

Salem Senators Win Portland City League First Half Championship

PITCHING STRENGTH AND ERRORS DECIDE

Salem's strong pitching staff and Mt. Scott's lack of reserves in that department, decided the Portland City Baseball league championship in favor of the Senators in Sunday's game, although wobbly support for "King" Cole of Mt. Scott also was a contributing factor. Salem won 7 to 6, Barham holding the visiting hitters after they had all but overcome the Senators' lead.

Technically, only two of Salem's runs were earned, but the Senators got hits enough to justify all of their tallies, even though most of them came after three men should have been out in the first and second innings, when all of the seven runs were scored.

Aside from its championship status, and the spirit shown by the record crowd that witnessed it, the game was featureless, and not nearly so exciting as the one a week before at Portland when the visitors battled their way to victory and the tie for league honors which was decided in their favor Sunday.

Johnny Beck, who saved the day at Portland by his phenomenal pitching, was not so spectacular in the game here, but he pitched steady ball after the first inning. Mt. Scott gathered three runs, none of them earned, in that frame, but got only one more up to the seventh, when they threatened to overcome the senators lead but fell one run short.

Salem's scoring program started with Joe Sullivan, the second man up in the first inning. He was safe when Tuma dropped the ball on what should have been an easy infield out. Goleman hit one too hard for Harris to handle, and was safe.

Steers came up, and Cole, remembering the big boy's circuit swat at Vaughn street on a similar occasion a week before, kept his pitches so low that Bill drew a walk. Jacobberger singled to left, scoring Sullivan, and Ridings put another in the same direction, scoring Goleman.

Mt. Scott got three runs in the first when Gabarino was safe on an error, Harris singled, O'Brien sacrificed them around and Gabarino scored on Tuma's infield out; Faust beat out a hit to Billy Sullivan, Harris scoring, and Faust crossed the plate on Buono's single.

The big fireworks for Salem was in the second. Beck started by beating out a hit to Cole, proving that he is a sprinter as well as a pitcher. Billy Sullivan tripled to center field, scoring Beck, and came home when Perkins, Mt. Scott catcher, threw wide in an attempt to catch him off third.

Then, after two were out, Steers singled, Jacobberger walked, and Ridings singled, filling the bases. Hawk came through in a pinch with a two bagger, scoring Steers and Jacobberger. Ridings scored on a wild throw from the field after Hawk's hit.

That was all for Salem, and Mt. Scott was held scoreless, except for one run in the third on successive two baggers by Buono and Odwin, until the fourth, when O'Brien scored on a wild pitch which Beck himself retrieved, only to throw to the plate and let Buono in on a fly.

Barham took the mound in the fifth, and allowed none of the hitters to perch safely on first base, until the remainder of the game, when his record was in danger when Tuma hit a hot liner which Joe Sullivan snagged.

HUSKIES DEVELOP COACHES

AL ULBRICKSEN FRED SPUHN RUSTY CALLOW

Rusty Callow's decision to leave his alma mater to coach crew at Pennsylvania on a reported ten-year contract at from $12,000 to $15,000 a year makes a total of 14 former Husky oarsmen holding down similar positions in large universities and colleges throughout the country. Photos above show Callow, Fred Spuhn, another former Husky whom Callow is scheduled to replace at Pennsylvania, and Al Ulbricksen, the assistant coach at Washington, who is expected to step into Callow's shoes at the western institution. Ulbricksen is looked upon as the best stroke ever produced at Washington. He has been assistant coach since his graduation a year ago.

"BILLS" STRONG, PLAY REVEALS

DETROIT, July 18.—(AP)—William T. Hilden, 11, and Wallace Johnston, both Philadelphians and veterans of tennis play, served notice on all comers in the national clay court tennis tournament today that they had receded little from their former standing.

"Big Bill" did so with his cannonball service and drives to the base and sidelines. Johnston was more deft, chopstroking and soft balling a good opponent into submission.

Hilden had far better command of his game than when he appeared here a year ago. At that time he lacked the practice his recent hard campaign overseas has given him.

Except for the showing of these two veterans all the honors of warfare went to junior players. In the only two matches of the day going five sets, Richard Lush, Hollywood, Cal., junior, disposed of John Proctor Toronto, and Walter Thomas, Elizabeth, N. J., Andover academy star, defeated William Irwin, Grand Rapids, Mich., interscholastic champion.

SHARKEY COCKSURE WILL K. O. DEMPSEY

By Alan J. Gould (Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP)—It won't make any difference to Jack Sharkey what sort of tactics Jack Dempsey employs in their fight next Thursday night at the Yankee stadium.

