

ST. OLAF'S SINGERS SILVERTON TONIGHT

Only Appearance in Oregon Outside of Portland; Has Toured World

The phenomenal success of the St. Olaf Lutheran Choir as a concert body makes a bright chapter in the history of music in America. On the occasion of its first eastern tour in 1926 and again in 1927, the concert-going public and the critics were astounded and wondered how it had been possible to hide so fair a light under the proverbial bushel.

All critics and music lovers declare that the St. Olaf Lutheran Choir is one of two or three finest choirs in the world. There are those who say it is the finest of them all.

It has several times travelled through the east. It has given concerts all down the Pacific Coast. It has crossed the Atlantic and has sung to the King and Queen of Norway. In Cleveland it has sung to an audience of 8000. The Hill Auditorium at Ann Arbor last year was packed with 5000 persons. Orchestra Hall in Chicago has been sold out repeatedly. The Denver Auditorium was completely filled and the critic of the Post stated that Denver was richer for the coming of the group.

From the proceeds of their tours a beautiful music hall has recently been built on the College campus at Northfield, Minnesota. And yet the purpose of the choir and the choir tours is not to make money. That is incidental. The St. Olaf Lutheran Choir is a church choir and sings every Sunday in St. John's Lutheran church at Northfield. This is its first duty—to express through music the finest sacred music that has ever been written, deep religious feelings.

And after every tour many letters are constantly received from listeners in different cities, testifying to the effect the singing by this choir has had upon them personally.

The whole country knows the St. Olaf Lutheran Choir and knows what it has accomplished. They come to Eugene Field Auditorium, Silvertown, tonight.

SIDE LIGHTS OF THE STAGE and SCREEN

Elsinore Theater
Franklin Pangborn, a screen comedian who won fame by his characterization in support of Marie Provost in "Getting Gertie's Garter" and "The Night Bride," has another captivating role in the new Metropolitan comedy, "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," which will be on view at the Elsinore theater today.

Mr. Pangborn is seen in this comedy as the inventor of a new type of automobile motor. This is a wide departure from any role in which he has hitherto been seen, his screen portrayals thus far having been confined to the domesticated mild mannered man or the "sap." But in his latest characterization he presents a new figure to the screen—a figure which incorporates in its makeup all those qualities the possession of which prompted critics to pronounce him one of the most notable screen finds of the decade.

As the inventor in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," Mr. Pangborn is said to be at his funniest. The story deals with an old woman who is aiding her nephew to become a surgeon and physician when in fact he devotes most of his time to automobile racing and other sports. When she announces her intention of visiting him at his "hospital," the nephew makes things hum in order to pull the wool over the eyes of his inquisitive aunt. It is then when Mr. Pangborn provides the laughs, particularly when he is called upon to be the subject of an operation. Robert Edson heads the supporting cast.

Oregon Theater
Lina in the coal fields of Pennsylvania is portrayed with thrilling vividness in "White Flannels" the Warner Bros. production featuring Louise Dresser and Jason Robards, now at the Oregon theater.

The Brokska family lives in poverty, the father and son working in the mines, and the mother doing odd jobs for rich mine owners and saving every hard-earned

RETURNS TO KANSAS

SILVERTON, Ore., June 29.—(Special)—Ralph Larson, who has been visiting relatives here since February, will leave for his old home in Kansas this week. penny to send her son to college. Father Brokska objects, but, when he is killed in the mines, mother urges the son with such vehemence that he leaves the village girl whom he loves and goes away to get an education.

The mother is admirably played by Louise Dresser, the son by Jason Robards and the father by George Nichols. Virginia Brown Faire is also featured, as the sweetheart of the hero, who, believing herself forgotten by him, becomes engaged to his pal, played by Warner Richmond. Lloyd Bacon directed.

"White Flannels" is a fine drama, built on the theme of mother love.

Capitol Theater

A real story of our much discussed "younger generation"—but one not a tale of flappers, cake eaters or jazz parties—shows at the Capitol today.

Lois Weber, the screen's only woman director, has given a new angle in this type of story and has an unusually well chosen and capable cast to enact her production. The leading roles are taken by Huntley Gordon and Billie Dove in this Universal Jewel production called "The Sensation Seekers."

"The real story of the modern girl," said Miss Weber, "has not been told on the screen. Instead, she has been represented simply as a type. There is no type for the younger generation of today. A few years ago they were nothing but types, but a change has crept in.

"The girl of today refuses to be pigeon-holed into any particular type. She has a mind of her own which is usually a very good one, and she insists on using it without domination or parental influence.

