PEOPLE INTERESTED IN SUMMER SCHOOL

Local Training Center Gets Strong Support From Salem Merchants

Many Salem people having been showing great interest in the work being done in the summer school conducted in this city by the Monmouth normal school under Professor T. H. Gentle, director of teacher training schools, which comes to a close on Wednesday, July 27.

Attendance on the part of Salem pupils has been better than that in any other training center in the state, Professor Gentle reports. The cooperation of the Salem people in the project has been unusual, leaders of the work say.

The Chamber of Commerce has assisted greatly in supplying material for local work in geography and history classes. The Commercial Book store has been exceptionally accommodating in securing books for the work. Even a Greek fruit vendor obligingly loaned a cocoon fan on an object lesson in one of the classes.

Four hundred Salem pupils, from the first through the eighth grades are enrolled, with 180 of these at Yew Park school, which a Statesman reporter visited Tuesday morning.

Teaching is being done at Park school by 34 student teachers from the normal, with 5 critic teachers supervising their work. A more ideal method of teacher training could hardly be devised. And the pupils do not suffer under the process, indeed, they learn faster than during the winter term, and are so sorry that school is to be over so soon.

Mrs. Minnie V. Duncan, who during the winter is principal of Garfield school, is critic supervisor of the first grade. One could not help but be impressed, as he visits the work being done there, with the improvements in school work, and the incentives for doing work which are held before the pupil today.

One of the interesting things done in this grade is the dramatization of stories, in the form of puppet shows, where the pupils speak from behind the scenes, for the characters which they move across the stage above them. Remarkable work was done yesterday by little Thomas Roen, Jr., and Clifford Probert, in a realistic dramatization of "Little Black Sambo and the Tiger."

Other interesting features of the first grade work were the graph charts showing progress made in phonics, words, and numbers, and the library. The graph charts are so arranged that each pupil may watch his own progress, and compare it with that of others. Any one looking at the chart may see at a glance that progress is undoubtedly being made. In the library the little tots are made to enjoy reading, and to look forward to an opportunity to use the books.

Three little Japanese girls, who previous to the beginning of the school had been too bashful and afraid to speak a word, sang for the visitors, without embarrassment.

The second grade work is supervised by Miss Katherine Schmitt, of Marshfield. An interesting example of a written lesson was being given in her room with every pupil absorbed in the work.

AMBASSADOR'S DAUGHTER WED

Miss Matilda Houghton, daughter of the American ambassador to England, Alanson B. Houghton, was married recently to Chandler Parson Anderson, Jr., of New York, in St. Margaret's, Westminster, London, in the presence of leaders in British society and politics. Photo shows the bride and the bridegroom leaving the church.

Miss Bess Skog, of Portland, is supervising teacher for the third and fourth grades. An interesting project being conducted in the third grade group is that of a course in Americanization, with the slogan, "A good American is healthy, brave, honest, polite, kind, thrifty, and patriotic," worked out by means of posters.

An illustration of project teaching of geography is being conducted in the fourth grade section, with the use of cities and countries built on a table.

The splendid cooperation of the Salem people, and the high type of pupils present in the summer school, was commented upon by Miss Grace Bridges, teacher of auditorium work in Portland, who has charge of the fifth and sixth grade work.

In the seventh and eighth grades a spelling project is being carried out, with the use of material on the business, industrial, and historical aspects of Salem. This work is being carried out under the direction of Miss Rosella A. Richardson, of Silverton.

With the closing of the summer schools next week, those in charge have arranged programs at each school, so that those interested may be able to see just what is being done. The program will be held at Park school on Monday at 10:30, and at Grant school on Tuesday at the same hour.

Miss Margaret J. Cosper, principal of Garfield school during the winter term, is the local director of the summer school work, and along with Professor Gentle and the critic teachers sent here by the normal school deserves credit for a real piece of constructive educational work which benefits Salem even while it trains teachers for the state at large.

TALLOW DIPS FILLS CHAUTAUQUA TENT

Celebrated Lecture by Dr. Robert Parker Miles Enjoyed Last Night

The big Chautauqua tent was filled to capacity last night to hear the fine musical revue by the Lucille Elmore company and the celebrated lecture by Dr. Robert Parker Miles, on the subject, "Tallow Dips." The entertainers proved very interesting throughout and the big crowd was very laudatory in its comments on last night's performance.

Today the Smith-Spring-Holmes orchestral quintette, one of the best musical organizations on the stage today, will be the entertainers both afternoon and evening. Clay Smith, for a quarter of a century a celebrated song hit author and his brother-in-law, Mr. Holmes, author of over 100 popular band selections will be here in person as members of the musical organization. These men married sisters and these are also members of the quintette.

The program which is a varied one, is one of the finest that could be secured for the Chautauqua platform this year and everywhere that this popular organization has been it has met with hearty approval. The readings and special solo and duet numbers as well as the popular ensembles are features that are above the ordinary. Every member of the organization is a true artist and the artistry in the special programs today will be features of the whole week.

Last night Dr. Miles, who has been a platform speaker for a quarter of a century carried his hearers to various parts of the globe by his clever presentation of world-famous characters. His "Tallow Dips," as he calls them included Theodora Roosevelt, Pope Leo XIII, former Kaiser Wilhelm, Gladstone, and then in a way that will long be remembered by all who heard him, told of the greatest personality in the world—the ordinary mother—who molds the destiny of nations.

Dr. Miles told in a very interesting way of meeting the unassuming mother of the great Unsettled Hills following a lecture in a little town in Iowa, and how unconscious this wonderful old mother was of the greatness of her renowned son; how she hoped that "Dwight would not get proud in his big 'meed' house" and that he would be a good boy." Dr. Miles stated that he believed the celebrity—the "tallow dip" in this case—was not the great minister, the successor of Henry Ward Beecher in Plymouth church, but the aged mother in Iowa.

The lecture was one of the finest that has ever been heard on a local platform.

Dr. Miles has a most interesting personality. He was born in England, crossed the Atlantic when 18, became renowned as a great preacher but was persuaded by Arthur Brisbane, world-famed newspaperman to give up his New York pulpit for a wider field of service. Dr. Miles was a personal friend of the late James Whitcomb Riley who said his lecture was "the measure of a good address."
