COOLIDGE DONS COWBOY OUTFIT AND CELEBRATES

Lillis, one of the photographers who had run out of films. Although "Kit," the birthday horse, was a bit startled at all the commotion, Mr. Coolidge held a tight rein and led her about the lawn in order to make possible a picture of her with the Scouts.

Journeying 350 miles in automobiles from Terry, Mont., the cowboy band of 25 pieces serenaded Mr. Coolidge from the front lawn, while he was at lunch. As he and Mrs. Coolidge came from the lodge, the 24 Boy Scouts rode down from the hills at Custer, 15 miles away, on horses. They rode past in formation and saluted the president.

After the leader had presented the greetings of the two organizations to the president, he received each outfit and then was presented gifts by them. The band gave him a pair of huckskin chaps with the letters "Cal" outlined in silver studs on each leg. The chaps also bore a leather medallion picture of a cowboy riding a bucking broncho. A broad smile lighted Mr. Coolidge's face as Carl Looek, one of the Scouts, came up and in behalf of the Scouts, presented "Kit." As he handed over the reins of the bay mare, Looek declared, "and we hope you will like her."

Richard Arnold, another Scout, came forward with the boots, shirt and kerchief.

The flight, which has failed was to have been either to San Francisco, 2400 miles, or to Los Angeles, about 115 miles longer, dependent upon gasoline supply. Grace came to the islands June 2, and had made several attempts to take off before the accident today.

The U. S. land forces claim to have gained a theoretical victory over the attacking forces in the recent war games. But of course there is no way to prove it.

Marion County Court Returns 3 Indictments

The charge of mash possession against Art Kieper, Carl Porter, Arthur Gotthardt, and Sanford Smith was returned by the Marion county grand jury Saturday morning as a not true bill. The mash, it is said, was sour and unfit for distilling purposes.

Gotthardt and Smith are sailors who overstayed their leave from the U. S. S. Holland. Kieper is a farmer living near Buena Vista and Porter is now serving a 60-day jail sentence for driving while intoxicated.

Three indictments were returned by the jury. Curtis Townsend and Adrian Loomis were indicted for larceny from a dwelling house; Joe Sinker for larceny of a diamond ring, and Henry Jairl for larceny from a dwelling.
