MARINE STARTS GRUELLING SWIM TO PORTLAND

water, with very little help from any current, so that progress there would be more difficult. Much of the river on this side of the falls is swift so that negotiation of that part will not be so difficult.

Lewis declared before leaving that he could stay in the water for between 30 and 35 hours, and that he expected to reach Portland inside of that time.

Marvin Lewis is a former Salem boy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Lewis of 1395 N. 5th street. He enlisted in the Marine corps nearly two years ago, and since that time has been making records in a number of navy swimming events. At a meet held near Cuba last year he took the navy championship in the 50 yard dash with a record of 24 seconds, and also was a member of the championship 200 yard relay team.

He is being groomed by the Marines, also, for a Catalina island swim which they will sponsor this fall. Much of his time since his arrival home on furlough several weeks ago has been spent in training for the Salem swim, which is also sponsored by the Marine corps, from their Portland and Salem offices.

A great deal of the first part of the course of the 72 mile swim is through country territory, with few towns close to the river until the arrival at Oregon City, making it difficult to get close reports on his progress.

EXPENSIVE CUTTING

"Pictures cut from long forgotten books are fine for decorating waste-baskets," says a household advisor in Woman's Home Companion. "Two or three years ago a long forgotten book found near Boston sold for $16,000," replies a cautious editor.

RADIO ADVANCEMENT

A home made radio set that was worthy of a free lecture or an amateur orchestra is really not good enough for a program of opera stars whose total incomes may reach a million dollars.—American Magazine.