"The modern girl does not demand jazz parties, cocktails and late hours nearly as much as she demands freedom of thought and action. This modern girl has certainly not been put under the microscope in recent flapper pictures."

LOYD GEORGE DISLIKES JAZZ

CRICCIETH, Wales.—(AP)—Lloyd George is an advocate of community singing and doesn't like jazz.

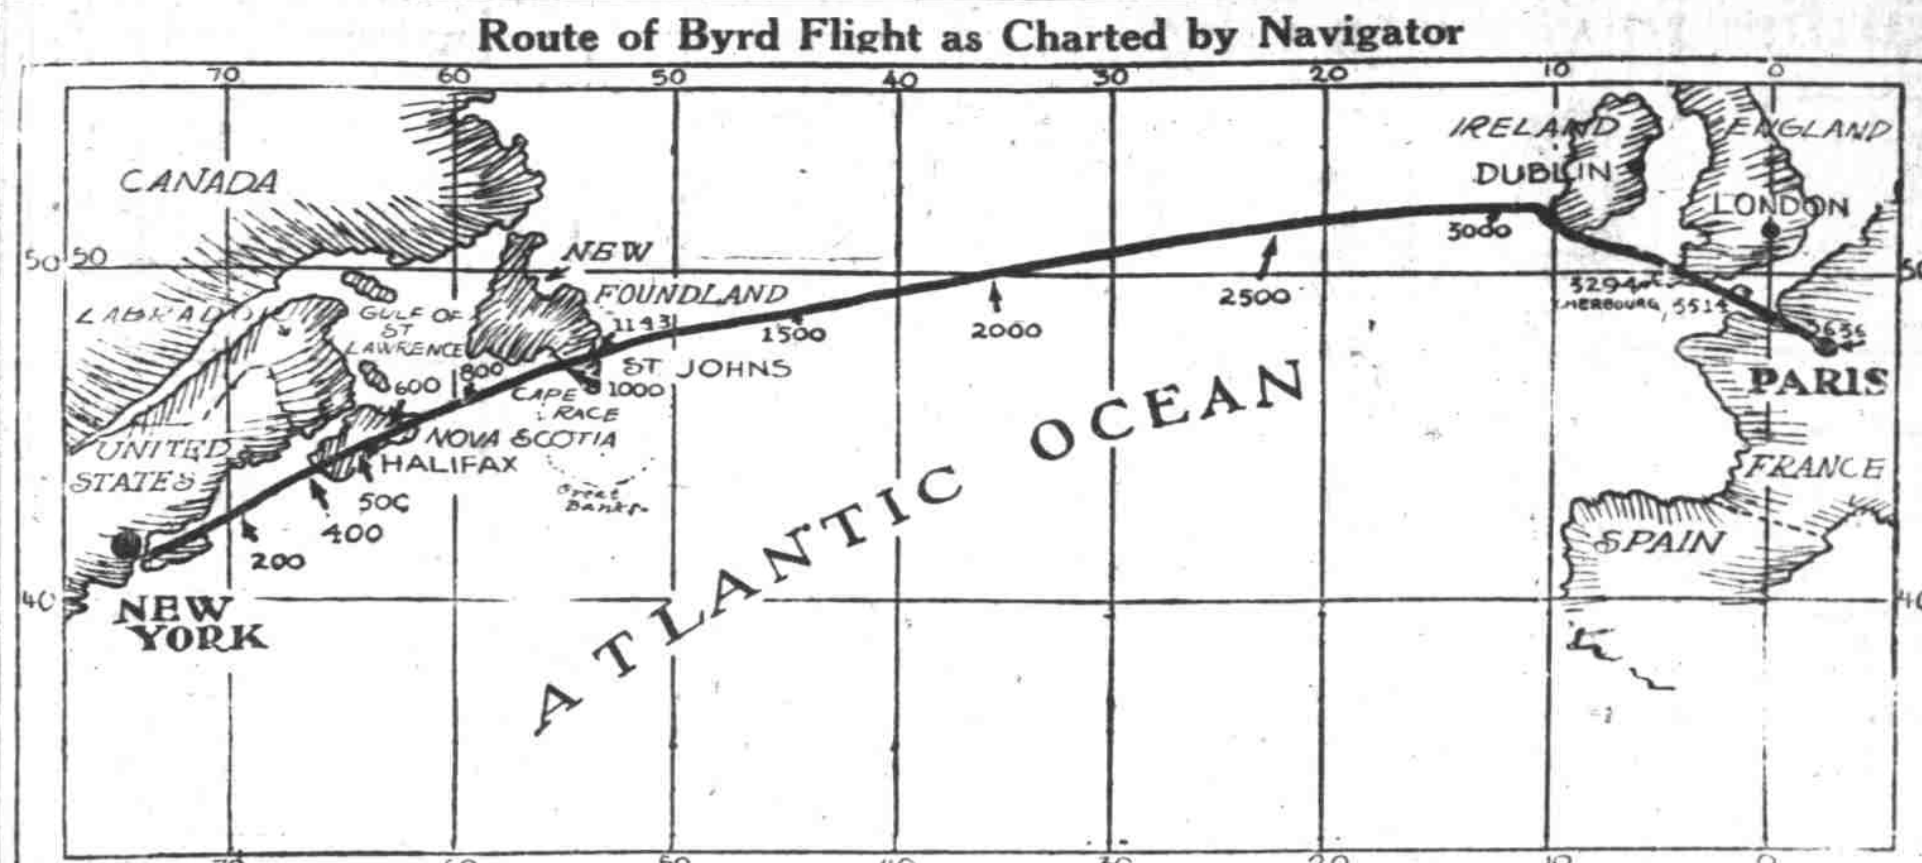

Presiding at a concert given by the Welsh imperial singers, Mr. Lloyd George said "community singing will, I hope, redeem the land from the savage animalism of jazz which is without inspiration and without joy, and leaves no impression on a country striving to improve its conditions."

BOUNTY ON CATS

CHICAGO.—Homeless cats are no problem in Chicago. Medical schools pay half a dollar apiece for them, and a stray cat hunt up back alleys has been turned into profit by many a youngster.

Commander Byrd on his trans-Atlantic flight expected to cover about 3600 miles on 1,324 gallons of fuel, which he believed sufficient to keep him in the air upwards of 45 hours. His three-motored plane was expected to travel between 90 and 100 miles per hour. Map shows the course and distances the American will cover in terms of mileage, as charted by the commander.

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN RETURN FROM CAMP

600 yards, a record never before reached. Tuesday the fort was visited by Major General Creed C. Hammond, head of the national guard activities throughout the country. During his visit a silver loving cup was presented to the artillery unit which was won last winter in a test mobilization of all the Oregon national guard units.

This is the third year the artillery unit has spent its summer encampment period at Ft. Stevens, and because of the favorable conditions and location there will probably be no change made in the future.

The medical unit of the artillery, captained by Dr. J. H. Garnjobst, consisted of 12 men, including Staff Sergeant A. E. Berger, Sergeant Reed Rowland, Corporal George Van Natta, and Privates Frank Grover, Dwight Lear, Rupert Philpott, Maurice McKinney, Curtis Reid, Herbert Swift, Otis Miles, William DePew and Robert Starrett.