The Boston sailor is ready to meet the ex-champion at any style of milling, fancy stuff or rough house slugging. He said so today and accompanied the remark with a jerk of the right hand at an imaginary chin.

Furthermore, if Dempsey has any surprise maneuvers calculated to upset Sharkey's plan of battle, he is wasting his time, in the sailor's opinion. In effect Sharkey said today:

"Dempsey might as well come out and fight. This secret stuff won't do. I'll know him, any way."

Anyway Sharkey figures it out—and he has a nonchalant way of discussing the fight, as if he was a disinterested third party to the subject—he will win by a knockout.

"If Dempsey rushed me from the start, trying to break through quickly, he is doomed to disappointment. I will be waiting for him with more punches than he ever saw before."

"If Dempsey doesn't open up at the first, but lays back for an opening, I'll left hand him to pieces and knock him out, any way."

Sharkey's cool confidence has won him a lot of backing but his almost indifferent fashion of training during the past week has also stirred some skepticism among expert observers.

Today Sharkey put more pep but not much punch into five rounds with three sparring partners in the glass enclosed gym atop Madison Square Garden. Displaying his customary clever footwork, Sharkey threw a volley of right crosses during two rounds with Paul Cavara, then tried his left on Johnny Urban, at the close of their two round set-to. At times, however, Sharkey was missing badly, even though obviously pulling his punches.

SENATORS HOLD SAME POSITIONS

Members of the Salem Senator baseball team maintained for the most part the same relative batting stabilities that they had held previously, at the end of Sunday's championship game. Here are the final batting averages for the first half of the season:

JEFFRIES PICKS SHARKEY TO WIN

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 18.—(AP)—Jim Jeffries, who once tried and failed to "come back" to the heavy-weight boxing championship, today picked Jack Dempsey to hit the same toboggan slide.

"I'd like to see Dempsey win against Sharkey but I can't figure it," said the San Fernando valley farmer who fell before Jack Johnson at Reno in 1910.

"Sharkey has speed, punch and boxing cleverness. He has everything that Dempsey ever had and something that Dempsey hasn't got now—youth. Sharkey should win."

ARMS JUST TAPED; DEMPSEY NOT HURT

SARATOGA LAKE, N. Y., July 18.—(AP)—An amazing report that Jack Dempsey had suffered an injury to his left arm in training stirred the camp of the former champion tonight and met with the most commonplace explanations.

Because of a slight soreness in the muscles of the left forearm, caused several days ago by blocking of sparring partners' punches, Jack's arms had been bandaged nightly over a camphor dressing, handlers said, as well as his legs and other parts of the body that might develop lameness after a particularly hard workout.

The arm will be in perfect condition when Dempsey meets Jack Sharkey in the Yankee stadium Thursday night, they said.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, Saratoga Lake, N. Y., July 18.—(AP)—A hint of staleness, warning that Jack Dempsey has reached the razor edge of physical perfection, showed today in the former champion's final lengthy workout for the match with Jack Sharkey in the Yankee stadium Thursday night.

Crossing the critics in action as he has in announcements, Jack today worked seven rounds without sparring partners, despite word last night from headquarters that the big fellow would face his boxing mates today for the last time before entering the ring with Sharkey. Jack belted the light and heavy bags for two rounds apiece and worked single rounds at the pulleys, shadow boxing and in ring callisthenics.

Dempsey was slow to "work up a sweat" today, even after the idleness that, extended over two days of the week end. But once warmed up Jack worked with vim and viciousness, clubbing the hefty leather sandbag with short, thudding socks that sent the 200 pound dummy swaying almost to the roof of the tiny open air enclosure.

The surliness of approaching fight mood was evident as Dempsey dodged around four sparring partners who were working out in the ring during the session of shadow boxing. Jack's lips were drawn in two thin, snarling lines against white teeth, eyebrows lowered in the famous black scowl of the "man-killing Dempsey" as he hooked and stabbed at an imaginary Sharkey. At the close of the drill, the former titleholder was perspiring freely and scarcely breathed above normal. His weight is "about 200 pounds" in the opinion of handlers.

ROY MOE MAKES A GO.—SEATTLE, July 18.—(AP)—Roy Moe, Portland, made a 69 score over the par 73 course to lead the first 18-hole qualifying play in the western amateur golf tournament here today. Chuck Huhter, Tacoma, with a 72, was the next high man.
