WORK UNDER WAY ON PUBLIC MARKET

Reports of Intention to Handle Inferior Merchandise Are Denied

Only firms carrying the highest grade of merchandise will be allowed space in the Marion Market, according to William L. Busick, manager of the new market building project.

"The impression has grown up from somewhere that it is planned to handle a conglomeration of cheap merchandise in the building, which is not the case at all," he stated.

The work of tearing down several old buildings to make room for the new market building, which will be erected at the corner of Commercial and Marion, began Tuesday.

One novel feature of the $75,000 building will be the absence of outside show-windows. All the shops will face on aisles inside the building, and will be lighted by a large number of sky-lights and windows above the marquee which will be around the entire building.

Heating for the market will be from a central plant to be built by the Valley Motor company to heat their own new building when completed, and the other buildings which will occupy the block.

It is expected that the building will be ready for opening before the winter holidays, according to Mr. Busick.

also of Portland, thoracic treatment, and Dr. H. J. Moran, of Mt. Angel, lumbar treatment.

Music for the afternoon will be supplied by June Director, Salem's baby violinist.

Banquet Tonight One of the most pleasant features of the whole program has been planned for this evening, the local committee announced, in the reception, banquet, and dance which will be held at the Marion hotel tonight beginning at 8:30.

A large crowd of members and their families and friends are expected. Dr. George A. Simon of Eugene will act as toastmaster.

Throughout the day, from 11 to 12 in the morning, from 3 to 4 in the afternoon, and for a short time in the evening, clinics will be held again, when demonstrations will be made by experts in the various lines of chiropractic healing. The public is invited to attend these clinics, and to consult with the specialists present free of charge.

vited to attend the public lecture sponsored by the association on Friday evening at 8:30, when Rev. William Wallace was present, a work-traveler and lecturer recently returned from the trip of the floating university, the Ryndam, will speak on "Yesterday and Today" at the First Methodist church. There will be no charge as the association has arranged this feature out of appreciation of the hospitality extended them by the Salem residents.

Yesterday morning's session, which opened the convention, was given over to addresses of welcome, with responses, and the necessary preliminary business. Mayor T. A. Livezey spoke, representing the city, while President Roy A. Peebles responded.

The noon luncheon of the group was held at the Spa, where Dr. John A. LaValley presided. About 40 members were present, and the afternoon talks were made by a number of the older members of the association. Sketches of the early history of chiropractic, with comparisons of the present with the past were given by Dr. E. T. Helms, of Corvallis, Dr. Hans Peterson, of Portland, Dr. George Hoeye, retired, of Oregon City; Dr. Augusta Wehoffer, of Portland; Dr. E. B. Angell, of Ashland, and Dr. George A. Simon, of Eugene.

Dr. Angell invited the association to meet at Ashland next year, and the matter was referred to the group for later action.

At the afternoon session an outstanding part of the program proved to be the discussion of "The Electro Coagulation of Tonsils," by Dr. George A. Simon, who explained clearly the method of tonsil removal now used by many chiropractors, and beginning to be used by the medical profession at large. A demonstration of the method will be given later in the convention at a clinic by Dr. Simon.

Dr. George Hoeye, dean of chiropractors in Oregon, now practically retired, spoke on the improvements in technique and practice which he has seen come to pass in the profession.

Business taken care of at this session included the reading of the secretary's annual report by Dr. Etta H. Breach, and the report of the auditing committee, consisting of Dr. David E. Long, chairman; Dr. Henry R. Mannell, and Dr. Francis J. Kolar, all of Portland.

Last evening a clinic was held at the convention headquarters, under the direction of Dr. J. E. Long and Dr. George Hoeye. Demonstration of the various electro-therapy machines used was given, and consultations held with a number of Salem people who took advantage of this opportunity to receive advice and treatment from specialists in the field of chiropractic.

Salem hospitality has evidenced itself in the many invitations which have been tendered the visiting delegates to see the beauty spots of the city during their four days here.