Captain Garnjobst, who was the camp surgeon at Fort Stevens, was assisted by Capt. Alfred B. Peacock. The work of the company consisted of taking care of the camp hospital. Very few cases of sickness or accident occurred this year, Captain Garnjobst reported, and the general health condition of the camp was excellent.

While this is the first year an encampment has been held at Camp Clatsop, Captain Paul E. Burris of Company B, infantry unit, said last night, but so successful has the location proved that there is no doubt that it will be made permanent. The government has spent $47,000 on the camp already, with a like amount to be spent next year. Permanent kitchens have been constructed, and later work will be done on dining halls and barracks.

Over 3,000 men were in the camp, he reported, and never has the morale of an Oregon national guard encampment been as good. Company B was represented there by three officers, Captain Burris, First Lieutenant W. E. Vincent and Second Lieutenant H.

Wives of Aviators Await

News of Safe Trip Over

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 29.—(AP)—The women, whose lot in the history of aviation has thus far been mainly to wait, waited today. But the lot of the wives of three men in the monoplane America was joyously mitigated in this instance by a constant stream of radio bulletins betokening the safety of their men-folk.

In a little room on the fourth floor of a hotel in Garden City, Mrs. Bert Acosta, wife of the pilot of the America, and Mrs. George O. Noville, wife of the flight engineer, together with the two Acosta boys, Bert, Jr., and young "Dicky," 5 and 3, respectively, foregathered to con over the reports of the progress eastward of the giant airplane.

When the first word came from the plane, "everything fine," the two women cried and cheered with delight. They watched and waited for further details as location flashes were transmitted from receiving stations to the hotel room. Mrs. Richard E. Byrd, wife of the commander, was in the room a little while after the take-off, but left later for Boston, by train. At every stop on the way, it was said, she was informed by telephone of the progress of the plane.
