initiative measure looking to the repeal of that part of the Eugene city charter authorizing the sale of bonds in the amount of $500,000 for the construction of a public auditorium on or adjacent to the university of Oregon campus.

The charter provision authorizing the sale of the bonds was adopted by the voters some time ago but it later was decided to repeal the provision by a vote of the people. When the city recorder subsequently announced that he would place the measure asking for repeal of the charter provision on the ballot at the special election he was enjoined.

Judge Bagley of the lower court held that the initiative measure could not be referred to the voters at a special election and granted an injunction. The supreme court reversed the decision of Judge Bagley. The opinion was written by Justice Belt and was concurred in by the six other members of the court.

The suit to enjoin the city recorder from placing the initiative measure on the ballot at the special election was filed by David M. Graham, and others. George A. Gilmore, city recorder, was named as defendant in the suit.

JOHN ROTH NAMED ON PRATUM BOARD

Merry-go-round, Center of Enjoyment at Picnics 13 Years, Repaired

PRATUM, June 24.—(Special.) John Roth was elected director at the annual school meeting held here this week. George Kleen, the outgoing director, declined to be re-elected. Claud Ramsden is clerk of the district.

Wednesday the Braves class met at the picnic grounds where the merry-go-round was thoroughly overhauled several weeks ago. New bearings were installed both on top and below. Those at the bottom were set in a large concrete block.

The merry-go-round, which was built 13 years ago, has been a source of much enjoyment at the numerous picnics that have been held each year, but since the improvements made in the last few weeks, it is better than ever before.

The Standard Bearers of the First M. E. church, Salem, will meet with the class of the same
